POWER PLANT HIT

U.S. Bombers Back at Hanoi

SAIGON (Reuters) — American carrier-based planes today struck within the city boundaries of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, blasting a thermal power plant 1.1 miles from the city centre, a U.S. military spokesman said here today.

It was the third raid American planes have made on the power plant and the first raid on the Hanoi area since U.S. aircraft struck a military barracks six miles from the city May 22.

The raid on the thermal power plant was one of three co-ordinated American attacks in the immediate area of the North Vietnamese capital today.

The spokesman said one American plane, an F-8 Crusader, was shot down during the attack and the pilot missing.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported from Hanoi that three U.S. planes were downed.

The spokesman said that shortly before the power plant was hit, A-6 Intruders and F-4C Phantoms from the carrier Enterprise blasted a ground-to-air missile storage area seven miles south of the centre of Hanoi.

Simultaneous with the attack on the power plant, which was carried out by navy jets from the carrier Bon Homme Richard, A-6 Intruders and F-4C Phantoms from the carrier Constitution pounded the Van Dien vehicle depot five miles south of the capital.

It was the second time the missile storage area and the spokesman said.

The first attack within the city limits of Hanoi, on the same thermal power plant, was May 19 and was followed by a second attack two days later.

The raids against the heartland of North Vietnam followed hard on the heels of a bloody Communist mortar attack earlier today against five U.S. and South Vietnamese installations around Pleiku. The attacks left 26 dead—including two Americans—and 121 wounded.

CENTENNIAL SOUVENIR

Extra Copies Limited For Canada 100 Issue

Because some sections must be printed ahead of publication day, only a limited number of extra copies will be available of the edition "Canada 100," appearing in the Times June 29.

Those who wish to send copies to friends and relatives outside Victoria should place their orders early with the circulation department to ensure delivery. Forms to reserve mailing copies appear in an advertisement on Page 18.

The special supplement, containing four sections totalling 96 pages, is a bonus for regular subscribers of the paper and will be included with the regular home delivery and newsstand sale.

Some of Canada's top writers and historians have contributed articles to the edition, dealing with the nation's origins and progress through the century. Special attention is paid to the roles Victoria and British Columbia have played. As a whole, the supplement is a worthwhile souvenir of Centennial year.

Combined with the regular paper, the June 29 edition will be the largest ever published in one issue in Victoria. In addition to the articles of lasting interest is a wide display of photographs, both old and new.

Israeli Ties Cut By Russia

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today broke off diplomatic relations with Israel and threatened sanctions — "with all the consequences flowing therefrom"—if it does not stop military operations immediately.

The Soviet action came after a summit meeting here hurriedly called between Russia and leaders of the East European states to discuss the Middle East war.

While Israeli tanks blazed their way up on to the Syrian plateau today, the Israeli ambassador in Moscow, Katriel Katz, was summoned to the Soviet foreign ministry.

He was handed a note which said:

'The news has just reached here that Israeli troops, ignoring the Security Council's decision on the termination of military operations, are proceeding with these operations, seizing Syrian territory, and are advancing in the direction of Damascus.

"The Soviet government has warned the government of Israel that it bears all the burden of responsibility for its perfidy and its glaring violation of the Security Council decisions.

"Unless Israel halts immediately its military actions, the Soviet Union, jointly with other peace-loving states, will take sanctions against Israel with all consequences flowing therefrom."

"The Soviet government states that in view of the continued Israeli aggression against Arab states and the gross violation of the Security Council decisions by it, the Soviet government has taken a decision on the severance of the Soviet Union's diplomatic relations with Israel."

Israel embassy personnel were told to leave Russia as soon as possible, an Israeli spokesman said.

The move came three days after Russia warned Tel Aviv it might break relations if Israel did not immediately observe a ceasefire in the Middle East war.

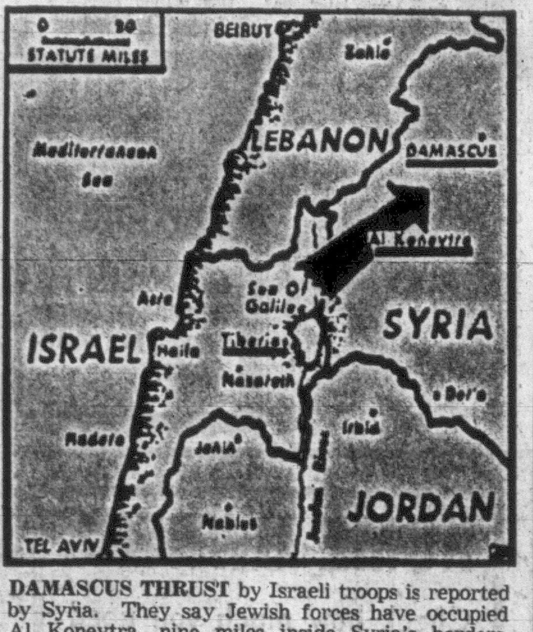
ISRAEL WARNED

It also came only a few hours after the Soviet Union and six other Communist states warned they would give aid to Arab countries if Israel did not stop fighting and withdraw to the lines it held before the war began.

The declaration was issued in the name of the Communist parties of Russia, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Yugoslavia.

Romania attended the meeting but was believed to have refused to sign the document. Romanian sources could not confirm this, but said: "That seems to be the position."

The declaration warned Israel that if it did not immediately observe a ceasefire and withdraw the signatory states would "do everything necessary to help the Arab countries to administer a resolute rebuff to the aggressor."



DAMASCUS THRUST by Israeli troops is reported by Syria. They say Jewish forces have occupied Al Koneytra, nine miles inside Syria's borders. Israeli charged that Syrian forces were shelling Israeli border villages near Tiberias in the Jordan Valley. Both sides continue to accuse each other of violations of UN ceasefire resolutions. 'WILL OF PEOPLE'

Nasser Stays As Egypt Chief

CAIRO (CP)—President Nasser announced today he has decided to stay on as Egypt's head of state but only until "all traces of aggression are eliminated."

In a statement read to the Egyptian National Assembly by Speaker Anwar Sadat, Nasser said he has decided to "comply with the will of the people," and rescind his resignation but added:

"After this phase, the whole matter should be referred to the people for a general plebiscite."

Deputies jumped from their seats and roared approval as Sadat announced the news of the Arab leader's decision to a special assembly session.

Sadat said Nasser was unable to make the announcement himself because huge crowds shouting for his return to power were blocking his way to the assembly building.

"We do not accept anybody but Nasser as our leader," the Speaker told the assembly, repeating a slogan that had echoed through the canyons of Metropolitan Cairo all night long.

SPEAKER READS LETTER

In a letter read by the Speaker to the 360-man assembly, Nasser said:

"The voice of the masses is an order that cannot be disobeyed. Therefore I decided to stay in my place.

"I will stay in the post where the people want me to be until the time when we will be able to erase all traces of aggression, but after that period the decision should be made in a general plebiscite."

By saying that he would stay on until all traces of aggression are erased, Nasser apparently meant that he would keep his post until the effects of the last week's Israeli - Arab war are cleared up.

Observers in Beirut, Lebanon, said that any referendum for the presidency seemed certain to bring Nasser sweeping support to stay in office.

Partition 'Absurd' Vatican Paper Says

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano says Jerusalem should be placed under international control.

It says in a commentary that for 20 years the Holy City had been absurdly divided into Jewish and Arab sectors—a situation that often provoked bloody incidents.

Jews Plan To Keep War Gains

By UPI

Israel claimed victories today over the armed forces of Syria, Egypt, Jordan and Iraq and said it would never return to its old borders.

Information Minister Yisrael Gaililie said in Jerusalem that Israel's smashing triumph over the Arabs in the six-day Middle East war had made it impossible "to return to the status quo before this happened."

Damascus, the oldest continuously inhabited city in the world, was reported by the Arabs under daylong bombardment by Israeli planes. Damascus radio said four Israeli planes were shot down.

The Syrians admitted the loss of the city of Al Koneytra, nine miles from the Israeli border 40 miles south of the capital, after "fierce fighting."

BLACK SMOKE

Dispatches from the front told of huge columns of black smoke rising over villages along the highway to Damascus.

Israeli military officials said there were no air raids against Damascus proper but said Israeli planes were in the vicinity.

Syrian officials exhorted the army and the people to defend Damascus street by street, house by house. Israeli military sources said the fighting around the Syrian capital was heavy. They predicted the downfall of Syria's leftwing socialist regime within days or even hours.

ALGERIA FIGHTS

Algerian President Houari Boumedienna said his country refused to accept the UN ceasefire.

"The war must continue and we must not lay down our arms until final victory," he said in Algiers.

In Jerusalem, Gaillile said the Israeli government had been holding consultations designed to "assure the victories achieved on the battlefields" and that previous boundaries with the Arabs cannot exist in the future.

The previous armistice pacts defining Israel's borders came after the successful 1948 war of independence and the 100-hour blitzkrieg which smashed Egypt in 1956.

Israel already has declared it will never give up captured Jordanian Jerusalem. The Holy City previously had been divided between Israel and Jordan.

There were indications the Israelis also plan to keep some Jordanian territory west of the Jordan River along with parts of the Sinai Desert and Gaza Strip.

Canal Blocked Says Egypt

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — Cairo radio said today Israeli air raids sank several ships in the Suez Canal Friday, obstructing all navigation through the canal.

Ahmed Mashour, head of the Egyptian Suez Canal authority, said in a broadcast statement that raising the sunken ships and clearing the canal to navigation "will take some time."

Egypt closed the canal immediately after the outbreak of the Middle East war Monday. Several ships were left immobilized in it.

Ships Hit Up Coast

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Four women from California were in good condition in hospital here today with injuries suffered Friday night in a collision between an Alaska cruise ship and a Japanese freighter.

The vessels collided in heavy fog about 16 miles off this north coast city. The Glacier Queen sustaining a 75-foot-long gash above the waterline and the Nichirei Maru a small hole in her bow and a snapped anchor.

The cruise ship was carrying 112 passengers and an undetermined number of crew. The injured were believed in an area where two cabins were smashed by the impact of the collision.

Damascus Drive Halted

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Secretary-General U Thant announced today that both Israel and Syria have said they accept United Nations demands for a ceasefire.

Thant said he had been informed by Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, chief of staff of the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization, that both sides accepted his proposed truce arrangements.

Under these arrangements, cessation of all firing and troops movement went into effect at 12:30 p.m. EDT. (9:30 a.m. PDT).

Bull reported to Thant after a conference in Tel Aviv with Maj.-Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israeli defence minister, and he asked chief UN truce observer in Damascus, Lt.-Col. R. H. W. Bunworth, to seek Syria agreement urgently.

Thant said Bull reported that Israel is prepared to co-operate in a ceasefire and halting of troop movements provided that UN observers are deployed on both sides of the battle line.

The word that Israel would accept the ceasefire came to the 15-nation council as it received reports also of deep penetration into Syria by Israeli troops and Israeli air attacks around the capital of Damascus.

Israeli Ambassador Gideon Rafael gave the council a report on a meeting in Tel Aviv between Dayan and Bull.

Rafael said Gen. Bull would establish contact with the Syrians on the hour to be set, and that Israel would provide him with the necessary assistance in the way of communications and transport.

REPORTS PIECEMEAL

The reports from UN observers in Syria reached the council piecemeal during a meeting that began before dawn in an effort to bring an end to Middle East hostilities.

The Soviet Union, after breaking relations with Israel, warned the council it must halt what the Russians consider Israeli aggression or face "an extremely serious situation."

The Soviet Union sought condemnation of Israel by the council.

Earlier today Damascus radio said Syrians would "continue to fight until we have turned the entire front into a cemetery for the enemy."

Rafael again denied that Israeli forces are bombing Damascus, and advancing on the Syrian capital.

NO OBJECTIVE ANSWER YET

Who Shot First Still Poser

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Who fired the first shot in the Arab-Israeli war?

This is a question to which no official or objective answer is available, as yet. Many diplomats contend it is academic, because of the situation in the weeks just preceding the outbreak of fighting.

The Arab nations and the Soviet bloc declare it was Israel that launched "aggression" against the Arab nations. Israeli representatives vigorously deny it.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban told the UN Security Council Tuesday night that as Arab threats and provocations increased in intensity, "there was no doubt that our margin of general security was becoming smaller and smaller."

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko, speaking in the Security Council Thursday, quoted a National Broadcasting Co. report from London that Israel "was the first to launch military operations in the Near East."

The NBC report was attributed to the Israeli ambassador in London, Haron Remez.

"If the foreign minister of Israel wishes to deny it, to disavow it," Fedorenko said, "well, he has another chance to undo with the right hand what the left hand has done.

"The responsibility of the Israeli aggressors will not be wiped clean by any quibbles. Their responsibility is clear for the crimes committed."

Ambassador Muhammed H. el Farra of Jordan also alluded to the NBC report of what he called the "confession" by the Israeli ambassador in London.

He added that he was "greatly astonished that until this minute the council has not attempted to establish the fact—although the fact is very clear—that Israel committed an act of aggression."

Replying to Fedorenko and el Farra, Israeli ambassador Gideon Rafael declared:

"I can say categorically that no such statement was made by Ambassador Ramez."

"The Israel embassy in London has denied these allegations and legal proceedings have been instituted against those who have published this false statement."

Wednesday, the Israeli embassy in London also issued a statement denying that Remez had told British members of Parliament that Israel had fired the first shot.

BUSES CROWDED

Trucks and buses, crammed with new demonstrators, inched forward through the throngs in an atmosphere of riotous confusion.

But the demonstrations appeared under control of mounted police and troops positioned at intersections and all along the main thoroughfares.

The sudden offer of resignation by the 49-year-old Egyptian president—dominating leader of the Middle East for more than a decade—came Friday after Egypt's crushing defeat by Israel in the five-day Sinai war.

In a broadcast speech Friday night, Nasser took full responsibility for the disastrous events that have hit the Arab world.

But a floodtide of pro-Nasser feeling quickly welled up in Cairo, and much of the Arab world.

Hundreds of thousands of Egyptians marched in Cairo today and before the assembly met the streets were jammed with crowds shouting pro-Nasser slogans and waving banners and flags.

The first indication that Nasser might reverse himself came late Friday night when he announced over Cairo radio he would "discuss" his decision with the assembly today.

"I would like to ask the people to wait until morning," he said.

REITERATES CHARGE

Nasser reiterated his charge that the Arab setback came about because of Anglo-American help to Israel.

Two other top Egyptian leaders followed Nasser in resigning: First Vice-President Abdel Hakim Amer, deputy commander of the armed forces, and War Minister Shamsheddin Badran.

The assembly then met in special session Friday and passed a resolution telling Nasser: "We say no . . . no. You are our guide and the president of our republic and that you will remain for as long as we live."

The resolution, as reported by the Algerian press service, added: "Our people now need you more than ever. Today's defeat is part of the price men have to pay for their freedom. . . .

"Nations are not nourished by victories alone, but also catastrophes and their ability to confront them."

Then the cabinet held a special meeting and refused to accept Nasser's resignation.

. . . UN CEASEFIRE

He said Israel has given UN observers access to its side of the front while the UN observer in Damascus has been confined to the armistice commission quarters by the Syrian authorities.

Secretary - General U Thant read an Israeli report to the council admitting that Israeli troops were in the "vicinity" of Damascus.

Thant gave his latest information to the 15-nation council as it met in the early morning session called at the request of Syria.

The secretary-general had told the council earlier that a UN observer in Damascus had reported the city under air attack.

ATTACK DENIED

"There has been no air attack on the city of Damascus or on the Damascus air field," said the report quoting Moshe Sasson, an Israeli foreign office official.

"But there have been and there are Israeli aircraft in the vicinity of Damascus. They are there as protective cover for the Israeli forces in the area."

In view of the variety of reports being received the council recessed at 7:05 a.m. to permit delegates to study the situation.

Previously Thant said Bunworth had reported at 5:23 a.m. EDT "air attack on Damascus going on."

The council went back into session at 8:11 a.m. and heard Thant read out another report from Bunworth.

It confirmed there was an air attack at 3:35 a.m. in the area of Damascus Airport, a second air attack at 4:55 a.m. south of Damascus, and a further air attack at 5:19 a.m. north and northeast of Damascus.

The reprt added that "all strikes appear to be outside the city of Damascus."

Soviet delegate Nikolai Fedorenko interrupted the council debate to announce his country's decision to break relations with Israel, and said he wanted to add this warning:

"If the Security Council does not fulfil its duty under the charter of the United Nations, and if the aggressor is not stopped immediately, this will create an extremely serious situation and all the responsibility for it, will lie with those who impede the adoption of the necessary decision by the Security Council."

Syria has charged that Israel's planes have been bombing its capital city in violation of the council's three ceasefire resolutions, which both countries have accepted.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg immediately said: "The bombing of Damascus cannot be condoned by any member of the council."

He asked that UN observers be sent to check on Israel's charges that Syria was shelling Israeli border villages, bolstered by reports from UN observers of intense artillery fire north of Tiberias in the Jordan Valley.

COUNCIL RECESSES

Soon after, at 6:02 a.m., the council recessed by request of Indian Ambassador Gopalaswami Parthasarathi to consult on what to do.

Thant produced the message on the air attack under questioning from Soviet and Bulgarian delegates, after Goldberg had raised the question whether an earlier report from Thant on a Damascus air raid had come from Bunworth or from Syrian authorities.

Syrian Ambassador George J. Tomeh, who had asked for the urgent meeting that convened at 4:32 a.m. told the council that Israeli ground forces had taken Kuneitra and were fighting toward Damascus.

He spoke after Thant read the council his original report.

"As I address you now, a fierce battle is raging between the Syrian forces and the criminal hordes coming from Israel who are attempting to reach Damascus as soon as possible."

"The Security Council is duty bound to put an end to this banditry. We request that the attacking hordes from Israel should be returned back behind the armistice lines. We request the council to face up to its responsibilities. We request that sanctions be applied."

The Rains on Way

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — The first rains of the monsoon season fell on India's west coast south of Bombay Friday, bringing hopes of an end to two years of drought and famine.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Skies cleared early Friday night in the Cariboo and temperatures dropped sharply. Prince George had the lowest reading, 28 degrees, ever recorded on June 10 and Quesnel tied an old record of 31. Elsewhere in the province minimums were in the mid-40s to mid-50 range as cloud cover was general. A weather system was to bring rain to the north coast today and cloud to the rest of British Columbia tonight and tomorrow. Showers were likely in the interior today but should decrease Sunday.

ON B.C. TOUR

Bavarian PM Here Monday For Talks

Victoria will receive another distinguished visitor Monday when the Bavarian Prime Minister, Dr. Alfons Goppel, will arrive here at 11:15 p.m.

Dr. Goppel will arrive at Vancouver International Airport Monday afternoon and almost immediately will leave for Victoria where he will spend the night at Government House.

Tuesday Dr. Goppel will visit the Legislative Buildings at 10:30 a.m. to sign the Golden Book before going to City Hall at 11.

The visitor will lunch at the Union Club as guest of Premier Bennett and cabinet at 12:45 p.m.

A visit to Butchart Gardens is scheduled for the afternoon at 3 and in the evening Prime Minister Goppel will dine at Government House.

He leaves Wednesday morning at 8:45 for Hudson Hope and the Peace River project and goes on to Vancouver the same day.

He leaves Vancouver Friday.

Trafficking Charge Laid

A 17-year-old youth was formally charged in Victoria Law Courts Friday afternoon with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Martin Baker, 99 Gorge Road, pleaded not guilty.

He was one of five youths arrested by Saanich police in a derelict house on McAnally Road, Ten Mile Point, on April 20 last. The police seized a number of plastic bags containing a plant substance.

Six-Months Term For Attempted Theft

Gary Streeton, 21, of 415 Island Highway, was sentenced to six months imprisonment Thursday after pleading guilty to attempted theft of a car.

Need Crash Program For Social Workers

A critical shortage of social workers exists in the province according to the head of the B.C. Social Workders' Association.

Dr. Glen Hamilton, newly appointed director, told the annual meeting of the lower Vancouver Island branch nearly 300 new social workers are needed in B.C. each year.

The graduate school at the University of British Columbia supplies annually only 80 of this number and therefore the rest, from 175 to 250 must be recruited elsewhere.

Dr. Hamilton suggested additional graduate schools of social work should be set up in the province.

These facilities should also be added to by new undergraduate schools of social work, reading and extension courses as a crash program to ease the shortage.

Giant of Movieland, Spencer Tracy Dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Spencer Tracy, one of the last of the movie giants who won acclaim from the critics for his varied acting talents and success at the box office with the magnetism of his rugged Irish charm, died today. He was 67.

Twice an Academy Award winner as best actor of the year, Tracy sometimes veiled the winkle in his eyes and the crooked smile on his lips with semi-villainous protrayals of tyooon-type characters. In real life, he was outspoken but affable and scorned the bright lights and flesh-pots of the Hollywood scene. His movie career spanned 35 years.

Tracy was not an especially large man — he was 5 feet 10 inches and 170 pounds — but he gave the impression of bigness on the screen with his broad shoulders, square jaw and craggy brow. In his earlier years, his hair had a reddish tinge but later he became silver thatched.

He won an Oscar in 1937 for his portrayal of a simple portuguese fisherman in "Captains Courageous," and in 1938 as the hard-knuckled priest, Father Flanagan, in "Boys Town."

Tracy was nominated a half dozen other times for Oscars — as the Cuban fisherman in the movie version of Ernest Hemingway's "The Old Man and the Sea," in 1958, and for the role of a rugged priest—Pal of Clark Gable—in "San Francisco" in 1936.

Other nominations were for "Father of the Bride" in 1950; "Bad Day at Black Rock" in 1955; "Inherit the Wind" in 1960; and "Judgment at Nuremberg" in 1961.

Tracy, living in relative seclusion, was plagued by ill health in recent years.

On Sept. 4, 1965, he was operated on for a prostate growth at Good Samaritan Hospital. A chemical imbalance in his blood developed but then was reported improved.

In July of 1963, he was stricken with a respiratory ailment and spent several weeks in a hospital.

BOYHOOD PAL

A native of Milwaukee, Wis., Tracy went to New York to make his way on the legitimate stage. One of his boyhood pals, also striving for success on Broadway, was Pat O'Brien.

Along the way, Tracy married a budding actress, Louise Treadwell. They had two children, John, 42, and Suzy, 34.

Tracy was a giant among near-legendary movie contemporaries who passed from the scene before him—Gary Cooper, Clark Gable, Humphrey Bogart and Dick Powell.

In the more than 60 movies he made, actresses he appeared with included Collen Moore, Loretta Young, Jean Harlow, Myrna Loy, Jeanette McDonald, Luise Rainer, Joan Crawford, Lana Turner, Joan Bennett, Irene Dunne, Deborah Kerr, Elizabeth Taylor, and Gene Tierney.

He scorned publicity stunts and never had a personal press agent but was a great success at the box office. For years he was numbered among the 10 best marquee names in movies.

In 1947, he was acclaimed in some sort of a poll of housewives as the "American male who influenced women most emotionally."

"Stupid, silly tomfoolery," he snorted.

Nasser's Unity Hope Shattered by War

By DAVID S. BRODER
The Washington Post

For 15 years, ever since he sparked the revolt of the junior army officers that overthrew King Farouk, Gamal Abdel Nasser has been the dynamic symbol and spokesman of the Arabs' long-thwarted drive for unity and dominion in the Middle East.

The 49-year-old postal worker's son is the most powerful and controversial Arab leader of this century.

The western world learned of Nasser only gradually after the 1952 military coup that ended the reign of the gaudily corrupt and corpulent Farouk.

For a time Nasser stayed in the background while Gen. Mohamed Naguib, a popular leader, served as front man for the new regime. But in February, 1954, he ousted Naguib and two years later had solidified his position sufficiently to have himself elected president—with no opposition.

Dazzling Smile

A big (6 feet 2 inches tall, 210 pounds) handsome man, with a dazzling smile and neatly-trimmed moustache, Nasser captivated the imagination of Arabs inside and outside Egypt as no other figure had been able to do.

He lost little time in flexing his muscles after achieving the presidency. Within a month after his election, he responded to the British-American withdrawal of proferred financial assistance for his project of building a high dam on the Nile at Aswan by seizing the Suez Canal from its British owners.

That fall, after diplomatic efforts were stymied, the Israeli, British and French military forces launched a co-ordinated assault on the Egyptians, which quickly routed Nasser's army.

But the military defeat was converted into a diplomatic victory when the United Nations, backed by Russia and the United States, forced the withdrawal of the invading armies and restored Nasser to control of the canal.

For the next decade, Nasser played a shifting role in East-West relations, while consistently pursuing his goal of Arab unity.

He accepted economic aid from both Russia and the United States, but beginning with the large-scale Soviet aid on the Aswan Dam project in 1959 shifted increasingly to an anti-western stance. His defeated army was re-equipped by the Soviet bloc.

His chief goal, in foreign policy, however, was to unite the quarreling Arab nations and regain the military strength needed to settle his old score with Israel.

In 1958, Nasser joined Egypt with Syria and later Yemen in United Arab Republic, but the union lasted less than three years. Later, he tried unsuccessfully to bring Iraq into his orbit, and in 1962 sent troops to Yemen, where they have been tied down in a costly struggle for five years.

At home, he faced serious problems, too, for despite his ambitious development plans, population growth obliterated many of the economic gains of his regime.

Russian Ties

Jordan's King Hussein and Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, with political and economic ties to the west, undercut his efforts for Arab unity, in part at least because they feared his alliance with the Russians.

In the past month, Nasser seemed to be on the verge of achieving his long-sought goal. Backed by the Russians, he demanded and got the removal of the United Nations peace-keeping force from the Egyptian-Israeli border and imposed a blockade on the Gulf of Aqaba, a seaway vital to Israel's economic survival.

Old enemies, including Hussein, formed military alliances with Nasser, and Israel confronted the nightmare its leaders had tried to prevent — a seemingly solid ring of hostile Arab states.

Force of Arms

On Monday, warfare began and, with shocking speed, Nasser lost by force of arms what his patient diplomacy had labored for 10 years to bring within reach.

Whether Nasser's almost-hypnotic hold on the Arab masses can survive this latest and most devastating setback is uncertain. Whatever the outcome, the chain-smoking, ascetic Moslem who has been the symbol of leadership to Arab millions, has earned his place in history.

Castellani Sick

BURNABY (CP) — Rene Castellani, charged with capital murder in the arsenic death of his wife, was in hospital Friday at the Oakalla Prison Farm for treatment of a heart ailment. Castellani is awaiting retrial Sept. 25 after the B.C. Appeal Court quashed an earlier conviction.

UN TROOPS FROM GAZA SHIPPED TO CYPRUS

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — Swedish, Norwegian and Indian troops from the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East arrived in Famagusta Saturday aboard a Swedish freighter.

The troops were cut off in Gaza by fighting between Israeli and Egyptian forces Monday. Officials said 334 Swedes, 58 Norwegians and 138 Indians were aboard the freighter Thuleland. More than 500 Indians and 400 Brazilians were still in Gaza awaiting transport.

RAISING MONEY for United Jewish Appeal in U.S. is Finance Minister Pinchas Sapir of Israel, who told newsmen in San Francisco his country will try to demonstrate to the Arabs that peace can be profitable for them through common trade and increased tourism.

BEIRUT CHEERS NASSER

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — Thousands of demonstrators poured exultantly through Beirut streets today after hearing that Egyptian President Nasser had withdrawn his resignation.

Motorcades of horn-honking cars drove through the streets while youths waving banner-portraits of Nasser and King Hussein of Jordan whistled, clapped and cheered.

Meanwhile, a general strike, called by Lebanese unions and parties to demonstrate solidarity with the Egyptian leadership, paralyzed commercial activities in the capital.

The demonstrators earlier demanded that Nasser reverse his resignation decision, and shouted protests at Russia's failure to come to the aid of Arab states.

ECONOMIC WARFARE

Arabs Extend Boycott of West

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Federation of Arab Chambers of Commerce proposed Friday that the Arab boycott against Israel be extended to all goods and services from the United States and Britain.

The proposal was adopted at a meeting of leaders of the chambers called to co-ordinate Arab economic policies "during the present imperialism."

It declared that American and British aid to Israel "makes it imperative for the Arabs to start a full-scale economic battle against imperialism."

"The export of oil to the aggressive countries must be stopped immediately, and the rules of the Arab boycott must be applied to all American and British products and services. British and American means of transport should also be boycotted in all Arab countries."

The resolution said the Arabs are determined to continue their struggle in all fields "until the achievement of the ultimate victory—namely the destruction of Israel and the restoration of usurped land."

Acadian

the Easy Car...from General Motors

Acadian Canso Sport Deluxe Coupe

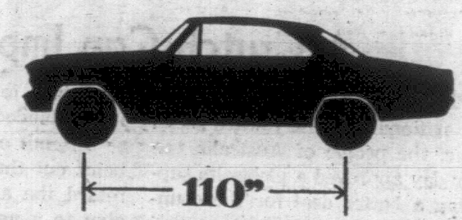
Go easy.
The trim-size, sleek-looking, new Acadian goes easy on your pocketbook—when you buy it and as you run it.

We believe a lot of people would like a smart-looking, less expensive automobile that is smaller and yet doesn't show any cut quality corners. So we offer the 1967 Acadian. Our new Acadian looks nice. Not "Christmas-tree nice" but tasteful and styled to size. Perhaps you would understand better what this means if you were to sit Acadian next to any other car in its class and compare beauty marks. Acadian is 'way ahead.

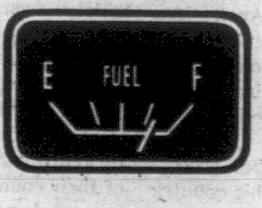
Our '67 Acadian is well-built. Really, Acadian is sort of over-built. We figure you may be the kind of person who wants his next new car to look after him—instead of the other way around. So Acadian is ruggedly put together to get you where you want to go without pampering. It goes easy. Would you call Acadian good value? You will. Not only for its all-round excellence but for its extraordinary comfort (for instance, the model shown above has standard bucket seats).

You can take it easy in your Acadian. There are lots of reasons why—including a host of new standard safety features. Dual master cylinder brake system with warning light, lane change signal in direction signal control, four way hazard warning flasher, passenger-guard door locks on all doors—and many more safety features are found in every 1967 Acadian.

No single model can fit everybody's ideas of a perfect car. So we offer six Acadians: two hardtops, three sedans and a station wagon. When it comes to power teams, there are two sixes, two V8s and three different transmissions. Maybe no car is perfect but our Acadian sure tries.



Every Acadian sits on a 110-inch wheelbase. So Acadian is neither huge nor tiny. It's just right—especially when you're trying to park or get through heavy downtown traffic. Acadian's trim-size makes for an easy handling, easy driving car. At the same time, there's plenty of room for the whole family and lots of trunk space for their luggage.



Another thing. Low upkeep. We said earlier that Acadian goes easy. It does. It goes easy on you and only partly because Acadian goes easy on gas.

So there you have it. Our '67 Acadian is sleek-looking, trim-sized, well-built—a good buy in the very low price field. Wouldn't you agree that it's the Easy Car? If Acadian is easy to look at and easy to drive, wait'll you see how easy it is to own! Some time soon, drop in and put Acadian to the test. We just know our new Acadian will win out over any other car in its class. Easy.

Conservation, B.C. Style

DISCLOSURE BY STILL ANother mining outfit of its plans for development of 66 claims in Strathcona Park a few miles south of the existing mine operation at Buttle Lake indicates the next obvious step in the government-assisted destruction of this public parkland.

The mining claims of the latest venture were registered over the last four years, during Mr. Kiernan's tenure as a minister of the Crown, so there can be no question of rights prior to establishment of the park. The promoters' way was cleared, however when much of Strathcona Park lost the ostensible protection afforded by an "A" classification, and became, on the government's declaration, a Class B park, which opens the road to industrial development.

This process of exploiting the natural resources of the parks at the expense of priceless scenic, woodland and waterway assets is known as the Social Credit government's "conservation policy," or sometimes by the alternative euphemism of "multiple use." But by whatever name you call it, it means that the people's irreplaceable choice wilderness areas are fair game for commercial exploitation. And it is a process of attrition that cannot be undone.

Part of the vigorous public opposition to establishment of the Buttle Lake mining operation was an effort to protect the park and the lake from the effects of the mine, its waste products, the creation of a township within the park and the inevitable pollution of the Buttle Lake-Campbell River watershed. But the other reason for opposition was that the establishment of one mine was seen as a precedent for further similar projects which would multiply the adverse effects.

Now the truth of those fears is evident. A second mining venture is under way; other interests have properties in the park and presumably will proceed with exploration and development at will. Roads will be pushed further into the parkland, trees will be removed, more lakes and watercourses will be converted to industrial uses and more dwelling areas will spring up. The government's "conservation" program will flourish.

It is ironic that at the same time our provincial administration is developing our parks as cash producers, responsible governments all across this continent are planning how to safeguard more parklands from commercial exploitation and preserve more vital recreation areas for the people of today and of the future.

United States authorities, both federal and state, are becoming alive, not just to the desirability but to the necessity of ensuring that great tracts of choice wilderness remain free of the miner, the lumberman and the town builder. Yesterday Mr. Arthur Laing, the Canadian minister of northern development, told parliament of the current efforts to establish federal parks on the Pacific coast. The Long Beach area on Vancouver Island is one proposed site. Garibaldi, a provincial park on the mainland, is another, but the minister had to admit that in his approaches to the British Columbia government, "we have had no satisfaction in negotiating for Garibaldi." The provincial government, Mr. Laing said, points out that Garibaldi contains resources that it wants to develop.

The federal government sees park needs as serious enough to rate a thorough, long-range study. As Mr. Laing puts it: "We think that it is about time we took steps to see that an adequate amount of these open areas along the seashores of Canada are available for national purposes." There are five such national seashore parks on the Atlantic coast—none on the Pacific.

Both as Canadians and as British Columbians, the people of this province should demand action on the acquisition of large parks—as distinct from the province's worthy program of establishing small parks—and protection for these areas once they are secured. That means the abolition of rubber boundary lines and the provincial government's policy of juggling park classifications to suit commercial opportunities.

A Crutch Can Impede

APPARENTLY MOVED BY A national impulse toward social justice, the people of Australia the other day approved a plebiscite supporting a better deal for the country's aboriginal people.

Basically the national vote authorized listing of the aborigines in the census—a move to avoid implications of discrimination against them—and approved an extension of power to parliament to pass special laws for their assistance.

The intent of the Australians deserves the highest commendation. Yet there is a certain danger in the well-meaning action giving parliament power to pass special racial laws.

The hazard in the latter process is recognized widely in this country insofar as special legislation is applied to indigenous peoples. In Canada we have an Indian Act aimed generally at the protection and the assistance of the Indian. Some of its clauses come under criticism from time to time, but, in the main, it is intended to be helpful.

Friends of the Indians, however, point out that the act may tend to retard the advancement of the Indian to a position of equality with other Canadian citizens. Where it is clearly beneficent, it frequently acts as an impediment, offering small concessions to Indians as Indians, rather than encouraging them to assume the rights and responsibilities of an expanding Canadian society from which they cannot fully divorce themselves.

As the Australians move to implement the plebiscite they have just passed, they should seek all available means to advance the aborigine and to improve his status as a resident of their country, but not necessarily through laws creating special status. Such laws serve as a crutch, helping the crippled, it is true, but they can hamper progress where it might be made more rapidly without the artificial aid.

To Avoid the Oil Scum

MAJOR DISASTERS OF THE type represented by the wreck of the Torrey Castle, the huge tanker which broke up near the English coast and spread offensive oil on both sides of the English Channel, are relatively rare. More common, if less dramatic, are occasions on which waste oil is discharged, in smaller quantities, by accident or design, from tankers in the process of cleaning the vessels' bilges.

There are laws restricting the areas in which such material can be discharged—laws aimed particularly at the protection of beaches and marine life. Some of the oil, nevertheless, does enter restricted areas, fouling beaches and injuring waterfowl, sometimes fatally.

This situation should create particular interest in the claim of an American firm, Cities Service Company, that it has found a method of using "slop" oil in a way to convert it into fuel for ships by separating from it any water and making it unnecessary to pump the offensive fluid overboard. If this can be done, as the company says, through the installation of equipment costing about $52,000, the sum seems a reasonable investment and the method an excellent way to keep seas and seacoasts cleaner than they are now.

Chest and Red Cross

I am under the impression that an agreement between the Victoria Community Chest and the Red Cross is imminent. As a supporter of both these worthy organizations I hope that the merger has been given careful consideration, not only by the directors of the Chest but also by the dependent Chest agencies.

Have they been consulted? Do they realize what this could mean to them?

We are told—not officially, 'tis true—that the Chest intends to guarantee the Red Cross $85,000. Is the Chest confident that it can increase its collections to cover that vast sum? If it cannot then a guarantee of that size will leave a very small piece of cake to divide between dependent agencies; their budgets will have to be cut at a time when costs are rising alarmingly.

Those who favor a "one shot" fund-raising campaign do so out of a desire to save the public too frequent appeals, or so they say. On what do they base their opinions on public reluctance to subscribe to these large charitable organizations which are, at present, outside the Chest?

I hope the Chest will meet with its agencies, or at least, hold open meetings, when it will declare its policy and present a workable plan to increase its collections and donations, with the object of assuring its agencies that they will be able to operate with budgets at the present level. After all the Chest is a business; this is not too much to ask of them.—A. G. Coning, 3152 Richmond.

The Reincarnated Mr. Fleming Looks Very Familiar

MR. DONALD FLEMING returned to politics on Wednesday like a fish to water. He is, of course, a draftee, summoned from retirement by Conservatives, evidently despairing of the other candidates, who would not accept his chilling no's and could not be swerved by his stiff "conditions." At the point of decision, his reluctance has vanished like the snows of winter. One can predict with some confidence that there will not be a more enthusiastic draftee than Mr. Fleming at the Conservative convention.

Western

The resilience of politicians is one of the marvels of our society. In 1963 Mr. Fleming left never to return, "content" — as he assured us — "to efface myself from public memory." Now after a spell of retirement in the wilderness of Toronto, he is back feeling (and certainly looking) years younger and talking as if nothing had happened.

'Old Chap' Buried

This radiant re-emergence is the more remarkable when one recalls the cruel circumstances of Mr. Fleming's departure. Asked what had happened in the meantime to his former harried self, the new challenger informed us, "I buried the old chap." Reincarnation, however, has been anything but complete. From sundry sonorous phrases about dedication and destiny, one might easily have imagined that one was listening to a well-remembered minister of finance explaining a deficit on budget night. There were suggestions also of a certain lingering pugnacity. Mr. Fleming is not interested in fighting old battles, his mind being on the future, but if pressed by some chance reference to times past, he is ready with detailed corrections at the drop of a hat.

One of the salient traits of the old — now buried — Mr. Fleming was his conspicuous readiness to fight anybody anytime about anything for any number of rounds. He would fight as hard for a comma as for a statute and even harder, as a former colleague remarked, when he was wrong than when he was right. Perhaps to test the reality of the transformation, newsmen pleaded with the new Mr. Fleming to admit, after the passage of all these years, that perhaps in a former incarnation he had emerged from a famous meeting "pale, ashen and shaking." The experiment proved only that Mr. Fleming is not prepared to admit anything.

'Stiff Conditions'

There was much else in the press conference to remind listeners of the baffling past. Thus, in describing his efforts to rebuff those bent on dragging him from idyllic retirement, Mr. Fleming mentioned his "stiff conditions" which, as he had imagined, should have had a "completely chilling effect." As it turned out these "conditions" were three in number; an assurance that he could unite the party; that he could achieve this in a way not possible for others; and that he must have reasonable assurance of winning the leadership.

How any group of petitioners could meet these "conditions," Mr. Fleming did not explain.

There is no doubt about one point. The former minister has gained impressively from his four-year absence from public life. In no way has he been associated with the party's internal conflicts or with its depressing performance in Parliament. He does have the backing of some members who supported Mr. Diefenbaker in November and of some who opposed the leader. In Conservative circles he is rated a formidable leadership challenger.

Provincial Friends

In addition, Mr. Fleming is remembered in Quebec as the man who negotiated an important agreement with Mr. Sauve, and he appears to be on good terms with Mr. Johnson. He is evidently hopeful of support in the two Social Credit provinces and, by happy chance, happened to have in his brief case a Vancouver Sun account of an interview with Mr. W. A. C. Bennett, in which the B.C. premier praised Mr. Fleming as the best choice for the Conservative leadership.

Whether Mr. Bennett is interested primarily in boosting his old Toronto friend or in doing in Mr. Fulton becomes an interesting matter for speculation.

As an old expert in deficit financing, Mr. Fleming naturally demonstrated a keen interest in Mr. Sharp's latest performance. He lamented the "pathetic picture" of a minister of finance who is a "hostage of the big spending policies of the government." This is exactly what was said in former times of Mr. Fleming. Despite his aversion to refighting old battles, the former minister went into some detail at this point to explain how different things had been when, as a hostage of Conservative spending, he had been accumulating virtuous deficits suited to the conditions of the times.

Mr. Fleming's present themes are consolidation, priorities and the hard lot of the provinces who should not be regarded as mendicants and have to live on federal largesse. He also spoke with feeling of the municipalities, mentioning that his own taxes had gone up 40 per cent in four years.

Two points are notable here. When he speaks of arresting the government's spending proclivities, Mr. Fleming means that he would look severely on new programs. He admits that nothing can be done about those now in existence (even including medicare, which is still in the future). The other is that, in protesting against high expenditures while emphasizing the existing burdens of the provinces, Mr. Fleming is surely riding two horses.

1956-57 Model?

How well buried is the old chap? Anyone must admit that the care-ridden, battle-scarred Fleming of 1963 is gone. But this has been a strange metamorphosis because the new Fleming sounds amazingly like the Fleming of 1956-57 when the Conservatives were condemning the government for taxing too much while urging great new programs, many of which were afterwards brought into effect. One would think that this was still a reasonably sure prescription for deficits.

This, however, is for the future, possibly distant. Mr. Fleming's interest in deficits is probably exceeded at the moment by his interest in delegates. The convention is only three months away and others are ahead of him on the road. But the former minister is a hard worker and campaigner whose potential September strength is not discounted even by those who continue to look elsewhere in the quest for a Conservative successor.

Miscalculations in Various Mideast Objectives

DIPLOMATIC history is full of somber chapters, but rarely have so many major miscalculations been made by so many chancelleries as in the months of May and June, 1967. The principal blunder was, of course, the one made by U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser, who gambled (a) that Israel would not fight and (b) that if she did, Arab armies would win. Not far behind this monumental mistake, and perhaps, in the long run, even more significant, was the miscalculation implicit in Soviet support for Nasser.

Frye

The Kremlin greatly overestimated the Arabs' military capabilities. This is obvious in the massive investment it made — and lost — in arming them. Communist diplomats, indeed, acknowledge the fact.

There also is evidence that Moscow thought it could score major political and economic gains in the Mideast without direct military involvement.

Not Wholly Fooled

The Soviet policy of talking much and doing little has succeeded in bemusing some of the Arabs. Under the circumstances, they had little alternative but to take whatever Soviet help they could get — even if it was only verbal.

But few have been wholly fooled. In private there is disillusionment merging into bitterness against the alleged "undependability" of Moscow.

The Arabs are far angrier at the United States and Britain than they are at Russia. Short-run damage to Western interests in the Mideast has been staggering. But Soviet gains may well prove to have been temporary and ephemeral.

Miscalculations in Washington also were extensive, and serious. The United States thought it could restrain Israel without undertaking to break Nasser's Gulf of Aqaba blockade by force.

It could not, and did not. Washington took too little diplomatic action to satisfy Tel Aviv and too much to retain a satisfactory posture in the Arab world.

What this means for the foreseeable future is not happy to contemplate. In their fury and humiliation, the Arabs are casting about wildly for scapegoats, and the Americans and British are the nearest at hand.

For nearly 20 years, the Arabs have nursed a bitter grudge against the West for helping to create Israel. Now they seem determined to create and nurse another, equally intense grievance — that in 1967, as in 1956, the West provided the decisive power which enabled Israel to stay alive.

That it was not true this time does not seem to be relevant to them.

Jordan is an especially sad case. Before the fighting, she had an enviable posture as friend and client of the United States.

In deference to Arab unity, and apparently out of a mistaken judgment as to Nasser's strength, King Hussein cast in his lot with Egypt, giving the U.A.R. command over Jordan's armed forces.

This left Hussein so little room for manoeuvre that he could not even pull out of the war when he wanted to.

In the long run, Israel may have made the most serious miscalculation of all.

Objective More Remote

The immediate result of her successful self-assertion has been spectacularly beneficial to her. But what Israel really wants is long-range security and Arab acquiescence in her existence; and these commodities are further away today than they were when the fighting began.

Israel's real objectives might better have been served by agreeing to negotiate — even on the disadvantageous terms which were available from a proud and triumphant Nasser before the fighting began.

It is an axiom of history that wars rarely solve anything. This war was spawned in miscalculation, fought in confusion, and abetted by diplomatic ineptitude. It has not been one of history's brighter chapters.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

As one wanders along a woodland trail he can see some of nature's wonder gardens and flower pots.

There is the "nurse log" that has been lying on the forest floor for perhaps 100 years. On it will be many kinds of growth -- lichens, fungi, mosses, perhaps many kinds of flowering plants, shrubs and trees, all growing from the one source.

Within the logs you could find many kinds of insect life, from the termites that live in the damp pulpy wood to the boaring beetles on the upper side. Perhaps there is a dry section where the carpenter ant will be established.

If you look closely you will see how this community of plants and animals exists in association one with another, each living its own life in its own way, yet each depending upon the other to build up the whole.

In some places you will find a tree established for many years that has sent its roots out in search of moisture along the trunk of the old log until it has twisted completely around. In some instances, the root's stock will be as thick as the trunk of the living tree. If you are careful, you will be able to trace the roots of each plant as it penetrates the log, each taking the substance that it needs.

Look around for the "flower-pots". These are old stumps, perhaps from some fallen tree or one that had been cut down many years ago.

Here one can find many things growing. Salal and the red huckleberry seem to find these old stumps a fine location to serve as the basis for their place in the sun.

In some places you will find Douglas fir, balsam fir and cedar seedlings all growing out of a stump, side by side, and in the fall the mushrooms will grow out from the top and the sides.

Some of the older trees we see with the sprawling boles are those that started life in an old stump.

Did Svetlana Flee 'Decadent' Society?

Neither the prepared statement handed out to reporters upon Svetlana Alliluyeva's arrival in the United States nor her televised press conference lacked evidence that her Swiss "vacation" was in fact a tutorial service to make sure that if and when she is permitted to speak in public, she would merely be repeating compositions written by State Department officials.

How, for instance, would anyone stepping on American soil for the first time meet American advertising standards as Mrs. Alliluyeva has by plugging her forthcoming book, its prospective publisher and the law firm representing her as well as its principals, unless with the help of a "tutorial service?"

Or, would she spontaneously refer to herself as having been considered "as a kind of state property" by the Soviet authorities, thereby employing a rather uniquely American cliche against Communism?

Mrs. Alliluyeva also displayed an incredible psychological accuracy in bowing to (a non-metaphysical) God, publicly patching her motherly conscience and promising to contribute to charities. Neither mother's apple pie nor a public relations scenario can be more unquestionably American.

MINORITY OF ONE

. . . basic sincerity

Those who saw Mrs. Alliluyeva on television, with her two lawyers domineeringly chaperoning her, can hardly doubt that she is an individual very much open to the power of suggestion.

Yet, it would be wrong not to discern in Mrs. Alliluyeva a basic sincerity of purpose. True, more than anything else she seems to have been prompted by a desire to become a published writer, a career denied her in the Soviet Union, but when she states that she is not out to harm Russia, she appears to be honest.

Moreover, hers is not merely an individual drama. She herself claims to speak for many people of her own younger generation and particularly for Russian intellectuals. It is quite probable that not vanity but a sense of reality causes her to say these things.

Whatever perspective needs to be employed for viewing Mrs. Alliluyeva's turnabout, one is forced to wonder to what if any, degree it is part of a Russian Bankruptcy of Ideology.

Is the Soviet Union still a Communism-aspiring and socialism-building country? Is the ethos of the Soviet people still a socialist ethos and is it becoming more so- or less? Have past challenges to security and present economic life improvements combined to produce a socialist pragmatism rather than a pragmatic socialism?

Does ideological sincerity continue to be a spontaneous qualification for leadership? Or has ideology deteriorated into a psychological tool for manipulating the constituency? Is it becoming a Russian equivalent of our own leaders' "freedom and democracy?"

All the Answers

The Soviet Union's ideological rivals in China no longer pose these questions; they believe to have the answers, and they believe all the answers to incriminate the Soviet Union, or at least those responsible for her political and ideological course. To us, the mental ordeal and ultimate defection of Svetlana Alliluyeva is but one more reason for wonderment.

Reflections on these matters are bound to lead different people to different conclusions. But whatever the conclusions, one should be aware that what is actually tested in the Soviet experiment is not so much the Marxian prescription as a system conditioned by the interplay between the Marxian prescription and the foreign pressures — military, economic, diplomatic, and propaganda — to which the U.S.S.R has been exposed for all of its 50 years. For whatever the Soviet Union amounts to is perhaps equally much a result of Communist theory and of the hostility with which the West has surrounded it from the beginning.

Such erosions and decadence of the Soviet society as may be reflected in Mrs. Alliluyeva's defection are the "accomplishment" of a foreign ability to imbalance, pervert and subvert.

The answer to the discovery that a particular system is corruptible and pervertible is least of all in joining the corruptors and perverters. Any victory of the ideologists of corruption, into whose hands Mrs. Alliluyeva has entrusted her fate, is a defeat of humanity.

Defection Perplexed The Russian People

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW — In a muffled, typically Russian way, Svetlana Stalin's flight to the West has created a big stir among ordinary people of the Soviet Union.

Though they don't go out of their way to talk about it with foreigners, it's obvious from what little you can coax out of them that they have discussed it a good deal among themselves.

Many appear vaguely upset by it, as though the news had compelled them to come to grips with thoughts and ideas they would rather leave comfortably suppressed.

All seem perplexed as to the factors in this most sensational defection from communism. They are aware, though not noticeably outraged, that they have been kept in the dark by their press, radio and television.

But an efficient grapevine ensured that Russians knew about these events almost as soon as they happened.

I asked a girl in Georgia, Josef Stalin's birthplace, how she had found out Svetlana was in the U.S.

"I don't know exactly. Suddenly everybody started talking about it, that's all."

"I heard the news on the Voice of America," said another Georgian. "I like the VOA. Every night I move the dial on my Grundig and there it is."

As for the defection itself, two guides in Georgia said they thought it "strange" that Svetlana would go to the West leaving two children, a boy 21 and girl 15, behind in Moscow.

One added that she didn't understand how Svetlana could have found "peace" in India, as reported in foreign news accounts. "How could anyone find peace away from her homeland and her children?"

A young working girl in Moscow said the word on the grapevine is that Svetlana was "strange" in the sense of being mentally unbalanced.

"Everyone I've talked to says the same thing. They also talk a lot about the number of boy friends and husbands she's had."

Svetlana is said to have been married at least three times.

"Anybody who shows a little independence is called strange," said another Muscovite girl.

First—to Make a Garden You Cultivate a Gardener

By ART STOTT

Over a period of thirty-some years the lady in our house has tried to interest me in gardening. Her efforts have not been an unqualified success. The digging, planting and cultivating I do is done in respect to her wishes rather than in devotion to the soil and the miracle of the seed. The only time I have displayed a green thumb occurred when I was a little careless in applying cuprinol to some lumber at Shawnigan. Ceres, to me, is an unexciting Roman goddess who provided the generic name of breakfast food.

Stott

Not that I fail to admire good gardens. I regard them as an outstanding accomplishment by people who can create them. Any paise I may have sung to them is genuine. And when I read the other day, on an adjoining page, a philosophical treatise on the enduring mystery of regeneration from the seed, I was deeply impressed. I always am by the writer — a man whose green thumb is authentic, compounded of some inborn genius with the soil and a season-long impregnation of the stain with which he colors his mansion, his guest-houses and his outbuildings at Shawnigan, clearly a place of imposed green thumbs. I believe, honestly, that he over-produces each year to the great benefit of his neighbors and the needy, and I relish the lyricism of his prose when he writes on the subject.

Still, admiration is no guarantee of emulation.

And yet, this year, by the inscrutable cunning of the lady in our house, some slight encouragement has come to me in the production, rather than the writing, end of gardening.

She knows, as most good wives know, that husbands are children at heart. They need quick and favorable response to their efforts. They grow and glow with it. Hence her deft selection of the 1967 crop.

There is little pleasure to the young in heart in turning stubborn earth or clay, planting and then waiting interminably for something other than horsetails, plantains and chickweed to emerge. So, in the late spring, she presented to me a package of radish seed and an envelope of shiny beans.

The radishes came up almost overnight. We have now harvested the crop and, though they gave me heartburn, I have a sense of achievement. The beans I inserted in their composted row a few days ago. Already they are sturdy plants that grow so rapidly I find some credibility in the story of Jack and the giant who lived atop his marvelous stalk.

The two species have inspired me. Even the spinach has shot up to usable size and I can contemplate with some confidence a harvest of beets in the weeks ahead, first the tops as greens, then the fine, round body of the vegetable. Beets have never disappointed me, though they're inclined to be a bit slow between the date of deposit and the first yield of interest.

Nor have the apparent successes of our vegetable plot been the only source of satisfaction to me. My failures are also gratifying. It appears—and I say it with some smugness—that our carrots aren't going to be good again this year. Carrots, to me, are tolerable cut into sticks, raw, or, as tender babies, mixed with the first picking of green peas. Apart from that, it is my opinion that nothing in the life of a carrot becomes it more than the leaving of it, withering away under blight or pest before the harvest.

There is one other use for the vegetable, its figurative application in the phrase "stick and carrot." The lady has resorted to this technique. She stands with me, surveying the plot, and heaps on the praise higher than compost.

"You've done very well," she says, while I beam. "It certainly goes to prove what can be accomplished if you devote thought and constructive effort to a garden. Your dispersal of fertilizer and the double-digging you gave the ground is producing results and you've laid the whole thing out excellently."

I swell with pride, a child lauded by the teacher, and commit myself to harder work in the garden next year.

A very smart cultivator, the lady in our house, equally adept at employing the soil to best advantage and encouraging labor to greater effort.

How do I show up under this treatment? Aw well. They say the Lord likes 'em simple.

A New Definition Of Death Needed

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON — Science is moving so swiftly ahead in prolonging the living processes of the body that an important British scientist believes the world needs a new definition of death.

Prof. Francis E. Camps, famous for his appearances as a Scotland Yard expert in murder trials, says transplanting of vital organs and creation of artificial ones raises questions never faced before in determining legal death.

"In the past," he said in an article in Science Journal, "the definition of death was based on the cessation of the heart and respiration. But modern scientific methods now make it possible to restore and maintain both respiration and circulation by respirators and pacemakers.

"How, then, is death to be defined?"

He said that from a scientific point of view there are two kinds of death — "somatic death" or the death of the body as a whole and "cellular death," the death of individual cells which make up the body. "Unfortunately," he added, these are not the same and it is possible to restore hearbeat and respiration without restoring all of the brain.

"Can such a person living in a 'vegetable' state, be more strictly said to be dead than alive?" he asked. "Because we can maintain physical life in the absence of the higher functions of the brain we clearly need to revise our definition of death."

Dr. Camos said there was even the remote possibility of hospital beds all occupied by such "inanimate objects" to the exclusion of people needing medical treatment.

After mentioning the new techniques of transplanting organs Dr. Camps said:

"Clearly if interference is to take place with what might be described as a normal biological event, the end of life, then careful consideration must be given as to when these modern techniques should be used. For example, it is obviously quite illogical and even unethical to restore to life a person who is in the ultimate stages of death from an uncurable disease. . . .

"From a legal point of view, such modern techniques could obviously be misused, as for example, when survival of a particular person was essential for inheritance or for avoiding financial loss from taxation. Clearly any such consideration would be completely unethical from a medical point of view. On the other hand a sudden cardiac arrest in a person who is in a position, if surviving, to be of value to the community demands some attempt at revival."

JIGGS DIDN'T HAVE AN ENEMY IN THE WORLD

By SCOTT YOUNG
The Globe and Mail

CHARLOTTETOWN — Poor old Jiggs, a man said. He sat with two or three other men, all middle-aged or near it, all from the Island, close to the door of the little airport terminal building at Charlottetown.

It is a Department of Transport building, all right, but it is so small that the only clock is an electric one which states on the face of it: Export Cigarettes, Plain or Filter Tip.

"Yeah, old Jiggs, he went fast, didn't he?" another said.

They watched the only man among them who was doing anything, at that moment. There was a settee and a single chair arranged around a low table with a composition top, on which this man from a car rental agency was writing out a bill.

"He'll catch no more flies," one man said into the pause. He grinned. "Remember Jiggs, catching flies?"

Burst of Words

These remarks were all made very rapidly. There would be a silence maybe for a minute, and then a rapid burst of words.

"Jiggs didn't have an enemy, did he?" one of them said and the others said nothing, but shook their heads.

They were like four members of a family, talking this way about one of their number who had died. This sense of closeness is because the Island has only 108,000 people, a little over 18,000 of them in the Island's only city, Charlottetown.

The terminal was fairly busy, due to about 12 people milling around waiting for the Eastern Provincial Airways DC-3 from Moncton and Summerside, en route to New Glasgow and Halifax. Air Canada doesn't fly into this provincial capital.

I sat down thinking how good it is for everyone but the deceased, when a man dies and people who knew him sit around and talk about him with affection.

I kept hearing the name, Jiggs, as people passed talking. I went and looked in the telephone book, and there were plenty of MacDonalds, but I didn't know his real name, only his nickname, Jiggs. I went to the empty airline counter and pushed a button bearing a sign stating, "Ring for Service."

Space Paper

A man came. I asked if he had a spare Guardian. He gave me one from a pile behind the counter.

City Businessman Dies Suddenly, the headline read. The name under the photo was Clifford MacDonald.

As I was reading the story, I remembered that I'd heard his name before. He had played on Canadian Curling Championship rinks from the Island. Skipped them a couple of times. Also, I read, he had run the pari-mutuels at country race meetings and had promoted the first harness racing meets ever held under lights on the Island. He had owned horses himself, the last of these being CP Clegg.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. MacDonald of Bunbury, both dead now. Surviving were his wife, the former Nora Doyle of Charlottetown, and three children, Donald in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, Barbara in Toronto and David at home.

Even in the picture, he had that set to his mouth and glint to his eyes that went with being the kind of man it was easy to like.

I was still sitting there when the first passenger came from the plane. She was a dark-haired young woman in slacks. Her face was puffy and red from crying, or trying not to cry.

"That would be the daughter, Barbara, from Toronto," I said suddenly to the man with me. He nodded. I thought of her getting the surprise call last night from home with the dreadful shock of the words. Then the hours in the lonely air.

Fathers and daughters are sometimes very close, and Jiggs MacDonald, from his picture, looked like one of those who might be idolized by his children, especially a little girl who had held his hand often and with much trust, growing up.

I don't know that the whole scene could happen just that way, so complete even for a stranger, anywhere but on the Island.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

It was a whirlwind war, the kind the victorious Israeli forces were trained to fight.

Although shooting continued on the Syrian frontier the war was essentially over in four devastating days.

Humiliated for the second time in a decade on the battlefield, Egypt's President Nasser resigned after accepting the United Nations ceasefire proposal, then changed his mind at the urging of the people and parliament of the U.A.R.

Besides prestige, his losses were staggering. An estimated 600 tanks and 450 aircraft were destroyed in the Israeli blitzkrieg. The number of troop casualties was uncertain but Nasser's armed forces will be ineffective for years to come.

Egypt was not the only loser. King Hussein of Jordan, a reluctant ally of Nasser in the first place, also saw his armed forces virtually wiped out.

Syria and Iraq both lost most of their air forces in the initial Israeli attack which caught most of the planes on the ground.

The figthing began suddenly Monday morning on the Sinai Desert front, just as hopes were rising that diplomacy could avert a conflict despite the troop buildup by both sides.

Each accused the other of starting the shooting, but the evidence is mounting that Israel struck first, in force at least, counting the element of suprise to overcome the vast array of potential Arab strength lined up against her.

In any case the war was virtually decided after the first day of fighting. The Israelis destroyed more than 350 planes in the first few hours while motor columns pushed deep into Sinai.

The UN Security Council met briefly Monday morning to hear the charges and counter-charges, then adjourned for private consultations among the big powers on drafting a ceasefire proposal.

The Council met again Tuesday night after another day of startling Israeli victories, not only against the Egyptians but on the Syrian and Jordanian fronts too.

Nasser attempted to blame his defeat on intervention by carrier-based planes of the U.S. and Britain. This charge was hotly denied in the Council by the two powers who were seriously concerned about its effect on the attitude of the Soviet Union, and was not sustained by Nasser's ally, King Hussein.

At the Tuesday session the UN unanimously approved a simple ceasefire appeal without attaching any terms.

The fighting continued on Wednesday and Israel scored a major gain by driving 125 miles to the entrance of the Gulf of Aqaba and capturing the fortress of Sharm el Sheikh where Egypt had been enforcing its blockade of sea traffic to the port of Elath.

As the extent of the Israeli victory became more apparent Russia had the Security Council reconvened and won approval of a 4 p.m. EDT deadline on a new ceasefire demand.

Egypt in the meantime had closed off the Suez Canal to international shipping and had her allies cut off oil deliveries to the western powers.

Israel declared she would accept the ceasefire if her opponents did and Jordan was the first to agree, ending the fighting on their frontier but not before the Israelis recaptured the Old City of Jerusalem and gained all the territory west of the Jordan River.

As Israeli troops neared the Suez Canal Thursday Egyptian forces made a last ditch attempt to stem the tide but it was too late. The counter-attack collapsed and Nasser sued for peace.

There is little doubt the Russians were also acting behind the scenes to have Egypt accept the ceasefire.

In fact the restrained policy adopted by the Soviet Union throughout the war seemed to belie earlier theories that she had provoked the crisis as a counter to Vietnam.

The Russians and Americans were in close contact before the shooting erupted and during the four days of fighting and apparently reassured each other of their unwillingness to become directly involved in the conflict.

The full story of the behind-scenes manoeuvring is not likely to be known for years to come.

Although berated for its inability to prevent the outbreak of war, the United Nations proved its effectiveness again in providing a forum for the major powers to work out peaceful solutions to world problems.

The ceasefire request had no real muscle behind it but did give Nasser a face-saving way of giving up before being totally crushed.

Now the UN faces the most difficult part of its task. It must find some way to make the truce stick and set up a better means of preventing another war in the future.

Flushed with their success, the Israelis are bound to demand more iron-clad guarantees of security and some hard bargaining between the protagonists and the major powers lies ahead.

$100-a-Week Minimum Needed Say Canadians

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Canadians, in their own personal appraisal, figure it now costs $100 weekly for a family of four (husband, wife and two children) to get along. This is an increase of $14 a week over five years ago, when $86 was the estimated weekly minimum for a family of four.

Only Sweden and the United States report the need for higher weekly wages. The people of Sweden say the (median) average amount should be $102 weekly and Americans say $101 a week.

Thirty six per cent of Canadians feel the smallest amount of money a family of four needs to live in health and decency is $100 weekly. Sixteen per cent say $120 to $125 a week and another 9% feel it should be $150 a week. Other opinions range from a low $35 weekly to $200 or can't say.

Gallup-affiliated organizations in nine nations recently participated in a unique study to determine the public's estimate of living costs in each of these nations. The countries were Britain, Greece, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, West Germany, the United States and Canada.

The results cover a wide range—from $102 (or its equivalent) in Sweden to about a third of this amount in the Netherlands, or $35.50.

The question: "What do you think is the smallest amount of money a family of four (husband, wife and two children) needs each week to live in health and decency in this community?"

Amount Needed for Family of Four Per Week

Sweden	102.00
United States	101.00

Switzerland	60.00
Great Britain	58.50
Norway	56.00

Sawmill Totally Destroyed by Fire

Although no estimate of losses has yet been announced, it is expected to be in the thousnands.

A company spokesman said loss of the mill will affect five men temporarily.

It will also cause indefinite delays in filling 200 orders which were to come from the mill.

Firemen were still sifting through the charred remains today in attempt to discover the cause.

The B.C. Forest Service firefighting team was on the scene shortly after the first flames were spotted but there was little they could do to save the tinder-dry wood building.

The mill is situated at the head of First Lake.

Charges Laid After Woman Killed in Car

NANAIMO — A 24-year-old Nanaimo man appeared in court here Friday on two charges in connection with the Thursday highway death of Mrs. Margaret Clayton.

He was remanded to Monday.

Mrs. Clayton's husband, William, co-owner of a Northwest Bay fishing camp, is in fair condition in hospital here suffering leg, chest and skull injuries.

According to RCMP their car was struck from behind sending it out of control into the path of an oncoming vehicle.

Mrs. Clayton was dead on arrival at hospital.

Burns, and two people in the third car, were released after treatment.

City Band Wins Trophy

For the third consecutive year the Victoria Boys' Band has won the junior out-of-state trophy in the Portland Rose Festival.

Conducted by George Kraeling, the 39-piece band earned 98.2 per cent in the Friday competition. This victory gives them permanent possession of the trophy.

Two local twirlers, Cheryl Sparks and Bev Griffiths, won their age groups in twirling.

Mayor Stephen will head a welcoming party to greet the band on its return at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in front of the B.C. Hydro Building.

To be honest with you, last week was NOT one of our best weeks . . .

We can do without another like it for the rest of our lives.

Some small but vital printing errors crept into a mighty big job, and that is why there is now a temporary pause in B.C.'s most popular money game of 1967—

CASH IN A FLASH

Sponsored by Standard Oil Company of British Columbia Limited for Chevron Dealers and Standard Stations

These misprints led to incorrect matching of "Cash in a Flash" cards in a number of cases and therefore invalidated them. As a result, some people who thought they had a winning combination were going to find themselves disappointed.

So, in fairness to all the people playing "Cash in a Flash," the first game has been officially terminated.

A new game of " Cash in a Flash" will be starting soon. We are doing a total reprinting of all "Cash in a Flash" cards — and this time it's going to be right.

Every single card in this new game of "Cash in a Flash" will give you a valid chance to win up to $1,000. What's more, the New "Cash in a Flash" will have a big extra BONUS feature:

In addition to the thousands of regular "Cash in a Flash" prizes ranging up to $1,000, all winners in the new game will be eligible to compete for a special new GRAND PRIZE OF $10,000!

We are more sorry than we can say for the inconvenience and disappointment caused to Standard Oil Company of B.C., Chevron Dealers, Standard Stations and their tens of thousands of customers who enjoy playing "Cash in a Flash".

All humans, they say, make errors once in a while.

But, believe us, there hasn't been much consolation in being human around OUR plant during this past week!

LOOKING AT BOOKS

Pride in Canada Marred By Saga of Seal Pups

By JOAN COLDWELL

There have been books published this year on every conceivable aspect of Canada, the land, its history, its characters, its arts and crafts.

COLDWELL

For the first time, it seems, Canadians are becoming fully aware of the cultural as well as the physical resources of their country. They are losing, not before time, the sort of inferiority complex illustrated by a British Columbian returning recently from Expo who said "I never thought Canada could do it."

We shall all know a great deal more about this country before the year is over and will have every reason for patriotic pride.

But the centennial effort would be unhealthy if it were all smug back-patting with no genuine self-criticism. One of the blacker parts of the Canadian story is told in a short new book about the annual harp seal hunt off the east coast.

Peter Lust's The Last Seal Pup is painful and disturbing but it should be read by every thoughtful Canadian in this year of national stocktaking.

After a preview of the first film in 1964, a Montreal journalist wrote an article calling for public condemnation of the hunt.

His column was reprinted in leading European newspapers, thus provoking international criticism of Canada's seal hunt and the government's policy on it.

Now Peter Lust has written an account of the entire "save the seal" campaign, from the time of his inflammatory article in 1964 to the adoption of amended regulations on seal-hunting in the spring of this year. By way of introduction he gives a brief history of sealing, with due credit to the brave Newfoundlanders who sailed the "wooden walls" of the nineteenth century.

This is a harrowing book, both in the eye-witness accounts of atrocities inflicted on live animals and in the charges of morally questionable shilly-shallying on the government's part.

The picture is one-sided, as is inevitable in an impassioned fight for a cause, but still I cannot subscribe to any of the reasons I can think of for contradicting Peter Lust's opinion that seal-hunting is cruel, shameful and unnecessary.

There are two main aspects of the argument. The first is the question of cruelty: "Has a Canadian the right to stand idly by and permit small, charming animals of comparatively high intelligence to be brutally beaten, skinned alive, wounded, tortured and treated in a manner forbidden by the criminal code of the land?"

Even if regulations succeed in lessening the cruelty, it is still debatable whether we have the right to carry out mass killings for what is after all only a luxury commodity.

The other argument, less emotionally charged but logically irrefutable, is that if seal-hunting continues at the rate of the last few years the extinction of the species is assured, possibly within the next decade.

Unless the Canadian public supports the campaign for strictly enforced controls, if not complete cessation, of the hunt, the bicentennial exhibits in 2067 may well have to prepare pictures and models to illustrate the long-extinct Canadian harp seal.

THE LAST SEAL PUP, THE STORY OF CANADA'S SEAL HUNT, by Peter Lust. Monreal, Harvest House. $2.50 cloth. $1.00 paper.

Papers, TV Blamed In Kidnap Shocker

Milton Shulman: KILL 3. Collins, 1967. 192 pp. $4.00. Reviewed by Anthony Jenkins.

Milton Shulman is a Canadian journalist who has had a distinguished and successful career as an award-winning theatre critic (for the London Evening Standard) and as a television columnist.

His inside knowledge of the British press and television has provided him with an authoritative and probing point of view and makes KILL 3 a novel of greater impact than the usual thriller.

Three young children are kidnapped, and the ransom note is sent to a firm of lawyers which, till that time, has had no connection with their mother. How responsible are the lawyers for what happens next? If they pay up, they will probably encourage similar extortions. If they refuse, three lives are at stake.

The plot, presumably suggested by the infamous Moors murders, moves at an exciting pace in a style that is economic and strikingly to the point.

The kidnapping releases a whole series of conflicts in those who are engaged in tracking down the criminals: emotions which continually threaten to blurr the fate of the three children involved. The investigations of the police are colored by professional jealousies.

Similarly, the lawyers at their board-room conferences are principally jockeying for position within the firm, till one wonders how long it will take them to realize that they are really arguing over three human lives. As for the criminals themselves, the paranoia of the psychotic kidnapper and the vapid and amoral acquiescence of his girl friend, whose search for "kicks" is answered by violent sex and the promise of easy money, are brilliantly described and these passions too are oddly ironically unrelated to the children whose lives they threaten.

Fascinating as the story is, the book's strength lies in its criticism of our news-hungry society, and Mr. Shulman deploys his characters less for their interest as personalities than for the way in which they illustrate the separation between the seriousness of the crime and the "news" that can be made out of it as the papers exploit the sentiment around the event and launch a publicity-loaded ransom fund.

Buoyed up with the courage of the three double gins that she has been given before the program, she bursts into an impassioned speech and finally breaks down into four-letter expletives. "It was good stuff until she broke down," said the director. "Better when she broke down. It was marvellous! Real heartrending stuff. Congratulate the boys on the floor for me, will you, Charles?"

The book ends enigmatically, and leaves us with the final implicit question: who were the guilty ones — the kidnappers or the public and its news-media who batten onto the sensationalism of such events?

Anthology

Why so pale and wan, fond lover?
    Prithee why so pale?
Will, when looking well can't move her,
    Looking ill prevail?
    Prithee why so pale?

Why so dull and mute, young sinner?
    Prithee why so mute?
Will, when speaking well can't win her,
    Saying nothing do't?
    Prithee why so mute?

Quit, quit, for shame; this will not move,
    This cannot take her;
If of herself she will not love,
    Nothing can make her:

—Sir John Suckling, 1609-42.

EXCITING STORIES FOR CHILDREN

Boy Rescued by Indian Friend

BLOOD BROTHERS, Doris Anderson, Macmillan, $3.25.
CONFESSIONS OF A TOE-HANGER, Christie Harris, McClelland and Stewart. $4.75.

Reviews by JUDITH TERRY

Three books for children by authors from Western Canada have recently been published.

In Blood Brothers Doris Andersen sets out to re-create the pioneer days of British Columbia by telling how a small boy, Nels Leirvik, and his family emigrate from Minnesota to the Bella Coola district in 1894.

The Indians are hostile to the establishment of this new community, but Nels makes friends with an Indian boy, Qwata. What befalls Nels when he accidentally arouses the anger of the Indians, and how Qwata helps him, provide the climax of the story. Mrs. Andersen tells the story well and simply.

From the beginning, when the pancakes sizzling on the hot stove in the turf cabin are so vividly described, the book is full of details which create a sense of warmth and community.

Indeed there is a pleasure in describing the simple life that one associates with Laura Ingalls Wilder who wrote so well of pioneer life in Wisconsin. Indian lore and custom are sympathetically explained — the 'potlatch' for example, which is so far removed from the white man's concept of order that it is outlawed.

It is certainly a book that young Canadians between 9-13 will enjoy, and by making them aware of the Indian and his heritage it can perhaps pave the way for an active conscience in the matter of our present treatment of those who once possessed this land.

One of Cliff Faulknor's earlier books is also valuable in this respect. The White Calf, which deservedly earned a children's book award, is the story of an Indian boy, Eagle Child. It is an immensely exciting adventure, and at the same time a sympathetic and knowledgeable rendering of the dignity and tradition of the Indians' former way of life.

Faulknor's latest book is The In-Betweener. The action is more commonplace, involving Chad Streeter with an old mine, robbers and gold, but it is almost as exciting, and has the same concise narrative power as the earlier book.

At the same time the characters are interesting and Chad's scapegrace personality involves him in plenty of lively, natural episodes that are full of humor: when he is discovered after illicit candy-making hiding in his secret place behind the chimney for example, or smoking string rolled in heavy school exercise paper during lunch break.

The story also convincingly explores the problems of father-son relationship, and the various elements of the plot work together to bring about a new understanding between Chad and his fahter.

Confessions of a Toe-Hanger, by Christie Harris, is the story, from small childhood to motherhood of 'Feeny,' a heroine who is based closely on one of the author's own children.

She is a 'toe-hanger,' that is to say, the member of the family who is haunted by feelings of inferiority and dependence, by her lack of 'refinement.' Drawn from life as it is, the book nevertheless reads just like women's magazine fiction: bright and artificial.

Feeny falls in and out of love in the conventional teenage way. There is a surfeit of boys, all described in a coy style which is hard put to it to differentiate between each one.

"Steve's line was as sleek as his hair, and went well with his dark sports jacket and strides."

Even Joe, the chosen one, exists only by virtue of his crewcut and horn-rimmed glasses. The atmosphere of a real place and real people, present in both the other books, is quite lacking.

HIGHLIGHT of book on Indian fables is the illustrations, according to review below. Writer George Clutesi is shown at work painting his own illustrations.

Indian Fables Re-Told By Writer, Painter

SON OF RAVEN, SON OF DEER, by George Clutesi; Gray's Publishing Ltd., Sidney; $4.75.

George Clutesi retells stories that have been handed down in his family for at least 400 years and illustrates them with beautifully simple and often amusing full-page drawings.

Mr. Clutesi's proclaimed intention is to acquaint non-Indian readers with the basic differences between their culture and that of his people.

The introduction, for example, contains a sketchy and ill-thought-out contrast between Indian fables and the white man's nursery rhymes, ironically showing just the kind of cultural misunderstanding the author hopes to combat.

Why, after all, should the Indian child reason any more than a white child "why go to the top of a hill to get water when in his world all water is found at the bottom of hills?"

Again, the tales are delightful and should make their points clearly without the explanations that sometimes intrude: "Finders keepers — losers weepers." Most of you, no doubt, have heard this old saying.

To the non-Indian way of life it means that if anyone finds anything it is his to keep, while the one who has lost it may as well cry because it is lost to him, even though someone may have found it. This did not apply to the Indian way of life."

When the stories simply tell the tales of Ko-ishin-mit, Son of Raven, Ah-tush-mit, Son of Deer, and many other creatures, they are charming and forceful and illustrate quite clearly the Indian's love and sympathy for all living things. They are stories to attract readers of all ages.

The book is a delight to look at.

The black and white illustrations are beautifully reproduced and there are bold red and black designs on the endpapers and title-page. Mr. Clutesi (a protege of Emily Carr) has recently completed a mural for the Indian pavilion at Expo; the book is worth having if only for these smaller-scale examples of his art.

Gray's publishing company is to be congratulated on a worthwhile centennial project and the Morris printing company on its usual dedicated job of fine printing. — J.C.

A Fascinating Man But Not Lovable

E. B. Osler, LA SALLE: Longmans Canada, 1967; 266pp.; Index; Maps; $9.50.

Reviewed by R. H. Roy

Usually he is lumped in among the French explorers of the 17th century who helped to expand the boundaries of New France and to establish the "French arc" from the St. Lawrence to the Gulf of Mexico.

This new biography, based primarily on secondary sources, does not throw any fresh light on the man, but it does present him, with the benefit of recent scholarship, as a fascinating individual, though by no means a lovable one.

Vain, arrogant, scheming, visionary, grasping — he was a fur trader first and an explorer by necessity rather than by choice.

He came to Quebec to make his fortune, and to this end he applied himself with unrelenting zeal. In an age when an entrepreneur had to have a friend at court to prosper, La Salle found in Frontenac the man he needed, provided he shared his profits.

They worked hand in glove to develop the Illinois area into a fur trade empire, and in doing so aroused the animosity of the Iroquois.

The fur trade could be profitable, but the risks were great and La Salle had more than his share of misfortune. Iroquois raids, harassment by rivals, lost cargoes, and desertions plagued his enterprises.

His imagination and drive, however, were rarely lacking, and on his last venture he managed to get royal backing for a hair-brained, ill-conceived scheme to colonize the area around the Gulf of Mexico and use it to attack the Spanish ports. Partly owing to his blunders he was murdered by his own men who felt La Salle was mentally unstable and would imperil their lives if he continued to command.

Mr. Osler has written a lively and interesting account of La Salle against the background of 17th century New France. High adventure among the Indians and incredible hardships on the frontier are found on every page. It should have a wide appeal.

Other books by E. B. Osler: LIGHT IN THE WILDERNESS a Canadian historical novel set in the Red River district in 1860.

THE MAN WHO HAD TO HANG, a biography of Louis Riel. (Also in a French edition.)

Indian Heritage Will Never Die

Christie Harris, celebrated children's author, has been awarded the Book of the Year for Children's Medal at the Canadian Library Association conference for her outstanding story of the Haida Indians, Raven's Cry. Published by McClelland and Stewart, this book tells of how the Haida culture bowed gracefully to the oncoming surge of the white men, yet how their noble chiefs left a heritage that will never die.

Struggle to Survive

KING OF BEASTS AND OTHER STORIES, by Charles G. D. Roberts. Edited by Joseph Gold; Ryerson Press; $4.50.

Reviewed by Mrs. T. Hurst

Charles G. D. Roberts (1860-1943) primarily known if at all as Canada's major "Confederation" poet, was also a writer of excellent prose, superbly illustrated here in Joseph Gold's selection of 14 animal stories. Of course the animal story has suffered a sad decline in reputation as serious literature but any disparaging preconceptions about the medium must be destroyed (and with wonder) by Roberts' fast-moving, suspenseful and happily combined realistic-romantic tales.

A staunch Roberts' spokesman, Gold (Associate Professor, University of Manitoba) has provided as well as a varied collection a sympathetic, penetrating and informative introduction which may well lead the reader into a deeper awareness of Roberts' aims and achievements.

The stories support Gold's interpretation of Roberts' philosophy as optimism despite the violence and universality of struggle.

Although they are potent with nineteenth century sentiments and backgrounds, the tales possess a quality of agelessness in their portrayal of animal life and natural processes. Their theme is the struggle for survival. Successfully, simultaneously but never monotonously, the players of life from Man proven King of Beasts, to the lowly crab at the ocean's bottom act out the primitive rites of existence their survival and security dependent on the endless varieties and degrees of the fundamental characteristics — strength, cunning, hunger, pride, sexual drives and so on.

"In the Deep of the Silences" begins the collection and well it might — for it illustrates perfectly the author's harmonizing craft. Here the struggle for survival concerns the three major characters of Eagle, Bear and Trout, each set in his respective medium by the first three parts of the story — the Air, Cedar Swamp (as Land), and Lake (Water), the three major Earth elements.

In part four the players converge: the Trout lustily devours a butterfly; the Eagle catches and carries the trout to the Swamp to consume it; the Bear attacks the Eagle and begins to eat the trout; the Eagle and Bear vie for the trout in a brief but fantastic struggle; the Bear hides in the dangerous thicket; the Eagle returns to his upper silence.

Chase, attack and retreat are the major moves in most of these wildlife tales.

"Mishi" is a pathetic tale of a tamed puma: "Aigrette," an ironic story of the destruction of birds for feathers to adorn ignorant and conceited women; "The Leader of the Run" recounts with growing pathos the deterioration of a noble salmon; "Winged Scourge of the Dark" is a fascinatingly gruesome account of the vicious owl; "In the World of Ghost-Lights" takes us to the sea floor with mysterious creatures involved in merciless, slow motion eat-and-be-eaten existence. All these are conveyed in a style beyond reproach — clear, precise, colorful. Despite the cut-throat violence, a pervading calm descends on all, in the end. The calm becomes part of the conflict.

Life does not become mechanical despite the recurring patterns, the familiar motivations, and the continuing background of air, land, and water.

Each animal is [illegible]ual, unique, despite his [illegible]e in any "scheme"; Fate often steps in to prevent what might have been an inevitable doom — Mustela the Marten's superior pursuer is stung to death by angry hornets; the merganser (duck) is saved when a fisherman's leader becomes caught in a pursuing hawk's mouth.

The story "King of Beasts," although not the best of the collection, is indicative of Roberts' aims and convictions.

"My boy has something to ask you," said the man from San Francisco. Our Maitre d', Leslie lent a willing ear.

"When will the roller rink be open?" asked the boy.

"I told him it's a squash court, but he won't listen," interjected the boy's father.

"Did those smart Alec salesmen send you?" asked Leslie. Father and son professed innocence and Leslie had to explain again how they badger him about our new construction.

"What you see now is the floor area of a new wing for conference rooms, sales meetings, club gatherings and private receptions." Then Leslie sent a message to the foreman asking him to make a small sign telling the story.

But a workman came in to say the foreman was roller skating.

New Orchestra Featured During Butchart Season

Another Special Opens Tonight

George Blackburn's A Button Is Missing is the final presentation of the season by Victoria Theatre Guild.

Directed by Edna Kowalchuk and featuring Ken Bostock, Nora Kellie and Jennifer Wyatt, it will run through next week ending Saturday.

Attending the premiere tonight will be Mayor Hugh Stephen and Mrs. Stephen and Dean Brian Whitlow and Mrs. Whitlow.

Curtain time is 8:15.

Another season of bright, delightful entertainment to which an extra special note of enchantment has been added this year, opens July 3 at Butchart Gardens.

The 1967 edition of the sunset revue, Just for Fun, leads off nine weeks in which music of all kinds, dance and puppet theatre add their special magic to one of the world's famous beauty spots.

The "something new" this year is the Butchart Gardens Concert Orchestra.

Specially formed from the ranks of Victoria Symphony, the 30-piece orchestra will play concerts on eight consecutive Tuesday evenings starting at 8:30 from July 4 to Aug. 22.

Programs will be mostly light classic and Broadway show music.

Two vocal soloists will appear on the programs soprano Ruth Champion and baritone Harry Elsdon.

One of the busiest people during the entire period will be band and orchestra leader Howard Denike. He will not only conduct the orchestral concerts but also the Monday-Wednesday-Friday performances of All for Fun.

This edition of the revue has been directed, designed and choreographed by Bebe Eversfield with Chet Lambertson designing and directing the musical score.

They are Margery Bridgeman, Gini Lefever, Murray McAlpine, Harry Elsdon, Pam Mezger, Robin Clarke, Dorothy Hosie, Roy Silver and Christopher Ross.

Piano accompanist is George Fairfield.

On Thursday evenings the skirl of the pipes and toe-twitching Gaelic rhythms will echo through the Gardens as the Pipes and Drums of the Canadian Scottish Regiment present a stage show and miniature tattoo.

Assisting artists will be popular Scottish baritone John Dunbar, Grace Lux, Murray McAlpine and Robin, Norman Winquist, Sheila Woolsey and Brenda Porter, Grace Timp, the Victoria Girls' Drill Corps, Adeline Duncan Scottish Dancers and Y Tumblers.

Completing the highly varied entertainment picture will be the Zingari Puppets on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings and the Grace Tuckey Puppets on Sunday afternoons.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

There is no doubt that when Jean and Mireille Angers first came to Victoria three years ago they felt like aliens.

Quebec-born and educated, they might as well have been Parisians setting foot for the first time in some British city.

In a conversation this week, the violinist recalled our first interview, reminding me how he had groped for English words, relying heavily on his wife who was somewhat more fluent, to keep the conversation going.

Several days ago Mr. Angers resigned his dual positions as concert master of Victoria Symphony Orchestra and faculty member of Victoria School of Music — regretfully.

On June 24 he leaves the city to return to the fully professional Quebec Symphony as assistant concert master.

"After three enjoyable years with the Victoria Symphony," he says, "it was a difficult decision to make."

Speaking now without effort and with considerable eloquence, Mr. Angers stresses his appreciation for the loyal support he has always received from his fellow musicians in the Symphony.

"Particularly during this past very difficult season, performing under several guest conductors, I have had the most wonderful co-operation from the musicians and from the manager, Arne Bo," he said.

The Angers were all set to stay here at least another year when the offer came from Quebec.

Government Backs Orchestra

The excellent contract terms offered Mr. Angers, include the assurance of three solo performances with the orchestra. He will also be a member of a chamber quartet within the orchestra, and have time to teach a limited number of students at either Laval University or the Quebec Conservatoire.

As Quebec City is a point of origin for CBC programs, he will also have the opportunity to play solo and chamber broadcast recitals.

If the CBC ever gets around to creating an outlet in Victoria it will have a striking effect on the growth of professional musical life in this city.

What turns one even more green however, is the knowledge that the Quebec and Montreal Symphonies are completely government supported.

For its two principal cities, Mr. Angers tells you, the provincial government wants the finest possible symphony orchestras and musicians are contracted for in major centres.

Such a circumstance makes it all the more impressive that 19-year-old Trudi Conrad, Mr. Angers' top Victoria student, has also been offered a contract with the Quebec Symphony.

Trudi, 1966 winner of the big Congress of Strings scholarship and a member of the Victoria Symphony violin section for three years, is naturally excited by her prospects.

Trudi wil leave for Quebec in August, after attending the summer workshop in chamber music at University of Victoria.

Mueller Found Opportunity

She is the second Victoria teen-ager to achieve a professional orchestra contract. The first was Vivienne Abbott, who at 18 went to the Rotterdam Philharmonic.

Both Trudi and Mr. Angers credit the excellent orchestral training received under the baton of Otto-Werner Mueller as playing a major part in such openings.

The talented Victoria-born violinist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Conrad, Bowker Ave., will, in the terms of her contract, work professionally for 20 hours a week, will receive her tuition free at the Quebec Conservatoire, studying with Mr. Angers.

She will stay with the Angers and says she plans to become bilingual as soon as possible.

A Canada Council grant has permitted Jean Angers to study during the summer with one of the great international violin teachers, Ivan Galamjan.

Plans now are that both he and Trudi will commute by air to New York for monthly sessions with the master.

Mireille Angers, a fine pianist, intends to return to a former teaching post at Marymount College, also regetfully leaving behind her students at Victoria School of Music, and already holder of a Master of Music degree, will study at Laval for her performer master's diploma.

One of the people from whom Mr. Angers most deeply regrets parting, is Robin Wood.

"Among the most rewarding work I have ever done has been the ensemble performance with Robin," he tells you. "He is a delightful associate and a marvellous musician."

Yes, Jean Angers leaves this city with many regrets. "It is just that I have to think of what is best for me for the future," he explains, almost sadly.

But he feels that he has acquired an enriching understanding of life in English-speaking Canada.

"I came to Victoria a French-Canadian," he says. "I am going back to Quebec, a Canadian."

Gala Show Features New Group

Next Saturday at McPherson Playhouse, a June Gala Show will mark the debut of a new band sound, the V.I. Crumpets.

The four players in the group have been in rehearsal together for about two months and anyone who would like an unofficial preview has only got to get within earshot of the patio at St. Mary's Priory, 567 Goldstream Avenue.

That is where, on many evenings, the group rehearses for the coming show, which is being sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary in aid of the Priory.

Art DeMeulles, lead guitar, is a brother of one of the members of the former EXL's, all of whom were killed in a car accident near Campbell River several months ago.

The EXL's had been engaged to appear in the June Gala and it was in part to honor this and other engagements of his brother's group that DeMeulles was moved to form the V.I. Crumpets.

Gary has written 120 songs, ballads, folk rock and rock and roll numbers. One of his songs, This Morning, he will sing in the show.

Indian Music Study Topic

Native Indian songs, collected and transcribed over a period of 21 years by Dr. Ida Halpern, Vancouver musicologist, will be featured at a unique workshop on music of native cultures.

The workshop will be held at Totem Park Residence of University of British Columbia, June 19-23.

Dr. Halpern, chairman of the workshop, will draw on her collection of 300 recordings of B.C. Indian songs.

The workshop is sponsored by UBC Extension Department, the Canadian Folk Music Society and Simon Fraser University. Its theme is 'Native Indian music of the Canadian West Coast and its relationship to the indigenous music of other cultures."

NEEDS PUNCHY NAME

Toughest Tug Coming

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A New Westminster shipyard has begun building a $1.2 million mystery ship for Island Tug and Barge Ltd., now in the second year of a $4 million expansion program.

The mystery is that no one knows what the 132-foot deep sea towboat will be called. Speculation has it the christening will be in keeping with the company's tradition of prefixing each name with "Island."

Kent

But there have been notable exceptions to this rule, too—world famous Sudbury and Sudbury II. Sudbury was retired last year, leaving Sudbury II the most powerful vessel in the fleet.

When No Name is launched in about 10 months, it will claim the title and be the most powerful tug in the North Pacific with 3,600 horsepower.

ITB marine superintendent Fred Skinner said Star Shipyards will lay the vessel's keel next month, although preliminary work has commenced.

Construction should be completed in March of 1968 and after sea trials the ship is expected to be delivered to the fleet in May.

A main feature of construction will be the Kort nozzle system of propulsion that is expected to give the tug a maximum pull of 50 tons and a free running speed of 14½ knots.

The single screw will be driven by a 20-cylinder GM marine engine, series 645.

Tests on a model were conducted in the Dutch tank testing station at Wageningen by Vancouver naval architect Robert Allan.

Although 82 feet shorter than Sudbury II, the new ship will have a deep stern draft of 18 feet, three feet more than Sudbury, but at 32 feet breadth will be eight feet narrower than the flagship.

Comparing power, the new tug will have 600 more horsepower than Sudbury II and 25 per cent more thrust than vessels of similar size on this coast.

To be used principally in coastal towing of large commercial bulk material and log barges, the ship will be manned by a crew of 10 and will be prepared to make sudden salvage voyages into the Pacific.

Her cruising range will be about 50 days between fuelling.

Sogemines Ltd., a holding company whose subsidiary McAllister Towing controls Island Tug., expects a 20 per cent increase in earnings this year, largely on the strength of its chemical and cement interests.

International Utilities Corp., which recently bought virtually the entire stock of Vancouver Island Transportation Co. Ltd., shows substantial gains for the first quarter.

The Coachlines and a Quebec steel works both were bought after March 31, which will be reflected in the second quarter report.

IUC's quarterly report says 96 per cent of VICL stock was obtained and that as a revenue earner the transportation company should bring in $2.3 million or more per annum from its 641 miles of bus routes and taxi business.

Standard Structural Steel Ltd., of Montreal, was the other firm secured through purchase of 58.3 per cent of outstanding stock. Its 1966 sales grossed $11.6 million.

Net earnings including capital gains for the first three months of the year amounted to $5.534 million, against $5.483 million in the same quarter last year.

Net capital gains of $98,000 were down from $339,400.

Per share earnings were 74 cents, one cent better than last year, and dividend was 30 cents compared with 25 cents the year before.

Commenting this week on air travel fares, Canadian Pacific Airlines president J. C. Gilmer said there is no drop in domestic rates in sight.

Questioned at the Empress Hotel where he met with other CPA executives, Mr. Gilmer said the efficiency of jet travel had resulted in reduced air fares overseas.

But domestically, Canada has not the population density coupled with long non-stop flights needed to reduce fares further.

Length of the average scheduled flight in Canada is only 300 miles, he said.

But all the same, he pointed out, there have been no price increases since the late 40s or early 50s, and few commodities can claim stable or lower prices in that time.

First Canadian branch of an established U.S. investment company will be located in Vancouver. Blyth Canada Ltd. has an application before the B.C. securities branch for approval.

Unlike many American companies entering Canada, Blyth chose the bustling west rather than the financial centres of Ontario and Quebec.

It reflects a growing American enthusiasm for Canadian risk enterprises such as the B.C.-Yukon-North West Territories mining industry offers these days.

J. E. Macdonald is president. Visiting Friday to see the new office were company executives from New York, San Francisco and Seattle.

Sparwood Proposal Defeated

SPARWOOD, B.C. (CP) — A plan to move the 1,900 residents of the coal dust-covered communities of Natal and Michel to pollution-free Sparwood has apparently become the victim of expanding industry.

Crows Nest Industries Ltd. and Kaiser Steel Corp. plan strip mining and coal processing within 4,000 feet of the proposed new townsite in eastern British Columbia.

"Everyone is in a state of shock," said Reeve Orlando Ungaro of Sparwood. "We just don't know where we're going, or why."

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today the news should not have come as a surprise to Sparwood.

He said it has always been a possibility that a different townsite would be needed.

"As a matter of fact, this was pointed out from time to time by our department," said Mr. Campbell.

FUNDS ALLOCATED

"This will not interfere with the purchasing of the old site."

Funds have been allocated by the federal, provincial and municipal governments to buy property in Natal and Michel before relocation of residents.

Sparwood was regarded as their future home by the residents of Natal and Michel, where 15 men were killed and 10 injured in an explosion at Crows Nest's Balmer North coal mine April 3.

Crows Nest and Kaiser want to develop new mines and processing plants at Sparwood—three miles from Natal and Michel—to fulfill contracts with Japanese interests for huge coal exports.

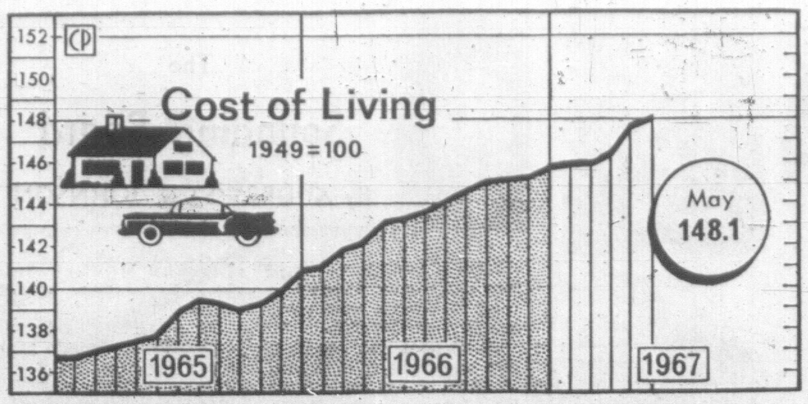
"Conditions at Sparwood could eventually be worse than they are now at Natal-Michel," said a Kaiser spokesman.

The apparent demise of Sparwood is the latest in a series of shocks for the tiny East Kootenay community.

First was the death of seven people in an Easter weekend car crash. The mine explosion followed.

"I can't find words to express how the people feel," said Reeve Ungaro.

Officials of the two companies said J. Everett Brown, deputy municipal affairs minister, will study possible new township sites and is hopeful a report will be completed July 15.



INDEX UP—The consumer price index increased three-tenths of a point between April and May. All prices except food and clothing increased. The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, rose to 148-1 at the beginning of May from 147.8 at the first of April. (CP Newsmap)

Pacific Salmon Outpace Lobster As Top Fishing Dollar Earner

OTTAWA (CP)—The Pacific salmon outpaced the Atlantic lobster in 1966 to become the Canadian fishing industry's top dollar earner.

The federal fisheries department's magazine, Fisheries of Canada, reports the lobster's slip last year into third place among the most valuable species. Cod occupied second place.

The report shows that landings of fish and shellfish increased in 1966 for the sixth straight year, setting a record of close to 2,600,000,000 pounds.

The 1966 catch represented gross earnings to fishermen of some $165,000,000 also a record. Landings in 1965 totalled 2,400,000,000 pounds valued at $158,000,000.

More of the catch was exported than sold domestically, with the U.S. remaining the best customer by taking some 70 per cent of all exports.

The 1966 climb in landings was largely the result of a heavier Atlantic Coast catch, particularly of herring and groundfish. The Atlantic provinces landed a total of 1,900,000,000 pounds of fish and groundfish —almost 75 per cent of Canada's total catch.

Pacific salmon catches in British Columbia were worth about $37,000,000 to fishermen, compared with Atlantic cod valued at $25,000,000 and Atlantic lobsters at $24,000,000.

Other valuable species: Pacific halibut $11,000,000; Atlantic scallops, Atlantic haddock and Atlantic flatfishes, each worth $8,000,000; Atlantic herring $6,000,000; and Pacific herring $5,000,000.

In quantities of landings cod remained supreme at 564,000,000 pounds, down from 570,000,000 in 1965. Atlantic herring followed at 550,000,000 pounds. If Atlantic and Pacific herring are combined the total reaches 856,000,000 pounds—about one-third of Canada's total landings.

Nova Scotia climbed into first place among all provinces for 1966 landings, boosting its 1965 catch by 15 per cent to almost 700,000,000 pounds. Herring and groundfish accounted for most of the increase.

Newfoundland's catch increased to 665,000,000 pounds, up nearly 75,000,000 from 1965, with a return to fishermen of $25,400,000, up from $23,700,000 a year earlier.

The combined catch in the Maritimes passed 1,000,000,000 pounds, although returns to fishermen declined by almost $2,000,000. The most significant feature was a rise in the herring catch to 450,000,000 pounds from 330,000,000 in 1965.

On the Pacific Coast, the estimated value of all fish and shellfish landed by B.C. fishermen reached an all-time high of $60,000,000, even though total landings fell below 600,000,000 pounds for the first time since 1960.

B.C. 1966 landings declined almost 70,000,000 pounds from 1965, due mainly to a drop in herring catches of 140,000,000 pounds from 1965. Salmon catches rose to 153,000,000 pounds from 90,000,00 pounds in 1965.

B.C. fishermen tripled their catch of pinks, more than doubled chum landings and boosted the sockeye catch by 50 per cent. The salmon catch value rose to $39,000,000, up about $14,000,000 from a year earlier.

The market value of B.C. fisheries products in 1966 is estimated at $115,000,000, compared with $90,000,000 in 1965.

The province regained leadership as the province with the greatest landed value of fisheries products—held by Nova Scotia in 1965—with the record return of $60,000,000.

B.C. Bank Opens First Branch

VANCOUVER (CP) — President Frank Trebell of the new Bank of British Columbia has announced the bank Monday will open its first branch in the downtown area.

The office in the Bentall Building, 999 West Pender St., is to serve as a public inquiry centre during the initial share-offering period which begins June 15.

Mr. Trebell said no bank business, such as accepting deposits or making loans will be done. The bank will not receive a certificate to operate until the share-offering period has ended and a successful application has been made to the federal government.

Next week the bank will mail a brochure explaining the banks operation and inviting participation in the share-offering. The brochure will go to 600,000 households in the province.

Mr. Trebell and a staff of about 15 will work in the headquarters, which will be an open area with no private offices.

The president said it would be premature to call the building the banks first permanent location, but it might become one of the branches.

The bank's initial offering of 3,000,000 capital shares at $25 each will open next Thursday and close July 15. It is being made only in the four western provinces.

A bank official said more than 700 investment dealers are expected to attend a breakfast in Vancouver Thursday to hear Premier Bennett speak.

Mr. Trebell will also address the meeting, then fly to Victoria to speak at a luncheon meeting of the Victoria Chamber of Com-Vancouver Chamber of Commerce Monday at noon.

Head table guests will be officials of B.C. chartered banks, trust company men and officials of the Investment Dealers Association and the B.C. Bond Dealers Association.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

War Tremors Shake Stocks

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—War in the Middle East sent tremors through the business and financial world this past week.

First to be affected were the stock markets, then airlines and shipping and the oil industry.

Prices tumbled Monday on stock exchanges in New York, London, Paris, Tokyo, Montreal and Toronto after hostilities erupted between Israel and the Arab nations.

The New York Stock Exchange was rocked by one of its most sever losses in early trading and then came back somewhat.

Tuesday and Wednesday the market more than recovered its Monday loss.

U.S. investors were encouraged by reports of Israeli victories which, they felt, lsessened the chances of United States involvement.

Brokers said most of the early selling was by small investors while the big institutions stood pat and then moved in to pick up bargains.

OILS HIT HARD

Production was closed down in Iraq, Libya, Saudi Arabia and the Arabian Gulf sheikhdoms, shutting off output of about 7,000,000 barrels of oil daily.

A ceasefire agreement reached late in the week gave promise of lifting the threat of an oil shortage for Western Europe, Japan, Australia and New Zealand.

The Middle East furnished roughly one-third of the world's oil supply. Western Europe imports more than 80 per cent of its needs or 9,000,000 barrles daily from the Middle East and North Africa.

There was little likelihood the war would cause an oil shortage in the United States because domestic production, along with imports from sources other than the Middle East, would have been sufficient.

There were preliminary discussions in the United States about boosting its production to help meet the needs of other countries.

The U.S. commerce department reported this week that American business outlays for expansion and modernization are not rising as fast as previously projected.

A new survey indicated that for all of 1967 outlays are expected to rise to a record $62,400,000,000 but the gain from the previous high of $60,630,000,000 set in 1966 would be 2.9 per cent projected earlier.

RECORD INDEX

The western oil index reached an all-time high of 164.60 Thursday.

Uranium issues, which have made steady advances for several months, continued the trend. Denison rose 5⅛ to 74⅝, Roman Corp. 2¼ to 21, Rio Algom 1⅝ to 34⅝ and Preston 1¼ to 21⅛.

On the industrial side, Clairtone lost ¼ to 10⅞ after the company president Peter Munk announced the price of some 1968 color television models will be reduced by up to $50.

Molson Breweries A rose ½ to 24 following a report of record sales and profits for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1967.

SPECS LOSE

Among speculatives, Brunswick lost 5 cents to 6.15 after reporting a profit of 76 cents a share for 1966 compared with $1.55 for 1965.

PGE Explorations gained 23 cents to 1.05 on news that its operations in the Coppermine River area of the Northwest Territories are about to begin.

On index, industrials rose 2.84 to 166.10, golds 2.06 to 173.64, base metals 4.12 to 99.64 and western oils 8.79 to 161.70. Volume for the week was 12,840,665 shares compared with 10,941,999 traded last week.

At Montreal, industrials rose 2.59 to 164.79, utilities 1.45 to 147.87, papers 2.09 to 111.17 and baks dropped .24 to 127.10. Volume for the week was 6,621,806 shares compared with 4,773,886 traded last week.

Labor Unrest Due to Loss Of Faith in Law

OTTAWA (CP) — Growing militancy in labor unions and labor's loss of confidence in the fairness of the law were cited Thursday as two reasons for the current wave of industrial unrest in Canada.

John Crispo, political science professor at the University of Toronto, and Harry Arthurs of Toronto's Osgoode Hall law school, in a presentation to a joint meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association and the Association of Canadian Law Teachers, said there is also reason to believe the unrest may be simply part of the price of prosperity.

They said it appeared impossible for any government to put into effect policies that could ensure price and wage stability and at the same time maintain full employment.

Although labor has historically little respect for the law there is also a widespread conviction among new militants of the union movement they "have little to gain and much to lose if they comply with the law."

The conviction is backed up by procedural abuses in applying injunctions against picketing and the openly expressed antipathy to labor by some judges in ruling on industrial disputes.

CANNOT RETALIATE

The paper states it is possible for an employer to desregard a collective agreement to implement a technological change, but the worker is forbidden to retaliate during the lifetime of the agreement.

Mr. Crispo said a wildcat strike resulting from such a situation is frequently directed as much against the union leadership for their inability to act as it is against the employer.

Centralizing of power, both in unions and management, made it more difficult for a worker to feel his grievance was being handled properly. The resulting breakdown of communication left a gap between the union leadership and the membership.

Mr. Arthurs pointed out that today's educational opportunities robbed the unions of the leadership they used to gain from young intelligent men forced to work in a factory because they were unable to continue their education.

Mr. Crispo and Mr. Arthurs concluded with a challenge to unions to remain democratic in the sense of being responsive to the wishes of their members and responsible to society at large.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES HIT BACK AT MUTUAL FUNDS

By JANE BECKER

TORONTO (CP)—Life insurance policies backed partly by common stock earnings are the newest insurance company weapon to deflect the mutual funds' charge for the investor's dollar.

Four Canadian insurance companies now are offering equity-backed policies. Most have been in effect only a few months, but the companies say already they account for about five per cent of their total life insurance sales.

The guaranteed dollar return ranges from nothing to a fixed amount of insurance plus the value of the policy - holder's share of the equity investment.

Henry Jackman, chairman of Empire Life Insurance Co. of Kingston, Ont., says equity policies are devised to give "the best protection possible against the declining purchasing power of the dollar."

But he admits a "great deal of money" is going into mutual funds, and life insurance companies want to offer investors something comparable.

Mutual funds have grown spectacularly in the last 17 years. Their assets have increased 50 times and now amount to $2,100,000,000—equal to about 16 per cent of total life insurance assets in Canada.

Although they do not promise a fixed-dollar return to the investor, as conventional insurance does, mutual funds pay dividends and their shares can be cashed in any time. Some have doubled in value during the last five years.

J. A. Tuck, managing director of the Canadian Life Insurance Association, says equity - based insurance is "obviously a growing thing," sparked by increasing competition with all forms of savings.

Canadian companies offering equity-based policies are Empire Life, National Life Assurance Co. of Canada, Norwich Union Life Insurance Society and Seaboard Life Insurance Co.

Empire offers a return of $50-a-month insurance for each $600 investment for protection to age 65. At that time the policyholder may use his equity investment for a paid-up life policy equal to about 1½ times its market value.

If he dies before then, his beneficiary can take the insurance and equity investment in a lump sum or use the insurance to continue the equity fund, payable when he or she is 65.

INVESTS RESERVES

National Life charges premiums equal to a fixed participation, ordinary life policy, but invests half the reserves in common stocks, rather than the mortgages and bonds which back other policies.

No fixed dollar return is guaranteed, but an annual dividend is calculated based on the increase in earnings of equity policy funds over the company's general earnings. The dividend is used to buy more life insurance.

If equity fund earnings decline the dividend is negative and the policyholder's insurance decreases for that year.

Self-Propelled Railway Barge To Serve Island

A self-propelled rail barge of 2,700 deadweight tons is to be built for MacMillan Bloedel Limited.

The barge will carry 26 forty-foot rail cars, four abreast. It is expected that the keel will be laid this August and delivery taken at the end of February, 1968.

The barge will be operated by MB's subsidiary, Kingcome Navigation Limited. It will be used mainly between Vancouver, Harmac and Powell River, carrying chlorine and caustics to the mills and returning with newsprint, although pulp and lumber may also be loaded.

The first self-propelled rail barge to be operated by Kingcome, it has been designed for seven days a week operation, and will carry 11,000 cars a year. Its normal operating speed will be 14 knots.

With an overall length of 356 feet, moulded beam of 56 feet and a draft of 12 feet nine inches, it will be powered by two 1,550 h.p. Werkspoor diesel engines.

Features of the barge include a bow thruster, controllable pitch propellers, full wheelhouse control and a complete range of electronic navigation equipment.

Cars will enter and leave through the bow and a special ballasting system will be incorporated to facilitate loading and unloading. The barge will also have a reinforced stern which will act as a permanent bumper. Crew's quarters will be located amidships and the engine room aft.

As yet unnamed, the barge will be built by Allied Shipbuilders of North Vancouver under the direction of MacMillan Bloedel's Central Engineering Department.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

A man's musing:

KAPPING IT OFF . . . If Joe Kapp is the thinking man's quarterback it didn't show in his recent dealings with the B.C. Lions . . . Kapp had only to sit on the pact he signed under the table with Houston Oilers until his contract with the Leos expired May 31 . . . But "Go Big" Joe couldn't contain a good thing ($10,000 to sign plus a $50,000 two-year no-cut deal) and the Lions shot him down cold . . . With Kapp sitting out this season sans salary the Lions' No. 1 QB may be Pete Ohler, the poet-painter . . . Stop that giggling: all the Lions have to fill the spot are Paul Brothers and Tom Roth, two collegians who have never played pro ball and Chick Graning and Steve Shaefer who play defence excellently . . .

If Ohler makes the grade (if you think the Lions don't think he can you don't know the healthy bonus they gave him to sign) Victoria Steelers will be in the market for a coach-quarterback . . . The Lions applied some heat to the Steelers over the Kapp fuss . . . The Leos imagined that the visit to Victoria and Vancouver of former B.C. coach Wayne Robinson (now an aide with Houston) was a pressure play to get Kapp . . . Says the Steelers' prime minister William Bowes: "Just coincidence" . . . Even without his Lions' pay-cheque, Kapp shouldn't go short . . . He peddles peanut butter, motorcycles and greasy kid stuff, invested a large chunk in a mid-town (Vancouver) apartment block . . .

The rumor machines have been spewing out masochistic innuendoes about Lions' coach David Skrien . . . one source close to a source close to a keyhole claims that Skrien must go, like RIGHT NOW . . . Another popular proclamation is that Skrien has three games to produce or walk the plank in '67 . . . Either way it should be a dandy of a training camp at Royal Roads opening in three weeks . . . When Skrien announced the choice of RR over Courtenay at a press conference, the noble leader noted its isolation and said, "Imagine — we'll have 10 days under perfect working conditions to get ready" . . . Voice from the rear shrilled, "No you won't—would you believe seven days?" . . . "You've made a mistake," Skrien replied, thumbing off the days on a calendar. . . .

"How do you get seven? . . . "Easy," replied the voice . . . "You start with 10 but it will take you three days to put down the mutiny" . . . Which is another way of saying not all the Leos are enamored with the idea of leaving Courtenay where they had to pass four "licensed premises" between field and motel . . . Tom Brown, the Lions' middle linebacker has a name for Royal Roads as a site — "Belsen-by-the-Sea." . . . All the ink the Lions have received from l'affair Kapp must have gone to Herb Capozzi's head . . . The former B.C. general manager (now holding the same spot with Vancouver's Royal Canadians of the United Soccer Association) says he is "Seriously" thinking of inviting former Leo halfback Willie Fleming to play goal for the soccer Canadians . . .

IDOL GOSSIP . . . Tall Darrell Lorimer used to dream of playing basketball for Canada . . . This week Lorimer received a letter from Willowdale, Ont., home of Reuben Richman, coach of Canada's national team . . . Richman put it on the line: "Come to the national training camp at University of Calgary, June 26-July 19, all expenses paid" . . . But when the Canadian team plays in the Pan-American Games at Winnipeg (July 22-Aug. 6) Lorimer won't wear the Maple Leaf . . . A father (two girls) and a businessman, centre Lorimer sent Reuben his regrets: "Sorry, but due to the pressure of business" . . . With all the emphasis on soccer at the christening of the "new" Royal Athletic Park somebody's slip was showing when it came to drafting the VIP lists . . . Nobody thought to invite Dr. Dave Turner, Canada's soccer player of the half-century or Pat Mulcahy, Victoria rep on the B.C. Soccer Commission for 20 years. . . .

LIFE IN THE WONDERFUL U.S.A.: Sidney Martin, the talented young trainer who went south in search of his fortune (he conditions for Colin Campbell at Hollywood Park) tells about the chap police found laying beside the road with 32 bullet holes in him.

"According to police," Martin says, "it was the worst case of suicide they ever saw."

Support Is Juniors' Key

Several Victorians are intent on stick-handling into a proposed new British Columbia Junior "A" Hockey League, but how they fare will depend on two other important facets of the game.

Like speed and "experienced" support.

Speed is necessary because franchise applications must be submitted to the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association by the July 15 deadline.

The league is expected to start with eight teams. Besides Victoria, other franchise candidates include Penticton, Kelowna, Kamloops, Vernon, New Westminster, Selkirk (Castlegar) College, Grand Forks, Vancouver and North Shore.

But while haste is most important, one of the prime backers of Victoria's junior team placed greatest emphasis on support.

"We've got to have support," said Bob Reid, former president of the Victoria Minor Hockey Association and a prominent member of the group wanting to bring junior hockey to Victoria.

Reid disclosed that "everything was set" for a single sponsor to take over. "Unfortunately, these arrangements fell through."

"We can still submit an acceptable application," he added, "but we have to find out if Victoria will support junior hockey.

"We need a few prominent Victorians to give us the lift we need."

Already on "the team" are former WHL professional Doug Anderson; travel agent Bill Ferguson; lawyer George Jones, accountant Ross Perry, a former Moose Jaw Canuck executive; accountant Walter Large, and Hank Klassen, also a former VMHA executive.

Ferguson, Anderson and Perry all concurred with Reid that "support" is most essential.

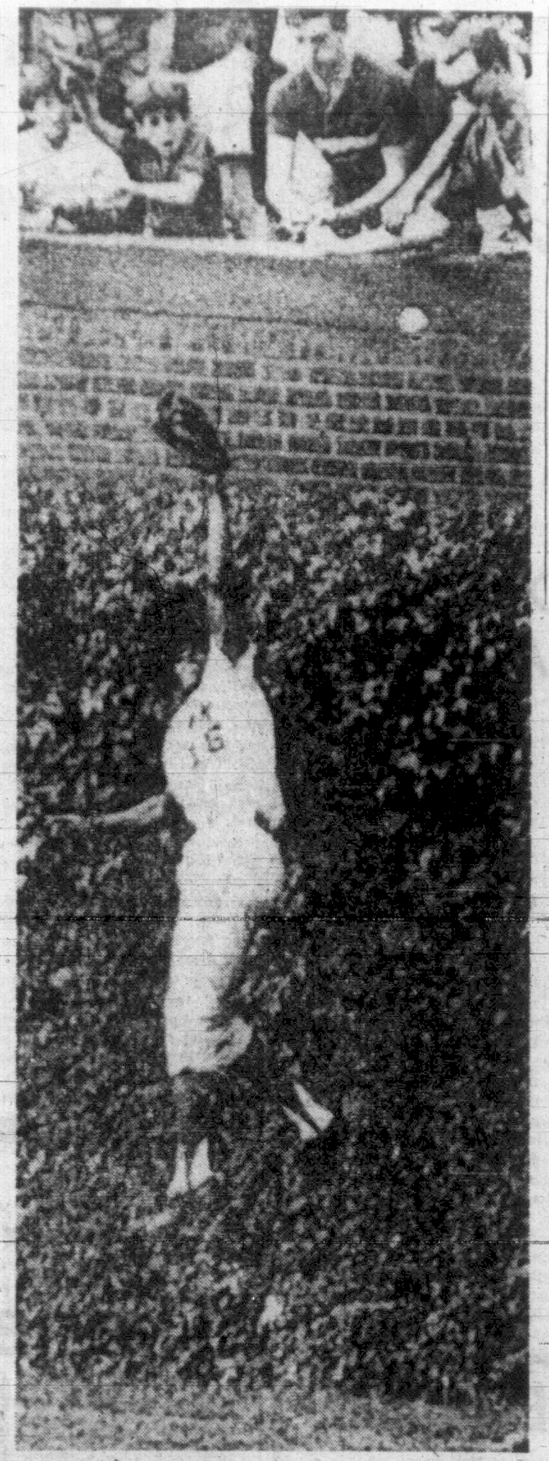
Three basic conditions exist for franchise applications to be successful—evidence of the availability of players; a contract with an arena, and proof of adequate financing.

The boosters attending an unofficial get together Friday felt the team could "get off the ground" with an initial outlay of $15,000 to $20,000.

It was estimated that maximum operating costs for the season would be about $32,500.

"We have to make our move this year," said Reid. "If we don't get in this year, we may never get in."

Reid said an attempt will be made to enlist the aid of leading businessmen and an organizational meeting to name an executive will be held "as soon as possible."



UMP HAD LAST WORD

Storm blew up in Chicago's Wrigley Field Friday after vain attempt by outfielder Tom Reynolds of New York Mets to grab long drive by Adolfo Phillips. Chicago manager Leo Durocher claimed it should be home run. Mets argued it should be double because fan touched ball. Umpire figured it should be triple—and you know who had last word. Hit tied score in eighth inning and Cubs went on to win National League game 6-5 in ninth. (AP Wirephoto)

Welcome for Birds And Ermer Gets It

By Associated Press

Baltimore Orioles wasted no time teaching Cal Ermer the facts of American League life.

Ermer, new manager of Minnesota Twins, climbed into a uniform only 20 minutes before the game time Friday night and then watched the Twins absorb an 11-2 loss at the hands of the Orioles.

Frank Robinson slammed a three-run homer, his 17th of the year, and Boog Powell had a three-run shot as Baltimore jolted four Minnesota pitchers for 14 hits.

In other American League action, Kansas City Athletics shut out Cleveland Indians twice, 2-0 and 6-0; Boston Red Sox nipped Washington Senators 8-7, New York Yankees pushed a run across in the 10th inning to edge Chicago White Sox 2-1 and California Angels blanked Detroit Tigers 4-0.

MELE DISMISSED

Ermer was named manager of the floundering Twins Friday afternoon after president Cal Griffith dismissed Sam Mele.

He flew in from Denver, where he had managed the Twins' Pacific Coast League team for the last 2½ years, and made it in time for Friday night's game.

He had hardly found a spot for himself in the Minnesota dugout before the Orioles hopped on Dean Chance for three unearned runs in the first inning.

Robinson doubled home a run in the fifth and then put the game out of reach with his three-run homer in the sixth. Powell's three-run shot in the eighth climaxed the Orioles' assault.

MUM BUT NOISY

Pittsburgh Pirates are close mouthed about their closed door meeting Wednesday, but since then they have been making plenty of noises at bat and on the mound.

It rose to a crescendo Friday night when the revived Pirates exploded for 23 hits as they punished Philadelphia Phillies 16-1 for their second straight victory since the locker room get-together.

They were not the only ones with plenty to say at bat Friday night. The National League-leading Cincinnati Reds, a noisy bunch all season, hammered Houston Astros 10-7 with six runs in the seventh inning.

In other games, St. Louis Cardinals edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2, Atlanta Braves beat San Francisco Giants 5-3 and Chicago Cubs slipped by New York Mets 6-5.

WERE MEEK HITTERS

The Pirates, the best-hitting team in the league in 1966, were a meek bunch until their players-only meeting. They had lost five of seven games, stood only three games over .500 and had fallen to fourth place after being picked by many to win the pennant.

With manager Harry Walker and the coaching staff omitted, the Pirates, who held a similar caucus two years ago and a few more last season, presumably met to talk over their problems and bring their gripes into the open.

Friday night, every starter except pitcher Billy O'Dell, who scattered eight hits for his fifth victory in seven decisions, had at least two hits. Manny Mota and Gene Alley each had four.

Bill Mazeroski drove in four runs with two singles and a sacrifice fly and Willie Stargell, Alley and Jerry May accounted for three each as the Pirates slugged 20 singles, one double and two triples.

Floyd's Hopes Take Beating

Floyd Patterson's hopes of winning the world heavyweight crown for a third time may not be exactly dead today but they must be far from healthy.

The 32-year-old, former two-time champ continued his comeback bid Friday night at Los Angeles and ran into more than he expected from young Jerry Quarry, a bomb-throwing Californian ranked No. 10 among the world's heavyweights.

Patterson was decked twice in the second round and had to wage a bloody slugging battle to gain a 10-round draw that was greeted with derision by about 20,000 fans, who were solidly behind the 22-year-old Quarry.

While Floyd is hoping to regain the title, another heavyweight was also doing some hoping today. Cassius Clay, stripped of the world crown when he refused induction into the armed services, was appealing for reinstatement at a meeting of the World Boxing Association.

Hayden Covington, Clay's lawyer, was granted a hearing at the meeting, called mainly to arrange an elimination tournament to select a new champion.

Gymnastics, which usually attract only small crowds in North America, have blossomed into big-time prominence at Winnipeg. An unexpected and overwhelming demand for tickets has forced the Pan-American Games Society to switch the site for the final night of gymnastics competition.

Men's and women's individual finals will be held Friday, July 28, in the 11,000-seat Winnipeg Arena instead of the 1,300-seat St. James Arena, where the remainder of the five-day competion will be staged.

A spokesman says 6,500 requests for the gymnastics finals already have been received.

England's Netters Split With Spanish

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brazil clinched a spot in the finals of the Group B European zone Davis Cup tennis tournament Friday, winning the doubles and taking an unbeatable 3-0 lead over Italy in their semi-final match.

South Africa took a 2-0 lead over France in the other Group B semi-final at Paris.

England and Spain split their opening singles in Eastbourne, England, in the Group A semi-finals. The winner goes against Russia, which already had clinched against Chile.

The Russians took a 3-0 advantage when they won the doubles match Thursday. The concluding singles matches at Moscow were rained out Friday.

In Naples, Italy, Brazil's Thomas Koch and Edison, Mandarine beat Giordana Maioli and Vittorio Crottas 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 in the decisive doubles match.

Bob Hewitt and Cliff Drysdale swept the opening singles for South Africa at Paris. Hewitt beat Francois Jauffret, 6-1, 6-1, 4-6, 9-7 and Drysdale stopped Pierre Darmon 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

Manuel Santana of Spain, the current Wimbledon king, outlasted Mike Sangster of England 8-10, 6-3, 5-7, 9-7, 6-0 to gain a split of the opening singles in England. Roger Taylor beat Jose Arilla 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 in the first match.

Last End Settles Malkin Cup Final

After trailing most of the game and two down going into the last end, the Burnside trio of Andy Dickie, Bill Cruickshank and John McMillan scored three shots to defeat club-mates Fred Hall, Bill Turner and Rev. D. J. Gillies 14-13 in the final of the Malkin Cup lawn bowling competition, played at Burnside.

Following is the draw for the Whittaker Cup for mixed triples, starting Monday at 7 p.m.:

PARKS PROGRAM

Registration Time For Young Netters

Registrations start Monday for youngsters who wish to participate in the third annual city parks tennis classes.

Attendance is expected to reach a record high for the series of instructional leasons, which start on July 3 at Beacon Hill and continue for six weeks before winding up with a mammoth tournament.

Young players of 11 years or older may register for the classes in the parks department office at city hall next week, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Similar programs are being conducted at the same time in Esquimalt and Saanich, where youngsters may obtain registration information from their respective municipal halls.

Goalby's Temper Frays When His Shots Spray

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) Bob Goalby fired a one-over-par 73 Friday for a 142 total to share the halfway lead in the $100,000 Buick open golf tournament with Tommy Aaron.

Goalby led the first round with a three-under-par 69 over Warwick Hills' 7,126 yards. He was intent on building that lead as he went out in a two-under-par 34 Friday.

Then disaster struck. His short game fell to pieces.

Goalby appeared to be in the driver's seat until he tackled the seventh hole on his incoming nine after playing the back nine first.

RAPS CADDY

He pushed his second shot to the back fringe of the green, came out badly and three-putted after rebuking the crowd for not standing still.

On the eighth, he chided his caddy for not staying close enough to him. On the ninth he appeared to be headed for further trap troubles. But luck smiled on him as he dropped a backdoot, fast-rising 12-foot putt to salvage a tie for the lead.

142—Bob Goalby, Tommy Aaron.
143—Kermit Zarley, Terry Dill, Frank Beard.
144—Julius Boros, Bert Yancey, Al Geiberger, Tom Weiskopf, Bruce Champton, Hugh Royer, George Archer, Bob McCallister.
145—Phil Rodgers, Jay Dolan, Homero Blancas.
146—Bob Stanton, Jerry Steelsmith, Kel Nagle, Larry Zigler, Don Massengale, R. H. Sikes, Charles Sifford, Steve Spray.

INTREPID AGAIN SHOWS CLASS IN YACHT TRIALS

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)—Bus Mosbacher tillered Intrepid, a new twin-rudder, 12-metre yacht, to her most decisive victory Friday on Long Island Sound in the windup of the preliminary Americas Cup trials.

In scoring her seventh victory against one defeat in the week-long trials, Intrepid finished five minutes, 34 seconds ahead of American Eagle in a brisk 15-knot southwester.

Intrepid's only loss in the series was to American Eagle Tuesday when Mosbacher passed a buoy on the wrong side and had to turn back for a half a mile.

In Friday's other race, Constellation beat Weatherly by 1:47.

Final series to decide the American defender against Australia's challenger, Dame Pattie, will be held in August.

KNUDSON'S world of GOLF

People often ask me how it feels to be playing in front of a large gallery, especially Arnie's Army, the biggest of them all. I love it and I think other golfers do too.

For one thing, having a large gallery surrounding the green and lining the sides of the fairways helps your depth perception. Say you're approaching a green. You may not know the exact size of the green or the trees around it, but you do know how tall people are and it helps you judge the distance.

The larger the gallery the better as far as I'm concerned. When you're playing without a gallery, it's sometimes hard to get the best out of yourself. With a gallery, you're trying to put on a better show and usually play your best.

It's another thing, though, to play in front of Arnold Palmer's army if you have no gallery of your own.

Just as you get set to hit your second shot, Palmer's fans come running down the fairway behind you, trying to get a better position to see him hit his tee shot.

This is extremely distracting to golfers in front of Palmer. It's almost impossible to concentrate. Arnie's fans aren't trying to be discourteous or anything, it's just that they become so involved in the man's game.

Later this month, the Canadian Open will be played at Montreal's Municipal course and you can be sure, because of the packed field and Expo and everything, that the galleries will be huge.

I first played in a Canadian Open in 1958 and there's a vast difference today in the way the tournament is handled. The marshalling has become excellent and the galleries well behaved.

I think the most distracting thing for a golfer is the sound of a camera. Now, of course, they don't allow them at most tournaments. A movie camera isn't so bad, because you become used to the continuous whirring sound. But those still cameras can be murder. You hear one click of the shutter and you stand over your ball wondering if it's going to click again.

All the characters in golf—Chi Chi Rodriquez, Doug Sanders and Gary Player—thrive with a gallery. But I think most golfers do. Sometimes, of course, a member of a gallery will hurt a golfer, like when a man accidentally kicked Art Wall's ball into the woods when we were paired together in this year's Masters. And other times, to average things out, a solid wall of spectators can act as a pretty helpful backstop for a ball that ordinarily would have gone off the back of the green.

Give me a gallery every time.

GEORGE'S TIP

AWAY FROM TROUBLE

If there is trouble to the left or right as you step up to a tee, tee the ball on the same side as the trouble so that you will hit away from it. Never tee up on the other side. This will make you hit toward it.

DISTAFF DIVOTING

Trophy Triumphs Fairway Features

Pearl Ott, Diane Phillips and Mrs. B. Du Temple collected silverware this week as finals in three trophy events held the spotlight in distaff swinging on area golf courses.

Mrs. Ott collected the Nancy Hodges Cup at Gorge Vale by posting a net 158 for the 36-hole trophy test, Miss Phillips won the Lansdowne Cup at Uplands with a victory over Mrs. Phyllis Coxworth in the match-play final and Mrs. Du Temple captured the J. J. White Cup at Ardmore, where Mrs. K. Vickerman finished in the runner-up spot.

Ardmore was also the scene of a two-ball contest for the Spring Cup, won by Mrs. F. Dutton and Mrs. C. Clarke.

Teams from Uplands took solid leads this week in a pair of cup competitions against Colwood. In the first half of the Dowell Cup event, Uplands took a 26-10 lead at the Colwood course. Playing at home, the Uplands' bronze division team earned a 27½-13½ margin in the Bliss Cup contest. Second half of each cup series will be played in late July.

Ties were the order of the day in a best-ball event at Royal Colwood. Mrs. V. Kerr and Mrs. D. Saxon finished in a deadlock for the top position with Mrs. D. Kelly and Mrs. J. Blackburn after each pair had fired a best-ball count of 69. Mrs. M. Anderson and and Mrs. T. Cooper tied with Miss G. Slugget and Mrs. C. Ditchburn for second place ... Joan Lawson, Amy Clack and Ena Howard were division winners in a par competition at Uplands ... Helen Storrs topped a medal event at Cedar Hill. ...

Tight struggles were waged for club buttons as Irene Bowe and Eileen Mann won the Cedar Hill buttons for the fifth time by edging Mary Gidden and Peggy Matthews on the 18th green and Iris Stock and Helen Wilson had to go two extra holes to retain the Gorge buttons in a match with Agnes Castle and Ivy Blunt.

Kapp Prepares To Fight Lions In Court Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Quarterback Joe Kapp, suspended Friday without pay from his estimated $20,000-a-year job by British Columbia Lions, has only one course of appeal—to the man who fired him—so Kapp is taking his case to court.

The suspension for the 1967-68 season was announced at a press conference by Allan McEachern, president of the Western Football Conference Lions.

McEachern is also pro-tem commissioner of the Canadian Football League. He said suspended players usually take their appeals to the commissioner.

Kapp, however, gave no indication of appealing his case to league officials. He was absent from the ouster meeting. However, a statement prepared by Kapp and read to reporters, said:

"Under my contract with the Lions and written instruction from the club I am prevented from making any statements to the press. I would be in breach of contract if I attempted to defend myself to the public but I will be making my defence in court and I am proceeding immediately. My home is in Vancouver and I would like to play my option year with the B.C. Lions."

Kapp has a three-year contract with the Lions that continues through on a one-year option until June 1, 1968. He intended to play out his option, then join Houston Oilers of the American Football League.

Word leaked out that he had signed a contract with the Oilers when the registration was forwarded to AFL headquarters for processing. Milt Woodward, AFL commissioner, voided the contract because Kapp was still under contract to the Lions.

McEachern said Kapp still has some form of personal contract with the Oilers and has accepted money—reported to be $10,000—from them.

OFFERED INCREASE

The Lions several weeks ago offered Kapp a substantial increase over his last contract, but it was refused, McEachern said.

"A man playing out his option with a new job still in the bargaining stage is one thing," McEachern said. "Doing this with a new job already locked up is another."

The Lions' president said that to retain Kapp under the conditions would be impossible as "no player can serve two masters."

There is no absolute assurance the National Football League and AFL will honor the suspension, but McEachern said he had "no doubt" they would.

Port Angeles Shots Visit City Gun Club

Victoria Gun Club members will be out to shoot down a streak of five straight successes by Port Angeles when they meet in their annual inter-club trap shoot at the Albert Head range Sunday.

West Germans To Play Kickers

Fans at Royal Athletic Park next Wednesday will be seeing Canada's greatest soccer star of the half century from 1901 to 1950 and a bunch of Westphalia whizzes who are kicking their way across the continent.

Kicking has been parlayed into travel tickets by the men who play for the Bad Salzufeln club of Westphalia, West Germany. Rated one of their country's top amateur clubs, the German squad is making a tour of North America by playing exhibition games in several cities against teams with German players.

Wednesday night they'll be at Royal Athletic Park for a tussle with Hourigan's Kickers, one of the top clubs in the Victoria and District League for the past 10 years.

DAVE TEES OFF

For the man to perform opening-kickoff duties at 6:30, Kickers have selected Dr. David Turner deputy minister of the department of recreation and conservation.

Turner, a star with New Westminster Royals after performing in two eastern pro leagues, is a member of Canada's sports hall of fame and was voted the country's finest soccer player in the first half of this century.

Before arriving in Victoria, the Bad Salzufeln club will play in Boston and is later scheduled for games in Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and California.

The touring team is a member of the first division of a West German league and draws players from other sides in its organization of three other senior, four junior and four school clubs.

Despite their amateur status, the "Baddies" often clash with professionals. In their last match before leaving home, they dropped a 4-0 decision to Borussia, Dortmund, the 1966 European Cup Winners' Cup champion.

Borussia, incidentally, held onto a first-half lead to overcome Russia's selected team 2-1 Thursday night in the Expo 67 international tournament at Montreal.

Kickers have recruited four stars from Victoria O'Keefes for the match. Becoming Kickers for a night will be Dave Stothard, Bill Hamilton, Peter Brett and Martin Taylor.

Other Hourigan starters will be selected from goalie Larry DeCosta, Fred Heyer, Guenter Beyer, Juergen Stossel, Jos De Bruin, Henry Vanderhorst, Otto Ossege, Andy Csabo, Kurt Beyer, Jack Glass and Tony Bourbijn.

English XI, Borussia In Expo Soccer Final

MONTREAL (CP) — England defeated the First Vienna Club of Austria 2-1 Friday night, earning the right to meet Borussia of Dortmund, West Germany, in the championship game of the Expo 67 international soccer tournament Sunday.

John Byrne, a sharpshooting forward from Crystal Palace, scored both goals for England, leading the team out of a 1-0 first-half deficit. Fritz Schmiedratwer scored for Austria.

England won in two appearances in the tournament, the other game being a 3-0 triumph over the Leon Sports Club of Mexico in the opening contest last Saturday, and remains the only undefeated club in the tournament's class A division which also includes Austria and the Mexicans.

Borussia is the only undefeated club in the tournament's B division, which also includes the Russian Selects and Royal Standard Liege of Belgium.

England's victory over the Austrians also determined who will play in today's consolation competition for runner-up position in the tournament. Austria and Russia, who both finished in second place in their respective divisions, will meet in this contest.

Russia won one and lost one, while Austria did no better than tie one of its two encounters.

Branting's Blast Sparks Big Surge

Luckies and Carlings are making the Senior Men's Open Softball League a two-division affair.

Luckies bounced back into a share of the league lead with Carlings Friday, exploding for seven runs in the fifth inning to defeat Molsons 10-2 at Central Park.

The co-leaders now are 4½ games ahead of second-place Colony Inn.

A three-run homer by Ralph Branting and Glen Langsett's two-run single highlighted Luckies big splurge.

Langsett, coming on in relief, was the winning pitcher while Ed Kubeck was tagged with the loss.

SOLOISTS SOUGHT

Early in August Victoria symphony Society will set up an audition committee under new resident director, Laszlo Gati, for the purpose of selecting soloists for the second youth concert to be presented next season.

Any Greater Victoria or Island students who feel they have achieved a suitable technical and artistic level with any major instrument may register between now and August.

It is also announced that any professional or advanced adult musicians who would like to audition with Mr. Gati for the coming season, should register at the symphony office.

In both instances registration should be made either in writing or by phone, with Arne Bo, production director, 1960 Landsdowne Road, 384-7154.

The annual meeting of Victoria Symphony Society will take place next Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Dunlop House, 1960 Lansdowne Road.

All members of the society are entitled to attend.

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

With no plans in the making other than an Island championship battle, Victoria's mod music scene looks like it will remain rather silent for the next few weeks.

Even the annual rash of "school's out" dances don't appear in the offing this year.

The main reason seems to be a combination of a lack of support and of available halls.

The scene of most of the city's action, The Club Tango on View Street, has somewhat tightened its renting policy by limiting the number of nights a month that teen dances can be held.

Without the Tango there isn't really any other hall suitable which puts our local promoters in a "no halls—no dances" set-up.

Last weekend's Tea Party dance at Willows Park with the Mixed Emotions got around the problem by putting the stage outside but, obviously, the promoters won't run outdoor dances with no hope of a profit.

So, it seems that this summer won't bring back any of the memories that last summer made.

Oh, well.

BITS AND PIECES

Victoria loses another club this weekend with the closing of Gipper's Underground in the Century Inn. Owner Gipp Forester plans to set-up folk efforts at the A Go-Go on Wharf Street each Sunday night.

This week he hosts the Night Times Plus 1, the Cleancut Crewcut Jug Band, Jim Dougan, Sue Taylor and little Ed Wright of the Blues By Five . . .

It's reported that the Memorial Day Trips Festival in Seattle last week didn't make out too well financially. Trips Lansing, promoter of the show that featured the Byrds, Jefferson Airplane, Don and The Goodtimes, The Electric Prunes and The Emergency Exit, was, to say the least, somewhat disappointed after all the air-time it got on Seattle's radio stations . . .

Meanwhile, back in Canada, Winnipeg's Guess Who won't be appearing at Expo 67 due to a mix-up of dates. As things were set up they were booked to play the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver and Expo in Montreal at the same time. A good deal if they could have swung it . . .

Strange that Victoria's Canadians who are now touring Europe haven't received too much in the way of publicity here in Canada. It's undoubtedly the biggest thing any Canadian group has done. So why no news?

At the Movies

With Norman Cribbens

THE POPPY IS ALSO A FLOWER
Drug Spy Thriller
Royal Theatre

Here is a James Bond thriller without Bond.

It was evolved from an idea proposed by author Ian Fleming, creator of the James Bond series, before his death and has been put together by script writer Joe Eisinger and director Terence Young.

Young launched the Bond series with his famous Doctor No and has been at it ever since.

Unfortunately, Poppy doesn't measure up to the earlier efforts. It is capably performed and the involved plot works up to a surprise climax, but somewhere the momentum is lacking.

Briefly, the United Nations sends two narcotic agents (Trevor Howard and E. G. Marshall) to trace a shipment of radio-activated opium from the poppy fields of Persia to the junk shops of Harlem.

From Teheran to Geneva and on to Naples and Nice, they run the gauntlet of the now too-familiar thrill scenes, with lots of bang-bang on the train and some red-hot romance aboard the bad guy's yacht.

Somewhere along the line, the Iranian police, headed by Jack Hawkins and Yul Brynner, cook up a plan to impregnate a shipment of poppies, used to make opium, with radio-active material.

This means they can be tracked by the use of geiger counters and all contacts duly noted. UN scientists Nadja Tiller and Omar Sharif cooperate in the enterprise.

Contact is lost temporarily but restored in Naples, where the pair are assisted by policemen Marcello Mastroianni and Amedeo Nazzari.

The trail takes them to a murdered Pasta manufacturer and a former American gangster (Eli Wallach), who has been deported from the United States.

In Monte Carlo, millionaire Gilbert Roland and his wife, Rita Hayworth, become involved when UN agent Trevor Howard boards their yacht and is dramatically unmasked.

If the story sounds confused, it is because it is confused and somewhat ludicrous from many points of view.

This is far from being the best of the Bond-style movies, although it has plenty in the way of shocks and excitement and the pace is well maintained.

U.S. Plans Expo Plays

The only theatrical company representing the United States at Expo's World Festival of Entertainment, will be the APA Repertory Company.

Two plays will be performed by the company, Oct. 9-14 in the 1,300-seat Theatre Maisonneuve at the Place des Arts.

They will be selected from five productions in the company's current repertoire: Ibsen's Wild Duck, Pirandello's Right You Are, Sheridan's School for Scandal, an adaptation of Tolstoy's War and Peace, and the Hart-Kaufman comedy, You Can't Take It With You.

Dance Review

A colorful Centennial Dance Revue will occupy the stage of McPherson Playhouse Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Sponsored by the Victoria and V.I. Multiple Sclerosis Society, it is being staged by Vivian M. Briggs and will feature her students in a wide variety of dance styles.

Starting time is 8:15.

A LOOK AT THE GALLERIES

Gallery Sponsors Exciting Sculpture

By TONY EMERY

Emery

An interesting development in the visual arts since 1945 has been the renascence of sculpture.

If you look at the years between the wars it becomes clear that painting attracted the vast majority of talented young artists in any country, but nowadays it is by no means unusual to find at certain times in certain places — e.g. Britain in the 1950s — that the sculptors are doing the most interesting and original work while the painters are taking in one another's stylistic washing.

It is just on the cards that such a situation is at present shaping up in Canada, and I would offer in evidence the Sculpture '67 show now installed in the Piazza Nathan Phillips in front of Toronto's beautiful new City Hall.

The result is the most exciting display of sculpture that this country has ever seen, or — costs being what they will be — is likely to see for some time, unless sums equal to those made available by the centenary are forthcoming in the future.

There are nearly 70 works by 55 artists, some of whom (Snow, Molinari, Nakamura, Urquhart, Hedrick) are not usually thought of as sculptors.

The majority are of the kind nowadays known as "primary structures" or "minimal art": uncompromisingly angled and bolted pieces of engineering construction painted in primary colors; carefully un-arty forms bodied forth in fibreglass, stainless steel and aluminum.

Wood still appeals to Victoria's Bob de Castro, whose two-foot Forest Figure is the cheapest thing in the show at $150, and some lucky sculptors can still apparently consider casting in bronze, to judge from Etrog's 18-foot, $32,000 "Survivors Are Not Heroes."

If you are in Toronto between now and September 5 try to find the time to walk around this attractively installed exhibit.

Not everything in it is of merit, but the evidence is plainly there that the three-dimensional is exerting a strong attraction for the many young emerging talents in this country.

When you consider that the good sculptors in this country five years ago could have been counted on the tines of a fondu fork there is legitimate cause for some restrained cheering.

Nearer home, Pandora's Box is showing Pat Martin Bates's quietly exciting prints. Represented in every important public and private collection in this country, she does not seem to have attracted the attention she merits in this city, although the Queen's Own Rifles are to be congratulated on their perspicacity in commissioning her to make a print for presentation to Princess Alexandra on her recent visit here.

Her newer work takes the form of "mandalas," often in black and white, and made to be viewed from both sides, which entails suspending them from the ceiling or mounting them in transparent door panels.

Nearly all her works are "unique prints" fabricated with loving care in a dazzling variety of techniques, so that when you own one you have something that is original in every sense of the word.

In addition to the mandalas there are lithographs done at the Pratt Institute during her recent stay in New York, and further explorations of the circle which has always exercised such a fascination for her, as you may recall from her "Cosmic Rounds" series.

There are amusing little games, and witty little "pop" collages and prints, little gems of a more familiar kind (see "Holly oot") and a poetic take-over from Baldung-Grien in her "swan song of the Groom Bewitched," a print of considerable importance in her work to date.

I was also very taken with the veiled tones and glowing cyans of "Songs of a Seer," but since I have always been a fan of this highly individual printmaker I find that it is not easy to pick particular favorites from among so many desirable and life-enhancing works. Go and make your own selection sometime before June 22.

Adjudicators For Finals

Names of five adjudicators for the national finals of the Centenary Festivals of Music were announced this week in Ottawa.

The competition, involving prizes of several thousand dollars, takes place at Saint John, N.B., July 6 to 15.

Two adjudicators from the United States are Ella Lee, internationally known operatic and concert soprano, and Robert Marcellus, woodwind, brass and percussion coach of the symphony orchestra at the Cleveland Institute of Music.

From France there will be Pierre Max Dubois, composer and winner of the first Grand Prix de Rome, and Fernand Quatrocchi, composer, conductor and instrumental soloist.

Maurice Jacobson, for many years closely associated with the British National Youth Orchestra, composer, conductor and solo pianist, will come from Britain.

Provincial semi-finalists, who in turn were winners at the local music festivals across Canada, are eligible for recommendation to the national finals.

STONE COINS KEPT

Stone coins from 18 inches to 12 feet in diameter are still treasured on Yap Island, South Pacific, as ceremonial specie.

MAN WHO LOVES A FIGHT, Col. Edward Churchill, 54, the former army engineer who built Expo 67, thinks he's been spoiled by the world's fair. He finds he doesn't want to "put one brick on top of another" as he did before Expo but would like to build "things with meaning." (CP Photo)

FOLLOW A PLAN

Seeing Expo's Best In Time Available

By DICK PURSER
Special to The Times

MONTREAL—This one-day tour of Expo 67 concentrates on the eastern end of Ile Notre-Dame, largest of Expo's exhibit areas, which includes the pavilions of most of the "exotic" countries plus the big pavilions of Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union. It begins with the visitor arranging to arrive at the Ile Notre-Dame Expo Express station by 10 a.m., when the pavilions open.

EXIT RAMP

Leaving the station by the southernmost exit ramp, he turns left between the "Man the Producer" theme pavilion and the German pavilion, heading toward the Australian pavilion just beyond on the right. En route, two short stops may be made in pavilions on the left: the European Communities Pavilion, whose ground floor contains an exhibition of modern European art (the second floor is of limited interest), and the colorful little Ceylon pavilion, which has a popular tearoom in addition to its exhibits. The Barbados-Guyana pavilion, between the two, is little more than a bar and so is not in full bloom at this time of day.

The Australian Pavilion features a large lounging area with talking - chairs. Chairs with orange seats speak French; chairs with green seats speak English. By sitting down, the visitor activates computer-controlled stereophonic speakers in the wings of the chairs.

INDIA PAVILION

Conspicuous just beyond Australia is the Indian pavilion. The Indians have done a good job of illustrating aspects of their country from ancient art to modern industry, although admittedly the more pleasant side of things is stressed.

The visitor should try to reach the entrance rotunda in time for the showing of an outstanding, 14-minute-long multi-screen sound-and-slide panorama of Indian life.

The visitor should time himself to arrive around 4 p.m. at the Soviet Pavilion, which looms above this entire area. It is a vast affair and takes two hours to see, but it deserves the time.

The Soviets have dropped their stodgy way of showing themselves to the world, and if their pavilion is far from avant-garde, it is modern, well done, and tremendously impressive. The stress is of course on science and industry but this is a field in which the Soviets have much to show and about which most Westerners are curious.

It is no surprise that the pavilion draws 60,000 to 70,000 visitors daily, sometimes reaching 120,000.

DINNER TIME

At dinner time, the Soviet Pavilion offers Expo's largest restaurant complex: a de luxe restaurant with caviar at $2.25 and main dishes from Soviet regions at $3.75 to $5.95, and a much larger and cheaper cafeteria downstairs.

After dinner, Expo-goers usually head for town or La Ronde, the Expo amusement area.

But pavilions are open until 9:30, and some visitors, especially those interested in farming, may wish to sample the "Man the Provider" agriculture pavilion after a Russian dinner.

It sprawls over 7½ acres around the lagoons just east of the Soviet Pavilion, and there is a lot to see in it as its exhibits systematically destroy the city dweller's stereotype of the farmer and his role. Those familiar with the agriculture exhibits of the Calgary Stampede and Canadian National Exhibition, ets., are in for something new.

ROYAL DISPLAY

Horses and carriages from the Royal Mews at Buckingham Palace will be on display at the Royal Show — one of the world's greatest agricultural shows — at Stoneleigh Abbey, Warwickshire, from July 4 to 7.

The display will include eight coaches and carriages, and it is hoped that they will be accompanied by a Drum Horse and four State Trumpeters of the Household Cavalry.

COMING TO TERMS WITH THE OCEAN

Sailor's Best Laid Plans Must Change

By JOHN MANNING

Former Victoria Times reporter John Manning and his wife Pat are currently on a 12,000-mile "Centennial Cruise" aboard their tiny sailing ship Powindah. The pair started in England and hope to end their cruise in the Inner Harbor. This is the 30th in a series on their adventures.

It is one thing to timetable a voyage from the comfort of a den, in front of a roaring fire, unrolling crisp new charts showing Casablanca, Dead Man's Cove, Tortuga, or Tahiti, when you may never have been to these places, have no idea of what it is like getting to them and less of an idea how you or your shipmate will feel when and if you actually arrive there.

Yet once you have completed your first deep-water passage, where you have actually crossed an ocean, you realize a knowledge that you could never attain from books or talking to others who had already accomplished what you wished to do.

Humbling

A deep-water passage knocks off the rough corners.

It both humbles and elevates your inner being.

Through it you learn what you and your wife and your boat are capable of.

You become cognizant of coming to terms with the ocean, so that one day, perhaps a week after leaving port, you feel truly at home in the environment.

This is the greatest feeling of all.

It does not necessarily mean you are a sailor for it must take a lifetime to become one.

It means only that you are coping, day by day, with the situation in which you have placed yourself; that of sailing a small boat from one continent to another and exploring various ports enroute.

When Powindah set sail from England on July 30, 1966, it was our conviction and desire to reach British Columbia within 12 months.

Under our chosen route, via the West Indies, the Panama Canal, and the South Seas, the distance added up to some 18,000 nautical miles, which meant sailing an average of 1,500 miles a month.

We had chosen this particular route for two reasons. First, it would enable us to explore and experience some of the same landfalls that Captains Cook and Vancouver had made during their historic voyages to Canada's West Coast in those years leading up to Confederation. This was to be our contribution to Canada's Centennary, and also give a focal point to the voyage.

Secondly, since Powindah had been originally designed for running down the Trades, as were the square riggers of Captain Cook's day, we were exceedingly reluctant to attempt shortening the trip by beating to windward up the West Coast of North America.

Graveyard Coast

That coast has been the graveyard of too many sailing vessels.

Still with this plan in mind we arrived in the West Indies after a 25-day passage from the Canary Islands.

The ocean had not been unduly harsh.

Yet we arrived in port weary of body and soul. It took us a full week to replenish our energy to the point where either of us had the will to begin refitting the boat for her next ocean stint.

Powindah's varnished teakwork looked like a museum exhibit; her galvanized rigging was showing serious signs of rust; the generator refused to function; the deck and hull needed painting; and among other jobs, we had a leak to find.

The thought of putting to sea, making one or two stops in the Windward Islands and then heading straight for the Panama Canal was more than either of us could bear. We realized we would have to delay our arrival home by a few months.

The Atlantic had taught us the folly of pushing too hard but it was not fully brought home until I met 64-year-old Frank Casper, an American engineer, who had sailed his 32-foot sloop Elsie around the world singlehanded.

Visit's Climax

"Your folks are going at it too enthusiastically," he said in his diplomatic way. "Pat, you look all tuckered out. If you two keep up this pace of 1,500 miles a month it could prove disastrous. A tired sailor is a bad sailor."

"How about you, Frank. How do you feel when you arrive in port?"

"That's when I feel my best," he grinned. "I'm more fatigued when I put to sea."

"We had trouble with our self-steering. We were on the helm a good deal of the time," said Pat.

"Sort of takes the spunk out of you, doesn't it?"

It was Frank who spent the best part of a day with us, going over our self-steering apparatus. When he was through the entire mechanism was working with 50 per cent more efficiency. "There," he said, "No reason for you to steer unless you don't balance your sails. You can catch up on your sleep."

Instead of 10 days we spent three weeks in Barbados, climaxing the visit by nearly wrecking Powindah.

We were anchored off the Paradise Beach Club Hotel, a Canadian enterprise, which boasts a superb beach. A number of Victorians were staying there and on the morning of our departure came down to wave us off.

They all had cameras. The wind was blowing a good 30 knots. To the horror of my chief officer, I decided to hoist a full set of sail and without turning on the motor, sail the anchor clear of the bottom, come about, scoot past a jagged coral reef and make for the open sea, in full view of the clicking cameras.

"I don't think you should try it," said my Winnipeg born wife. "The wind's too strong. Something may happen."

Chaos Ensued

"We'll be all right. What would they think if we had the motor going?"

"That we were being sensible."

"Nonsense, watch your head. I'm hoisting the main."

In my ignorance of handling the boat under such enclosed conditions I also set the mizzen, a small sail just aft of the helm. I left it sheeted hard in, thinking it would keep us up into the wind while I raised the anchor.

Pat steered.

For a few seconds all went as planned: then a gust of wind came from the starboard side, unexpectedly, like a schoolmaster's cane falling on an impudent student. The result was chaos.

Powindah surged forward, slewing against the half-raised anchor and headed straight for the tropic dazzle of the beach only 40 yards distant. It was too late to drop the anchor. The boat would never check herself in time.

"Bring her up into the wind!" I shouted.

"That's where the reef is," came the answer from Pat who was already putting the helm over the opposite way. We gybed all standing. This means that instead of coming up into the wind normally, both booms flopped, crashing across the deck, and I heard the anguished clinch of rigging being strung bar tight.

It held. We sailed clear, Pat waving gaily to our friends who must have realized how close they came to seeing the end of one Centennial project before it was even half completed. I slunk out of sight below deck.

In spite of this near tragedy the West Indies held us in their spell for two months.

Took Advice

We visited the French island of Martinique, sailed the charter boat on down to Grenada via St. Vincent, Bequia Island and the Grenadines.

To Pat's joy, there was not one night sail; we explored a multitude of anchorages, some crowded with trading schooners, others void of human habitation. Each day contained its own share of beauty and new experience, so much so that when it came time to sail for the Pacific we knew we would have to heed old Frank's advice and take the voyage in easier stages.

Instead of dreading the next ocean passage we looked forward to it and Powindah's mate had regained her cheery smile.

FOLLOW PIRATES ON ROUND-TRIP

A round-trip voyage from Vancouver to Europe via the sea lanes of the Spanish Main where pirates plundered three centuries ago, is part of the P&O Line's fall 1967 schedule.

The two-ship holiday voyage calls at ports in the Caribbean and, on the return, visits along the Spanish Main. A week in Europe to view the mod scene set in England and to see Paris at a lovely, uncrowded time of year is on the schedule.

The east-bound portion of the voyage is aboard the P&O liner Iberia which sails from Vancouver the first week in October. Acapulco, Nassau and Bermuda are on the Iberia's itinerary. The return voyage on the Orsova, which sails from Le Havre November 6, has calls scheduled at Lisbon, Trinidad, Cartegena and Acapulco.

Beach Hotel Open at Night

NASSAU — If you like Paradise Beach by day, wait until you see it by night!

Following the recent opening of the bridge connecting Paradise Island with Nassau across the harbor, the management of the Paradise Beach restaurant and club are opening each evening but Sunday and Monday for casual entertainment by the sea.

"There will be refreshments, music, dancing and relaxing," manager Ronnie Carroll announced.

The restaurant and club are open every day as a spot where visitors to the Bahamas' most famous beach may relax and come in out of the sun for food, refreshments, music and dancing. Evening operation will run from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Centuries of Misfortune Recalled at Wailing Wall

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

From a purely religious standpoint, the most significant aspect of the Israeli capture of the Jordanian section of Jerusalem is, for orthodox Jews, the fact that it makes the Wailing Wall accessible for the first time since 1948.

It was in that year that the end of the war with the Arabs resulted in establishment of the state of Israel and divided the Holy City into two parts, the old quarter becoming part of Jordan.

For centuries before that pious pilgrims had pressed their faces against the rough surfaces of the wall, weeping and reciting dirges from the Book of Lamentations.

Specifically they were mourning the destruction of the temple—the focal point of their religion—first in 586 B.C. and again in 70 A.D. But in addition they were lamenting all the misfortunes that had befallen the Jews through the years.

The Wailing Wall, consisting of huge blocks of hewn stone, is believed to be the outer Western wall of the temple grounds.

Nothing else remains of the temple, built first by King Solomon about 955 B.C., rebuilt about 519 B.C. and reconstructed a third time, by King Herod, in 20-19 B.C.

MOSQUE ON SITE

However, there is also a massive piece of masonry once thought to have been part of Solomon's stables but now believed to be the arched support for pavement above it on the south side of the temple.

Not far from the Wailing Wall is the Mosque of Omar, built by the Moslems more than 1,000 years ago. It's believed the enclosure under the Dome of the Rock in the mosque is the spot where once stood the Holy of Holies, the inner sanctuary of the Temple of Solomon.

In this room, separated from the outer sanctuary by a curtain and gold chain, was kept the ark holding the Tables of Moses. So sacred was it that only the high priest was permitted to enter the Holy of Holies and then only on Yom Kippur, the day of atonement.

The Temple of Solomon, said to have been a building of exquisite architectural design although it was only 120 feet long, 40 feet wide and 60 feet high, was the heart of Judaism during what is described as its golden age.

Its destruction, first by the forces of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and later by the Roman legions under Titus, is commemorated on Tishah B'Ab, the ninth day of the month of Ab in the Hebrew calendar.

CLIMB MOUNT ZION

In the years since 1948, religious Jews in Jerusalem have had to be content with reciting their lamentations from the top of Mount Zion, the closest point to the wall in the Israeli sector.

Be Not Afraid

"Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." This verse from Joshua is the Golden Text of a Bible Lesson on "God the Preserver of Man" to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday.

SOOKE resident William R. Stevens has graduated from Eastern Pentecostal Bible College, Peterborough, Ont., and plans to enter the ministry of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada. The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stevens, formerly of Timmins, Ont., he attended Coronation School and Central Junior Secondary, Victoria, and Timmins high and vocational school.

Predictions For Church Of Future

TORONTO (CP) — Declines in membership in the United Church of Canada and in the number of candidates for the clergy is a "judgment on the church," says Rev. J. R. Hord in the 42nd annual report of the church's board of evangelism and social service.

The report, 245 pages entitled Canada and Its Future, is what the board calls a "centennial look at the church."

Mr. Hord, the board's secretary said:

"We have not prepared our members for the great scientific, technological and sociological changes of our times."

He said the church's lack of involvement in mankind's dilemmas is also partly responsible for the decline in membership.

"The church of the future will emphasize quality of life and service," he said. "Christians will know what they believe and why.

"Large church gatherings will gradually be replaced by small group meetings in which there will be a rich sharing of mind and heart.

"The church will get involved in major social and political issues on humanitarian grounds in such questions as Indian affairs, the race question, the war on poverty, civil rights, subsidized housing, peace and war."

Rev. W. Clarke MacDonald, board chairman, said the church "can no longer coast along on the idea that just because it is the church it will command respect."

"It will only command respect when it delivers the goods," he said.

Salt Lake Visitor Here For Opening

W. J. Critchlow, assistant to the Council of the 12 Apostles of the Mormon Church at Salt Lake City, will visit Victoria Monday.

He will turn the sod for the building of an extension to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 2990 Quadra, Monday at 7:30 p.m.

There will be a smorgasbord supper at the church to raise funds for the extension at 6:30 p.m. Monday.

Mr. Critchlow will be accompanied to Victoria by A. A. Hinckley of the Alaska-Canadian Mission, Vancouver.

WHY THE PADLOCK ON CHURCH DOORS?

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

Why are so many Christian churches bolted and barred against the people who need them?

The cry is raised by men and women who seek the sanctuary of the church on weekdays—not only during the fashionable hours of worship on Sunday.

These are the people who seek escape from the tensions and strains of modern living.

They want a quiet place of worship where they can try to reconcile themselves with God. And what, so often, do they find? A solid oak door bolted against sinner and saint alike—an impregnable fortress shut against the world!

Is this Christianity?

"I have the impression many churches are more concerned with protecting their possessions than giving sanctuary to human souls," writes a woman reader.

"Many times during the lunch hour I've wanted to go into my church for a quiet few moments of meditation. But there is no one on the premises and the doors are shut tight.

"Because of this, I sometimes go round to St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral on View Street. It is always open and people go there at all times of the day.

"It seems our Protestant churches have much to learn from the Roman Catholics."

However, Christ Church Cathedral and many other Anglican churches are open to the public on weekdays from early morning to dusk.

Many United churches are bolted except when there is a funeral or a wedding or a daytime service. But some have a side door open which is known only to members.

"In principle I agree that churches should be open all week," says Rev. Samuel Parsons, DD, president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches and minister of Centennial United.

"The churches have been sanctuaries all through the centuries and, at one time, not even a criminal could be arrested in a church.

"It is true, of course that many churches who cannot afford full-time caretakers or vergers have had unhappy experiences in the way of vandalism.

"But, beyond that, the closed door has become a custom with many non-conformist churches. The Roman Catholics and the Anglicans have always encouraged the use of the church as a sanctuary in daytime."

"Our faith goes on all week—it isn't just a Sunday affair. People of all faiths go to the cathedral every day of the week—particularly during the lunch hours."

She added that the cathedral is never empty. There are always at least two or three men and women sitting in the pews. Yet no one seems to be "on duty" there in daytime.

On the other hand, the bishop's residence is next door and a number of priests live there.

"I believe all churches should be open to the public on weekdays," says Rev. Walter Donald, newly-appointed assistant minister at Christ Church Cathedral.

"However, it is right that all precautions should be taken against theft and vandalism, since the people's money is involved in the church's possessions.

"We are fortunate in having a full time verger, but it seems to me the smaller churches could organize some kind of volunteer system where a church member could be on duty perhaps one hour a day.

"With so many retired people in Victoria, this should not be too difficult."

Mr. Donald was ordained to the priesthood at St. Barnabas Anglican Church last May 17. As we talked on the cathedral steps Friday morning, two ladies from Oregon approached and asked, rather timidly, if they could go inside.

"You are most welcome at any time," said young Mr. Donald, and escorted them into the sanctuary.

"There is your open door," he told me, with a grin. "We are wide open."

Mr. Donald said he understood the cathedral had on occasion suffered from theft.

"I see no reason why churches should have too much wealth on display during the week. It is far more important that people in need of spiritual comfort should be able to get it."

REMEMBRANCE service in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday at 11 a.m. will be attended by Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, DSC, who will read the lesson. The rector, Canon Grahame Baker, will speak on the text, Other men labored, and ye have entered into their labors.

Gambling 'Perversion'

TORONTO (CP) — The new national commander of the Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda says gambling has replaced strong drink as the top social problem in England and Canada may be the next victim of "this frightful perversion."

Commissioner Clarence D. Wiseman arrived in Canada Wednesday from London, England, where he was in charge of officer training and recruitment at the Army's international training college. He succeeds retired commissioner Edgar Grinsted.

The same day, city council voted to hold a plebiscite on whether Toronto should have a lottery.

"Once Canada opens the door to legalized gambling the whole population will want to gamble overtly," he said.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Mass Worship Service Starts Veterans' Week

The Veteran and World Peace will be the subject of a mass service of worship in Memorial Arena Sunday at 2:30 p.m.—a prelude to Veterans' Week.

It will be held under auspices of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

There will be a procession of flags accompanied by the band of Victoria Salvation Army Citadel and a fanfare of trumpets.

Anglican Archdeacon J. W. Forth will give the sermon and lessons will be read by Mayor Hugh Stephen, Major Robert McKerracher of the Salvation Army and Brig. J. S. Adam, chairman of Veterans' Week in Victoria.

Rev. Samuel Parsons, DD, and Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria, will participate.

Rev. Norman Archer will give the second sermon in the series A Relevant Gospel at Emmanuel and Stevenson Memorial Batptist churches Sunday morning.

His title will be Our Message to the Modern World.

"In these days of fear, distress and anxiety, Christians need to return to the basics of their faith in order to present to the world those great truths which once turned the world upside down," writes Mr. Archer.

"The Christian message is ever relevant and it is our purpose to examine the fundamentals of our faith, in order to make a vital and positive contribution to the world's present distress."

Rev. Dr. Frank Salmon, who recently celebrated the 60th anniversary of his priesthood, will give the sermon in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday at 11 a.m.

"We all join in extending warm congratulations and good wishes for many fruitful years still to come," writes Dean Brian Whitlow, DD.

Rev. and Mrs. Doug Harris will be guests at Central Baptist Church Sunday when Rev. Harris will speak at 11 am.. on People Under Pressure and at 7 p.m. on The Centrality of Christ.

Mrs. Harris will render vocal selections, accompanied by her husband, at both services. He is at present pastor of Faith Baptist Church, Vancouver.

They will be guests at a banquet to be held by the young people Saturday evening at Holyrood House honoring this year's high school graduates.

AFTERMATH OF JERUSALEM GUNFIRE

War Shuts Christian Shrines

By DAVE McINTOSH

JERUSALEM (CP) — The Via Dolorosa, the Way of the Cross, is pock-marked with bullet holes.

Israeli soldiers came stealthily down the Way of the Cross Tuesday night when they captured the old walled city of Jerusalem from Jordanian Arabs.

The old city is the most sacred shrine of the Jews and on Friday, Israeli soldiers with rifles and sub-machine-guns slung over their shoulders prayed at the Wailing Wall.

Christain shrines have been closed for the time being to protect them in case of any recurrence of fighting.

But any recurrence here appears remote.

In the narrow, tortuous streets of the Arab quarter, where garbage lies rotting on cobblestones and where squalor is king, a few merchants were again starting to hawk their wares.

Moneylenders were still closed, however, because nobody appeared sure whether to use Israeli or Jordanian money. But this didn't bother Arab beggars with their eternally plaintive cry of "baksheesh," which means "gimme."

The Arabs appeared unafraid and were going and coming as if nothing had happened.

There were Israeli soldiers at vantage points but many others carried cameras or were making pilgrimages to the Wailing Wall, known to the Jews as the Western Wall, where there was a crush of people.

Tourists, who seem to be part of an army's mopping-up operations nowadays, were guided to Christian shrines, such as Mary's birthplace, by an Israeli army colonel.

In the Arab sector outside the walls, fighting had obviously been fierce.

There was heavy shel damage, especially around the Mandelbaum Gate, and many Arab shops had been wrecked by machine-gun fire. Most shutters had been pierced by bullets and there was broken glass everywhere.

Food is short in the city and Israeli soldiers had to control an Arab mob at a bakery. There was a burst of sub-machine-gun fire close by and a few mines could be heard going off.

ROAD CUT

The main road to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv was cut for a time by an unexplained incident described as a "landslide" and traffic piled up meanwhile on a one-lane detour through stoney terraced hills.

In the Israeli part of the city, people lining the streets have applauded Israeli soldiers passing in convoys. They were capture vehicles. Most trucks flew Jordanian flags and one tank had on its front a huge, framed photograph of King Hussein of Jordan.

On the Via Dolorosa were two burned-out cars and on a steep street just off it was a live mortar bomb. On top of the wall of the old city were dozens of empty cartridges and at one point, twisted remains of a huge shell. There was rubble at the Damascus Gate, where shell fragments had hit the wall.

Plain Mister Directing Church Work

One of the key men in the renewal of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada is coming to Victoria next week.

But he isn't an archbishop, a bishop or even a priest. He is plain Tom Johnston.

Mr. Johnston, a tall, lean, dark-haired man in his early thirties who once worked as a law clerk in Montreal, is national director of the lay apostolate for the Catholic Church.

His appointment to that position symbolizes the changes taking place in a church where key positions have traditionally been held by clergy.

He is one of the few laymen who is involved full-time in the direct apostolate of the church and no other layman holds as crucial a position as he does.

SURVEYS CHANCES

At present, and for some time past, he has been surveying the changes going on in various dioceses across Canada that affect lay persons. Catholics traditionally have thought of lay involvement as meaning the involvement of lay persons in church organizations.

The new thrust is towards involvement in solving the problems of their community—it is outgoing and aims at providing a Christian presence in society. One of Mr. Johnston's purposes in coming to Victoria is to observe developments in this diocese.

He will also speak at a public meeting next Friday at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of St. Ann's Academy.

Anyone interested in hearing his talk on the lay apostolate and taking part in the discussion afterwards is invited to attend.

Film Scheduled

Rev. Robert Seymour will show a film entitled "Go" in Victoria Free Methodist Church, 1610 Cook Street, Sunday at 8:15 p.m. "It tells how people have been able to convey the Gospel to other people, giving them hope in despair and often changing their lives," he said.

OUT OF SCHOOL and into a man's world. Mt. Douglas High School valedictorian Craig Lawrence is surrounded by admiring classmates Diana Partridge, winner of the scholarship cup, Wendy Vantreight, winner of the citizenship tray, and Noreen Walters, co-winner of the sportsmanship cup.

Final Message Given To High School Grads

Graduating students of Greater Victoria high schools were praised, criticized, cautioned against haste, and challenged to demand reform at recognition ceremonies Friday evening.

Nearly 1,400 students marked the end of their school years in assemblies at five local high schools.

ENCOURAGEMENT

"I have great faith in young people," said Mr. Bunn. "Only the young people have rejected the holy faith of wealth at any price."

University of Victoria English professor Reginald Terry reminded the students of Einstein's maxim that education is what one learns despite his schooling.

He praised Canadian students for being alert, alive and curious, but cautioned them against "opting out rather than opting in."

"Consciousness expanding drugs may be considered breaking through by some people," he said, "but I consider them the most extreme example of post-war outsiderism."

WARNING

At Mt. Douglas High, 212 students were warned to move slowly when advocating change.

Chief school inspector William Reid cautioned the students to examine the need for change rather than accept it for its own sake.

Mt. Doug's valedictorian, Craig Lawrence, was co-winner with Noreen Walters of the school's sportsmanship cup.

The scholarship cup was presented to Diana Partridge and the citizenship tray went to Wendy Vantreight.

Peter Lawrie was valedictorian at Mt. View and the 170 grads were addressed by B.C.'s deputy minister of education, Dr. Neil Perry.

Dr. Perry, bringing to mind the communicative theories of Dr. Marshall McLuhan, urged the students to "bridge the gulf between the mental worlds each lives in."

At Oak Bay, students were addressed by valedictorian Shelagh Hayward and Montreal Trust manager Robert Ferguson.

Fun, Excitement At Shrine Circus

Bears and leopards have nothing in common except a common dislike for each other.

One is heavily-built, thick-furred and inclined to be a vegetarian; the other is a sleek, large-size cat who can easily become a man-eater.

But at the Victoria Shrine Club circus to be held in Victoria this month, animal trainer Alva Johnson will show that his ursaline and feline animals can drop their differences and stage a spectacular show.

His charges will perform almost unbelievable feats of balance and skill requiring co-operation between the two species.

The two-day circus, almost a tradition with Victorians, will open June 19. There will be both matinee and evening performances. There will be plenty of attractions for young people — elephants, clowns, circus princesses, dare-devils, acrobatics,and even a "man on the flying trapeze."

If its color and action they want, they will get their share of that when the George Hanneford, Jr. Troupe of Cossack riders stage a spectacular display of whirling-dervish horsemanship.

Another major act will be a performance on the high wire by the Triska troupe.

The troupe, composed of Matej Triska and his son and daughter of Czechoslovakia, represent the sixth and seventh generations of high wire performers.

Matej has worked on the wire since he was two years old and at the age of four he rode a bicycle, with his sister on his shoulders, across the slender steel strand.

SOME ACTS FOR FUN

But all acts won't be thrills. There will be some just to provide fun. One, for example, will be Capt. Schreiber's chimpanzees.

These anthropoid actors provide one of the finest and most hilarious acts of its kind in show business.

Another major attraction will be the performance of the Flying Artons.

The group of acrobats will perform some hair-raising stunts on the trapeze bar, such as the three and a half somersault from the bar to the hands of a catcher.

There will also be an act featuring two pretty girls who will perform balancing stunts as well as plenty of clowning by some top-notch comedians.

Halibut Men on Guard After Boats Cut Loose

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Owners of six halibut boats in port here are keeping a special eye on their vessels following the cutting adrift Friday of five boats.

No arrests were made but police said the work likely resulted from the labor dispute between the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and owners of the boats.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Union of Public Employees called for the appointment of a government mediator to settle the issue. The appeal came at a CUPE convention in New Westminster.

In Vancouver, Supreme Court justice J. O. Wilson rejected an application for bail for Jack Nichol, business agent for the UFAWU and one of five members of the union arrested Wednesday under section 108 of the criminal code which deals with the unlawful disobeying of a court order.

UFAWU secretary Homer Stevens and three other officers were released on bail of $200 each and all have been remanded to June 16.

The CUPE convention resolution said: "We are concerned with the situation in Prince Rupert. What started as a strike for better wages and working conditions has now developed into a jurisdictional dispute between two unions, dividing both the workers and the community."

ALOHA said Chicago restaurant owner Gene Sage as he threw Hawaiian leis from outrigger canoe to those who came to his beach party opening. Roti Savaiinaea was his paddler and all went well until outrigger fastenings came apart and they landed in shallows of Lake Michigan. (AP Wirephoto)

Tighter Rules For C. Saanich Septic Tanks

Central Saanich plans to tighten regulations governing the construction of septic tanks to prevent the spread of pollution in the municipality.

Council was jolted into action following a statement by B.C. pollution control director Charles Keenan. He said 50 per cent of the septic tanks operating in the province are not functioning properly.

He raised the subject at a public meeting held two weeks ago to consider a Central Saanich application for permission to discharge treated sewage into Brentwood bay.

INADEQUATE

Mr. Keenan noted that septic tanks are not being built to cope with the large amount of water used by the average household today.

In most cases the soil was unable to absorb the large amount of water, he explained.

Acting reeve Charles Mollard said a survey of recently constructed septic tanks in the municipality bore out Mr. Keenan's statement.

"We are not satisfied on how the tanks are functioning," he said. "In the next few weeks we plan to tighten our regulations, and to supervise soil percolation tests.

"Unless something is done quickly," he added, "Brentwood won't be the only area suffering from a pollution problem."

Crippled Boy Gets $81,816

VANCOUVER (CP)—Damages totalling $81,816 were awarded a four-year-old boy in B.C. Supreme Court Friday.

David Allan Schneider of Vancouver received the award as the result of an accident when he was a baby 2½ years ago. He suffered severe back and other injuries which have left him paralyzed from the chest down for life.

The award, made by Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins is believed to be one of the highest of its type ever made in B.C.

Conservation Spotlighted Next Week

Some of the coming year's news stories on preserving this continent's environment and living species will be born in Victoria during the next four days at a conservationist convention.

The 26th annual conference of the American Association for Conservation Information opens Sunday in the Empress Hotel, the first time it has been held outside the United States.

It will bring together the key man in more than 65 Canadian and U.S. governmental agencies concerned with wildlife and wilderness.

By Wednesday's close, the list of speakers and seminars on the conference theme "Bridges of Understanding" will have been completed and they will desperse to all corners of the continent to apply some of the lessons learned through the interchange of sometimes controversial ideas.

Registration and a director's meeting will occupy most of Sunday with the plenary sessions beginning Monday morning when keynote speaker Dr. Durward L. Allen makes his contribution.

A professor of wildlife ecology at Purdue University, he will speak on "Natural Resources and the Expansionist Philosophy."

Discussions of techniques and messages in reaching sportsmen, sportsmen's magazines and teachers will take up the rest of the afternoon.

Plymouth Rock Mover Must Dodge Bullets

NEW YORK (AP)—A government proposal to move Plymouth Rock to make room for a parking lot has brought a resounding "No" from outraged citizens in a sampling of public opinion by The Associated Press.

Nowhere was the feeling stronger than in the rock's hometown, Plymouth, Mass.

"I own a beautiful home near there and I'll personally shoot anyone who comes around and tries to move that rock," said Mrs. Winifred DiGenova.

The issue was joined after the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce revealed that the historic stepping stone to the New World now may be just a boulder on the doorstep of progress.

It said the National Park Service is preparing a report on establishing a park at the site where tradition says the Pilgrims landed in 1620, and that the report may recommend moving the rock farther from shore to make room for the parking lot.

Black Power View Under TV Probe Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

"Unfortunately the slogan 'black power' has some negative connotations, and those I can't go with," Dr. Martin Luther King told NBC news correspondent Sander Vanocur in an interview filmed for "After Civil Rights . . . Black Power".

The program, an NBC news color special exploring the new trend in furtherance of Negro rights, will be presented on Channel 5, Sunday, at 6:30 p.m.

It will show that there are many definitions of black power which vary from moderate to militant.

Divorce Laws

At present the sole grounds for divorce in most provinces law is adultery. Should there be other grounds? None at all? No change?

Possible changes in the nation's divorce laws are discussed in a 'national town meeting' on CBC-TV's Public Eye, Sunday, at 10 p.m., on Channels 2, 6.

On the program a cross-section of Canadians in studios at four locations across the country query an informed panel in Toronto about divorce — and the advisability and likelihood of changes in existing legislation. The questioners at regional locations, a studio audience in Toronto, and the Toronto panel consist of people with varying points of view on the subject.

Composer's Day

A film tribute to Calixa Lavallee, the 'forgotten' composer of the national anthem O Canada, will be presented on CBC-TV's Centennial color documentary series 20/20. Saturday, at 6 p.m. on Channel 2.

The program about this little-known Canadian composer, pianist, conductor and music teacher, was written by Tom Farley and produced in Ottawa.

Calixa Lavalee was born in Bercheres, Que., in 1842, and destined to be a wandering, idealistic minstrel applauded in foreign countries but much less successful in his own.

In early life Calixa learned to play piano, violin, coronet, and organ. At 13 he was taken by a family friend to Montreal, where he was given every musical advantage and impressed several visiting European masters with his ability.

After two years he ran away with a Negro minstrel show to New Orleans, where he won an international piano competition, and met Spanish violinist Olivera, who engaged him as accompanist on a tour of South America, the West Indies and the southern U.S.

U.S. Soccer

The St. Louis Stars, in first place in the Western Division, meet the rapidly improving Philadelphia Spartans of the Eastern Division in a National Professional Soccer League game in color on Channel 12, Sunday, at 2:30 p.m.

The Stars also lead the Western Division in scoring, with forward Rudi Kolbl, the league's top scorer, heading the attack. A former member of the German National team, Kolbl has rung up 17 points in the scoring race — seven goals and three assists (two points per goal, one per assist).

The Spartans, who have been the toughest to score against thus far, with only seven goals against them in eight games, have the league's leading goaltender in Ernesto Lopera. He has a 0.71 average.

Face Nation

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R—Ill.), will be the guest on "Face the Nation" Sunday, at 12:30, on Channel 7.

The interview with the Senate minority leader will originate in Washington on tape.

Sen. Dirksen is a member of the Finance and Judiciary committees, the Joint Committee on Immigration and Nationality Policy and the Special Committee on Aging.

He is expected to be asked about Vietnam, Republican election plans and his urging of a constitutional convention to consider an amendment to negate the recent Supreme Court ruling that both houses of a state legislature be apportioned on a population basis. Of the 34 states required to make the call for such a gathering mandatory on Congress, 32 have thus far acted.

CBS News Correspondent Martin Agronsky will lead the questioning of Sen. Dirksen, joined by two other newsmen to be selected.

A presentation of CBS News, Face the Nation is produced by Prentiss Childs and Ellen Wadley. Robert Vitarelli is the director.

TANGLED in an assassination plot is Maggie Wright, and it remains for The Saint to unravel the mystery in "To Kill a Saint," 10 p.m., Sunday, on Channel 5.

Grand Ole Opry

Grand Ole Opry great, Little Jimmy Dickens is Jack Roberts' special guest on the "Evergreen Jubilee" colorcast Saturday at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 4.

The noted country music artist will sing his pop music hit, "May the Bird of Paradise Fly Up Your Nose," "We Could" and "Country Music Lover" when he joins Roberts and the Evergreen Drifters on the KOMO telecast.

Jack's solos will include "Sunday Barbecue" and the Evergreen Drifters play "Steel Guitar Rag" featuring guitarist Chubby Howard.

Jimmy Dickens became the first country music star to completely circle the globe on a world tour. He has appeared before millions on television on "The Jimmy Dean Show," "Hullabaloo," "The Floyd Thaxton Show," "The Johnny Carson Show" and "Hollywood A-Go-Go." The latter show was seen in seven foreign countries as well as in the United States.

TONIGHT

7:00 Channel 8: Away We Go. Buddy Greco George Carlin and Buddy Rich are the hosts of the show tonight.

SUNDAY

11:00: Channels 6, 8: Soccer. The championship game from the Autostade in Expo between two of the top teams.

12:30: Channel 4: ABC Scope. What is the attitude of college students towards war. This program takes a look at the situation.

1:00: Channel 5: Meet the Press. Harold Holt, Australian Prime Minister, is the guest today.

1:00: Channel 7: David Susskind has as his guests today, a clairvoyant, Jeanne Dixon, and a talk about the so called jet set is also on the program.

3:30: Channel 5: At Issue. Abortion is the subject to be discussed on this show.

4:00: Channel 4: Mark Twain. A biography of the great American author and humorist.

6:30: Channel 5: NBC News Special. After Civil Rights Black Power — this is the title of this documentory.

10:00: Channels 2, 6: Public Eye. A discussion about Canada's divorce laws.

10:30: Channel 12: Special Report. The story of the first American Indian to undergo artificial kidney treatment.

CAROL LAWRENCE

Carol Joining Vic Damone

Carol Lawrence broke into show business at 13 and has hardly paused since.

The lovely dancer-singer is a starring regular on NBC Television Network's The Dean Martin Summer Show with your host Vic Damone, which debuts Thursday, June 22.

The vivacious, black-haired, brown-eyed star was born in Melrose Park, Ill. Her early idols were Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. Carol attended their movies over and over again. At home Carol copied Ginger's steps while using a broom for Fred.

As a child Carol took dancing lessons and was winning scholarships by the time she was seven. So remarkable was her progress that she had her own nightclub act at 13 (during summer vacations and with her mother as chaperone). During her teens, Carol also appeared with the Chicago Opera Ballet.

SCHOLARSHIP

At Northwestern University on a full academic scholarship, Carol was voted "Freshman of the Year in Theatre." She never completed her second year because a visit to New York resulted in a dancing job.

During the New York visit, Carol sought to watch an audition for dancers for a musical. Informed that "no kibitzers are allowed," Carol borrowed rehearsal clothes from one of the girls auditioning, sallied forth, and won a job on the show.

Parts in other Broadway shows, national tours, and summer stock soon followed, and Carol never did get back to Northwestern. Carol's Broadway credits in the '50s included "Plain and Fancy," "Shangri La" and "Ziegfeld Follies of 1957."

It was during the latter show that Miss Lawrence auditioned for West Side Story, which was to make her one of the brightest stars on Broadway. The producers had been searching for the "right girl" for over two years and Carol was chosen over hundreds of aspirants, including many established stars.

TWO YEARS

After two years with West Side Story, Carol starred on Broadway in "Night Life," "Saratoga," and "Subways Are for Sleeping." She also guest-starred on top TV variety shows and starred as a dramatic actress in many television shows, including "Play of the Week" productions such as "Indiscriminate Woman," "Rashomon," and "The Dybbuk."

Mme. Vanier Discusses Institute

First Interview Since Death Of Governor-General

Pauline Vanier, wife of the late Governor-General Vanier, talks with Adrienne Clarkson about the Vanier Institute of the Family, on CBC-TV's daytime public affairs show, Take 30, 3 p.m. Wednesday, on Channels 6 and 2.

FEATURED at National College Queen Pageant Friday at 10 p.m., on Channel 5, will be Robert Goulet, host for the telecast, and Vicky Lieberstein, last year's queen, who will crown this year's winner.

Mme. Vanier, in her first public appearance since the death of her husband on March 5, talks about her five children and tells how discipline was maintained in her family despite the fact that none of them was spanked.

She tells Adrienne about her courtship and marriage to the young soldier, Georges P. Vanier, and how she had to learn to cope with his wild sense of humor by developing one of her own.

Life without children would have been nothing, despite the careers of herself and her husband in the military, diplomacy, and, finally as the Queen's representatives in Canada, Mme. Vanier says.

Her family has been the most rewarding part of her life, she concludes.

Also appearing on the program is Dr. Wilder Penfield, eminent neurosurgeon and author, who is president of the Vanier Institute of the Family. Dr. Penfield outlines the aims and organization of the Institute.

Sister City

Seattle's newly proclaimed "sister city" — is the subject of a KING-TV News special report to be televised at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, in color on Channel 5.

Entitled I Have Relatives in Seattle, the Ted Bryant-narrated special tours Bergen with emphasis on the similarities between Bergen and Seattle.

The title was derived, according to Bryant, because "it seems to the visitor in Seattle's new sister city . . . that literally everybody in town does have relatives in Seattle."

The program goes on to show some of the other similarities: the waterfront; the hills that surround the city; the public market; the fishing fleet; the International Festival of Music, Bergen's answer to Seattle's Seafair; Bergen University; and the Bergen Symphony Orchestra.

The program will include an interview with a Seattleite who is now living in Bergen, and a Bergenite who is currently living in Seattle.

A highlight of the 30-minute program is filmed exchange between Seattle Mayor J. D. Braman and Bergen Mayor Harry Hansen, during which they formalize the sister city arrangement.

Wayne, Shuster

A not-too-serious account in words and music of how their partnership came about will be Wayne and Shuster's main sketch of the evening, when they present their final show of this season, in color, on CBC television's Show of the Week, Monday, at 9 p.m. on channel's 2, 6.

With music by Stan Daniels, the sketch portrays Johnny Wayne as a young man engaged in an unglamorous occupation from which he is extricated by Frank Shuster, who tries to teach him the comic's art.

The show will open with a look at some of the more amusing aspects of Expo 67. Shirley Harmer will be special guest, singing The Look of Love; and dancer Don Gillies will be joined by Pauline Ross in an interpretation of King of the Road.

Others featured in the comic sketches will be Paul Kligman, Paul Soles, Drew Thompson, Lynne Gorman, Jack Northmore, Sheila Rutanen, George Raymond, Larry Perkins and Stephanie Laird. Herb May is the announcer.

Glacier Park

In "Nostalgic Return to Glacier National Park," a sentimental return to places of early boyhood fun is highlighted in color on KOMO-TV's Northwest Traveler Wednesday, at 7 p.m. over Channel 4.

After 32 years, William Wanser, a Seattle motion picture photographer and a Supply Officer for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, returned to Glacier National Park by truck-camper with his wife, Ethel, and daughter, Linda, a Ballard High School sophomore. He had spent his first 15 years inside Glacier National Park, where his parents operated horseback dude ranches.

Color film of such natural attractions as Gibbon Falls, the Grand Canyon of Yellowstone, the 309 foot high Lower Falls and Norris Geyser will be shown. The Fountain Paint Pots, plus the famous Old Faithful Geyser and Lodge will be viewed.

In Montana, photos of the remote Belly River Valley, Mt. Eagle Plume and Two Medicine Lake are featured. The 9,500-foot high Rising Wolf Mountain and Crossley Lake will be seen.

Wanser will be an in-studio guest of Northwest Traveler host George Carlson. The series is directed for Channel 4 by Art Pattison.

Steve Allen

Steve Allen satirizes telethons and other television phenomena and conducts a zany man-on-the-street interview on The Steve Allen Comedy Hour, new summer series beginning Wednesday, at 10 p.m. in color on Channels 7, 12.

The bespectacled comedy star is accompanied by his wife, actress Jayne Meadows; the David Winters Dancers, the Big Band of Terry Gibbs, Louis Nye, Ruth Buzzi and guest stars Sonny and Cher, John Byner, Lana Cantrell and Dayton Allen. Roy Rowan is the announcer.

Musical numbers feature the entire cast in a satirical song-and-dance fanfare welcoming Allen back to the variety stage; folk-rockers Sonny and Cher singing "Little Man" and "It's the Little Things That Count," and Australian Lana Cantrell singing "Sunshine" and "I've Got a Penny."

Queen Contest

The NBC Television Network will present the finals of the 13th annual "National College Queen Pageant," featuring coed candidates representing all 50 states, to be colorcast live Friday, at 10 p.m. on Channel 5. This will mark the first time the pageant has been televised.

Robert Goulet, singing star of TV, stage and supper clubs, will be host for the special hour. He has starred in several TV specials, played Sir Lancelot in the Lerner and Loewe Broadway musical, Camelot, and is a hit recording artist.

The National College Queen Pageant will originate from NBC Peacock Studio in New York. It will preempt Laredo.

The 50 state finalists, who will vie for the coveted title of National College Queen, will be escorted by cadets from the United States Merchant Marine Academy. Last year's winner, U.C.L.A. sophomore Vicky R. Lieberstein of Tarzana, Calif., will crown her successor who will be selected by a panel of 30 judges based on her scholastic achievement, leadership qualities, poise and attractiveness.

Bass Fishing

KING-TV's Outdoor Editor Ed Sierer shows the special technique necessary to fish for bass on Open Season at 7 p.m., Thursday, in color on Channel 5.

The program will include the catching and then the planting of bass by the Wahington Bass Club in cooperation with the Washington Game Department.

A special feature of the program will be an interview with Ann Strobel, National Women's Casting Champion, who will demonstrate the casting technique which won her the championship.

Editor's Crusade

Angie Dickenson as a top New York model, and Cliff Robertson as her husband, a top ad agency writer, guest star as a couple who chuck their careers so he can fulfill a life-long ambition to be a crusading country editor, in "And Baby Makes Five," comedy about city versus country living and loving on NBC Television Network's color-cast of Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theatre Wednesday, at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

Robertson and Miss Dickinson star as Will and Christina Nye. Others in the cast include Nina Foch as Dee Foster, Nancy Dow as Nan, Walter Abel as Reynard Pitney, Alan Hewitt as James Eckert, Jody Gilbert as Estelita, Sammy Shore as Hector Escobar, Eddie Quillan as Mr. Scott, Andre Carpenter as Jules, and Steve Pendleton as Senator Malone.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDEN

Prune Only If It's Necessary

By JACK BEASTALL

The pruning of flowering shrubs, the same as the pruning of fruit trees, puzzles many home gardeners, especially newcomers to the district.

The newcomer feels that everything should be cut back during the fall, a practice which often results in a flowering shrub that never has a flower.

Jack

The feeling is probably caused by the sentimental writers who love to dwell on "putting the garden to bed."

They apparently call on their experiences with a human infant, drawing similes to bathing, powdering, a cot of clean crisp linen, and the delightful experience of crooning until sleepy eyes close, then the final tucking in for a period of restful repose.

While these preparations against a long period of severe cold are essential in most areas of Canada, this sentimental approach, together with the pleasures of gently "waking the garden" in spring, gives the western gardener the impression that spring and fall are the only seasons of gardening in some areas.

If this is a fact, it explains why the newcomer has such an irresistible desire to prune every tree and shrub when Indian Summer is in the air.

The first thing we have to realize is that pruning is not essential to the culture of any plant.

All our plants are native, or weeds if you like, to some part of the world, and the only pruning they receive is at the hands of the elements.

Gardeners resort to pruning because they have fixed ideas of how a plant should grow in captivity, or because a plant in captivity (under cultivation) needs control or encouragement to do better than it would when left to its own devices.

Ornaments

Since most of the flowering shrubs we cherish as garden ornaments are native to distant parts of this continent and to lands beyond its confines, they are captives in a strange environment and therefore are subjected to a certain amount of pruning in order to conform to our standards of desirable garden plants.

Fortunately for the newcomer, we can place our flowering shrubs into groups according to their time of flowering and thus arrive at a general time at which pruning should be done.

While the successful gardener will readily recognize the need for knowing the name of each plant he is growing, and refer to his gardening books for specific pruning information because some flowering shrubs are never pruned, this general classification is a great help to the beginner, and the newcomer, who feels lost in a West Coast garden.

Some shrubs flower in the months of spring, some during the summer and others in the fall. The time at which a shrub produces blooms indicates its habit in making flower buds.

The spring-flowering shrubs initiate their buds on new growths produced and ripened during the previous summer. We saw these flower on last year's wood.

Should this group be pruned in fall or during winter, flowering shoots would be cut off and there would be few flowers, if any, the next spring.

Time to prune, if pruning is necessary, is immediately after flowering has finished before the new growths have developd to any great extent.

Pruning will encourage new growths to develop where the gardener wishes them to be, usually low down on the plant to keep it pleasantly clothed to soil level.

While pruning usually consists of cutting back shoots which have flowered by one-half their length, the gardener has to be guided by what he considers a balanced shape when pruning is finished.

Quite as important as shape is encouragement of new growths from the base of the shrub to replace old wood that becomes less productive of flowers each year.

The age of different growths can be decided by a careful study of the bark. When the oldest wood has been determined, it is cut off at soil level, or at a strong new shoot low down on the bush.

OLDEST WOOD

This practice of removing the oldest wood every year after flowering keeps the shrubs young, symetrical and floriferous.

The next group includes shrubs which flower in summer and fall. These make their flower buds on growths produced during spring of the same year and we say they flower on new wood.

This group is pruned during winter or before growth starts in spring, using the same pruning rules as for the first group.

So we have two rather elastic, but generally safe, rules to follow.

Rule 1: All flowering shrubs which bloom from March to near the end of June are pruned immediately after flowering. (This means there is plenty of pruning to be done immediately.)

Rule 2: All flowering shrubs which bloom from end of June to end of fall are pruned during late winter or very early spring.

INSTANT HOME UNVEILED

GALT, Ont. (CP) — The instant house, latest contribution to proposed solutions for the housing shortage in Canada's urban areas, was unveiled here this week.

Designed by Prof. Ronald Lazar of the University of Manitoba school of engineering, the prototype is a poured- or blown-concrete shell, looking like a wartime quonset hut, that can be produced at a rate of one a day.

When bulit in quantity, it could cost less than $10,000 for 11,000 square feet of floor space, said Kenneth Goodhind, manager of Design Engineering Associates Corp., co-designers and builders.

Apart from the curved ceiling on the second level, the house is conventional. It has windows in the open ends of the shell and only one door, in the rear of the building.

OLD HOUSE LOOKS NEW

By PAULINE GRAVES

When you think of remodelling, do you think of walls pushed out and of great and drastic changes to make your home look fresh and new? This is not necessarily true.

Architectural details date a house as surely as mid-calf skirts date your dresses. Wide moldings, double-hung windows with heavy sills and frames, and outmoded fixtures key your house to the era in which it was built. Replace these with today's ideas and you have instant renovation, without knocking out walls.

In this 50-year-old house, owned by decorator Dorothy Paul, the size of the kitchen remains the same, but it looks gay and new and is remarkably efficient.

New laminated plastic counters and cabinets with flush doors give the kitchen this year's look, and the installation of an automatic dishwasher increases efficiency.

To keep structural costs as low as possible, the new sink remains in the original location, and a free-standing range selected instead of built-in. For pure decoration, colorful flowers from the fabric used for the Roman shades dress up the ceiling around the simple lights and a cluster of coffee cups hang from old wrought iron hooks.

WEEK'S WORK

Lawns will need thorough watering before they show signs of dryness by becoming brown.

Roses and herbaceous perenials will grow better flowers if given an occasional deep watering, followed by an inch mulch of lawn clippings over the surface.

As lillies begin to show flower buds, give a weak feeding of a balanced fertilizer.

Geraniums in pots, boxes, planters or other containers will benefit from a light feeding. Keep old flower trusses removed so that new ones will develop and cover the plants.

Herbaceous perennials just coming into bloom will like a small application of fertilizer, and a top dressing of well rotted compost. Grass clippings spread thinly around plants will improve soil condition by preventing dryness and cracking of surface.

Peonies need deep watering while in bloom and throughout summer.

Potted azaleas may be planted out into a peaty border to make new growth. Repot in September for Christmas bloom indoors.

Keep all the cabbage family firm in the soil after winds have loosened them.

Water peach trees and grapes if against foundation walls, or the fruits will not swell evenly.

Make succession sowings of all vegetables.

Pick peas and broad beans as soon as usable, even though only a handful are ready. This will encourage others to grow to useful size in more abundance. Both these crops need ample water.

THE BEST ROSE SPRAY YOU HAVE EVER USED-or your money back!

Let you—and your roses—be the judge! Watch Gardal go to work on insects, black spot, mites and mildew. And if it isn't the best rose spray you've ever used, tell us so. Write to Green Cross Products, P.O. Box 489, Montreal. Send us the bottle with label, and we'll send you your money back.

Applied as a liquid spray, Gardal leaves no visible powder or dust deposits. Its systemic insecticide and systemic fungicide go right inside the plant. The systemic insecticide distributes itself throughout the entire plant, protecting tender new growth from insect damage for up to two weeks after application. Systemics cannot be washed off by rain, since they are within the plant.

WHATEVER THE WEED, WHATEVER THE PEST WHAT YOU REALLY NEED IS GREEN CROSS!

Want a greener lawn?

It's in the bag.

You'll find a greener, thicker lawn inside every bag. Easy-to-apply Lawn Green releases nitrogen slowly . . . provides fast-acting, yet long-term feeding. It's easy to handle, too. A lightweight fertilizer . . , 22 lbs. equals 40-80 lbs. of conventional fertilizer, and covers 5,000 square feet. (You not only grow green stuff, you save it!) Take your pick of these other Green Cross lightweight fertilizers.

Hudson's Bay Company
INCORPORATED 2ND MAY 1670

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JUNE 10, 1967—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

There is a question that I run into at least once a week, and usually oftener.

It may be asked in tones that suggest the questioner wouldn't deign to wrap fish-heads in my printed outpourings, or be impelled by amiable curiosity. But in each instance, the wording is the same:

"Where do you get your ideas?

How the other fellows in my trade handle that one, I can only guess. Probably they resort to the same durable if vague cliches that I trot out when thus confronted.

On a day when my typewriter is practically running itself, perhaps an airy, "Well, you know what they say about tricks to every trade . . ."

At other times, the ones when the keys seem welded together, perhaps a grim, "What ideas?"

The truth of the matter is that columns, or articles, or fiction pieces derive from the simple process of living and doing to which we are all exposed while tenants here below.

To this — on an afternoon which was made to order for luring fat Cowichan trout on a dry fly—I can add that most columnists have grown up in the newspaper business.

As a matter of fact, I can't name you one who didn't put in a hitch as a reporter at some time in his experience. This means that he is grooved into the habit of setting words to paper on a day-to-day basis.

This helps; but obviously, no one can go about constructing a column until he has something to write about—and here we come to the nub of the matter.

I recall a coy little rhyme from a more inhibited day that runs, "Where did you come from, baby dear?" to which silly question the infant replies (don't ask me how!) with an "Out of the nowhere into the here."

Ideas often overtake me at casual times. I may be throwing a beach stick for our dog, or testing a bath with cautious toe, when a notion drops in from the nowhere.

After weighing it, I may be forced reluctantly to send it back where it came from. But more often than not, those sendings are lucky ones, and should be dealt with promptly

Not to do so is to court loss. For several weeks now, I have been fishing out at intervals an empty match folder on which is scribbled "turntable." I stare at it, and try to remember the column idea behind this sketchy clue.

Some columns draw from items that bob up in the run of the news; others from sessions, preferably informal, with people whose jobs and lives interest me.

Then there are the odd items, the little sideshows that are always good for a glance in passing.

A column is also a personal letter in which my own ups and downs are bound to figure.

So are yours: a good deal that finds its way into this corner comes from its readers.

I have learned through our years together that a rainy weekend is your best time for writing, but that most with grist for our shared mill are too busy to bother with pen and paper.

You phone . . . and that's fine with me . . . and sometimes you drop in.

I go about the actual writing of a column in the only way anybody ever writes anything, which is by sitting down and setting to work.

Considerable time may elapse between the sitting and the setting, but eventually the gears mesh.

But the idea's what matters, and for a further answer to the question, "Where do you get your ideas?" let me refer you to my wife.

Win doesn't write illegible clues on match folders. She carries them in her head; and when my own idea-bank is temporarily overdrawn, I can count on her for a welcome assist.

To this casual breakdown, I can add that the second most frequent question asked is 'Why don't you . . .?'

This because never yet have any two critics agreed on what a grab-bag column should do or be. Here, another of those well-worn platitudes provides the most useful answer.

'Variety,' it runs, 'is the spice of life.'

Duncan Man In Top Spot At Institute

A Duncan man with an 87.44 per cent average is the top student in the 1967 graduating class of the British Columbia Institute of Technology, it was announced today.

Colin E. Stafford, 21, won the academic award and a silver medal for his studies in electrical and electronics technology. During his last year at BCIT Mr. Stafford was editor of the student newspaper, "The Link". He has accepted a job with the Northern Electric Company in Montreal.

Five other Vancouver Island students, including two Victorians, were among the major award winners.

OTHER WINNERS

Evelyn L. Edwards, 1941 Taylor received the Warner-Chilcott Award and the B.C. Division Award of Canadian Society of Laboratory Technologists with an average of 79.75 per cent.

Richard F. Collis, 408 — 505 Trutch, received the B.C. Association of Broadcasters Award with a 77.16 per cent average.

Robert W. Allen of Courtenay received the David H. Burnett and Associates Award. Richard D. Fitzgerald of Nanaimo won the B.C. Association of Professional Engineers Prize and Miss Lynda-Lou Houston, also of Nanaimo, won the Ortho-Pharmaceutical Prize.

Students, male of female, aiming for a diploma in technology can choose from 17 categories — 12 in the scientific field, two in medical and three in business. With the exception of the medical options all courses offer concentrated training in a two year curriculum.

The institute in Burnaby is not a vocational school. Grade 12 with university program is the entrance requirement. Training is different but not inferior from a university with emphasis on mathematics, English and the sciences. Fees are comparatively low at $150 a year and government scholarships and other financial assistance is available for those qualifying.

Coast Guard Show Outdraws Swiftsure Crowd

In cars, on motor-cycles, even with baby buggies, they flocked to the waterfront for Coast Guard Day.

Traffic was backed up from beyond Clover Point to Ogden Point as parking spots along routes quickly filled up.

The waters offshore seemed almost as crowded as almost the entire west coast fleet of coast guard ships went through their paces.

The skies overhead were little better as helicopters darted and hovered around to the "oohs" and "aahs" of a thousand little boys.

Clover Point was the centre of attraction as the ships — led by the world's most modern weatherships, Vancouver and Quadra — steamed by in line-astern formation.

They also provided the finale with a demonstration of their firefighting abilities in putting out a blaze aboard a mock boat.

Less spectacular, but equally interesting, was a demonstration of buoy laying and pick-up by the supply ship Estevan.

Bucking a rising swell, she hove to only a few yards from shore for the tricky operation.

The $12 million weatherships impressed the crowds just by cruising around, their huge ball-shaped radar domes towering over the fleet.

The two hour show — first of its kind laid on by the department of transport — proved an even greater attraction than the start of the annual Swiftsure classic.

A further crowd catcher was to be open house aboard the ships this afternoon between 2 and 5 p.m.

Scientists and technicians were to be on hand aboard both weatherships to explain the workings of the fully-equipped laboratories.

School Party Broken Up By Police

Colwood RCMP officers broke up a high school dance at Chez Marcel early today when they found evidence of teenage drinking.

Close to 200 young people celebrating graduation from Esquimalt High School were sent home about 2 a.m. after officers toured the Island Highway steakhouse.

"Liquor was found on many tables and there were empty bottles all over the place," said one policeman.

Boys Arrested In Flag Thefts

The boys, charged with theft of goods worth more than $50, are scheduled to appear in juvenile court.

Impaired Driver Fined, Restricted

Griffith Timothy, 467 Lampson, was fined $300 and barred from driving except on business when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving today.

Court was told Timothy's car skidded 42 feet before clipping another auto at Blanshard and Pembroke early today.

Suspensions Causing New Problems

Opinions Differ On IWA Position

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

Fresh problems appeared in sight today following the suspension Friday of four locals of the International Woodworkers of America from the B.C. Federation of Labour.

The locals apparently will not be allowed representation or recognition in local labor councils or the Canadian Labour Congress, under the CLC constitution.

This is the belief of some union officials but others say this is a wrong interpretation. Both groups admit that the phrasing of the constitution is loose.

No interpretation on this aspect has been made by either the federation or the CLC.

Federation officers will be meeting Monday to consider a number of topics, including Friday's suspensions.

COMPLICATIONS

The secretary of the Vancouver Labour Council, Paddy Neale, said today he won't show up for work Monday because this could lead to the council's charter being lifted by the CLC.

He is a member of the Vancouver IWA, which with the Victoria, Duncan and lumber inspector locals were suspended from federation membership Friday.

They had failed to meet the deadline set by the federation executive for a public apology for a public criticism by their presidents of CLC vice-president Joe Morris.

Mr. Neale based his action on a section of the CLC constitution which reads:

"Any local union, branch or lodge or person suspended by or expelled from any body affiliated to or chartered by this congress shall not be allowed representation in this congress or in any local labor council, joint council or federation of labor chartered by this congress."

OPINIONS DIFFER

Other union sources, however, said this section does not apply in this circumstance because the IWA is affiliated with the CLC as one body and not local by local.

The Vancouver and District Labour Council Friday asked the federation to reconsider the suspension, describing them as "too serious" and asking the federation to withhold any action until the annual convention this October.

The suspensions were ordered under a convention-approved policy that unions not air their internal problems in public.

Federation Secretary Ray Haynes said late Friday that a "couple of letters from the unions involved" have been received but none includes an apology.

He said the letters will be discussed Monday but "there really is not much change. We have asked for an apology and we have not got it."

Error Cancels Charge

An accused man guessed wrong in central court Friday and had his charge dismissed.

"Do you plead guilty or not guilty?" asked Magistrate Ostler after a charge of having a dog unlawfully at large was read to an Esquimalt man.

"I guess I'm guilty," he replied.

Magistrate Ostler said a guess wasn't good enough.

The magistrate started to read the charge again, then stopped.

"This says that in the City of Victoria he committed an offence against an Esquimalt bylaw. The case is dismissed. And I hope the Crown won't recharge this man. He's put in time here this morning for this case."

He was assured the matter was dropped.

Bar Patrons Feel Result Of Increase

Diners and drinkers can expect to pay more for wines and liquors in restaurants and cocktail bars before too long if they are not already doing so.

That's the indication from comments made by a number of hotel and restaurant spokesmen today.

June 1, the B.C. Liquor Control Board increased liquor prices. Average increase was about a dime a bottle but many of the items on the LCB list of 1,500 were untouched.

ABSORB INCREASES

Len Ingraham of the Ingraham Hotel said he feels that all wine and liquor prices will go up but only to absorb the increases made by the LCB.

"I don't think prices will increase on wines and liquors that weren't increased by the bottle, June 1," he said.

But LCB increase or not, the winer and diner could have expected his drinks to cost more before too long, Mr. Ingraham said. Recent wage increases for bartenders have to be covered.

William E. Webb, president of the local branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association didn't share Mr. Ingraham's views on price increases.

"Some of the bottle price increases were so small that a lot of people may not bother to pass them on to the customers. In many cases it would not be worth the cost of reprinting the wine lists," he said.

NONE PLANNED

An Imperial Inn spokesman said that there were no changes contemplated as a result of the LCB price hike but some small increases were made in the price of drinks some time before the LCB announcement.

The Cherry Bank spokesman said increases are contemplated in the future but it wasn't likely that it would amount to more than five cents, depending on the drink.

The Strathcona has already increased some drink prices by five cents but others are unchanged.

The Coach and Four and McPherson Restaurant are still the same but no decision has been made on possible increases.

5-Year Old Boy Critically Hurt

Hit by Car Crossing City Street

A five-year-old boy is in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after he was hit by a car at Hillside and Quadra Friday evening.

Anthony Faulkner, 970 Market St., suffered cuts to his head, chest and legs, broken ribs and internal injuries when he was knocked down as he was crossing Quadra Street with his mother, Marlene.

City police said driver of the car involved was Emma Howard, 80, of 10227 West Saanich Rd. She was westbound on Hillside and making a right turn onto Quadra, officers reported.

The boy is being treated in the hospital's intensive care unit.

He suffered head injuries when a defective door on his truck flew open as it was rounding a curve and he fell out.

JAPANESE BARQUES COMING

Vision to Stir Seafarers

Look seaward off Race Rocks Wednesday evening to catch a vision stirring any seafarer's heart.

There under full sail about 6 p.m. will be, not one, but two four-masted barques — a salute from Japan to Canada's Centennial Year.

The Nippon Maru and Kaiwo Maru, almost identical twins built in 1930, are training ships operated by the Japanese Institute for Sea Training.

Manned by 65 officers and 160 cadets, they will arrive at Ogden Point at 8 p.m. next Wednesday. Visitors will be welcomed aboard the ships next Saturday and Sunday afternoons between 2 and 5 o'clock.

Next Sunday morning at 10:45 the ships will give a demonstration of sail drill which will be described by members of the Thermopylae Club.

Sightseeing tours and sports events are among entertainment plans for the Japanese sailors, including a band concert, Judo display and baseball at Royal Athletic Park starting at 1 p.m. next Sunday.

R. T. Bower, publisher of the Daily Colonist and chairman of the city's welcoming committee, said the committee is anxious to hear from citizens ready to provide private entertainment for officers, cadets and men.

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce will accept invitations on behalf of the ships from now up to next Friday. Persons interested should phone 383-7191.

The ships are two of the very few four-masters left in the world. They will leave Victoria June 20. The Nippon Maru will visit New Westminster June 21 to 26 and the Kaiwo Maru will be at Prince Rupert June 25 to 29.

Bishop's Widow Died Today At Age of 91

She was 91.

Bishop Doull died at Vernon, B.C., in 1936. From 1909 he was for many years Dean of Christ Church Anglican Cathedral, Victoria.

Born in Montreal, Mrs. Doull came to Victoria from Vernon 11 years ago.

She is survived by four daughters: Mrs. E. B. Q. Buchanan, Montreal; Mrs. W. Flewin, Vesuvius Bay; Mrs. D. G. Esselmont, Victoria; and Miss Alix Doull, Victoria; two sons, Keith of Vancouver, and Cmdr. Ronald Doull, London, England.

Canon Hywell Jones will conduct the funeral service at St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, Monday at 11 a.m. with McCall Brothers in charge. Cremation will follow.

Harbor Service In Remembrance Of Veterans

More than 70 Victoria veterans will attend a wreath-laying memorial service at the mouth of Esquimalt Harbor Sunday morning.

This is the first of a number of Victoria ceremonies marking the Canada-wide observance of Veterans' Week from Sunday to Saturday.

At 10 a.m. the veterans will depart from HMC Dockyard aboard three Royal Canadian auxiliary vessels and sail to the mouth of the harbor for the ceremonies.

Among them will be veterans from the Naval Officers', the Chiefs and Petty Officers, the Royal Canadian Legion, the Hong Kong Veterans and other associations.

Ask The Times

Q. What solution is used for washing out bottles for the making of wine or root beer? F.R.

A. A solution of potassium metabisulphite which is available at stores dealing in wine making supplies.

Q. What is the address of the Football Association in London? I want to send a copy of Hal Malone's column on the visit of the Chelsea club to Victoria plus a few comments of my own. E.C.B.

A. 20 Lancaster Gate W2, London, England.

Q. Where was the Virgin Mary born? — R.N.

A. Church authorities say there is no record of where the Virgin was born, but some believe it was Jerusalem.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Visitor From Bavaria

Dr. I. C. Alfons Goppel, Prime Minister of the Free State of Bavaria, will arrive at Government House late on Monday evening and will be a guest there until his departure on Wednesday morning. On Tuesday, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will attend a luncheon in the Union Club, given in honor of the visitor and, that evening, His Honor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will give a dinner in his honor at Government House.

His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes are in Kelowna today. They leave for Vernon on Sunday afternoon, where they will attend a veterans' memorial service at the Cenotaph. Following the ceremony, they will return to Victoria by air.

Convention Begins

Several wives will be joining their husbands when the American Association for Conservation Information meets for a convention at the Empress Hotel on Monday and Tuesday. Forty-three states will be represented as well as the provinces of Alberta, British Columbia, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and New Brunswick. Monday afternoon, the wives will enjoy a tea at the Olde England Inn and, on Tuesday morning, will join their husbands for a sight-seeing tour on double-decker buses and a luncheon at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Leaving the hotel, the party will travel to Finlayson Point for a "beside the sea" seminar. Tuesday's activities will end with an awards banquet in the Empress Hotel's ballroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Hebden, 1917 San Juan Avenue, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Barbara Anne, to Mr. William Michael Dohm, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dohm, 3479 Metchosin Road. The wedding will take place on Friday, July 7, at 7:30 p.m. in St. Aidan's United Church.

SWINGING SISTERS—Sister Mary Elizabeth and Sister Mary Ethel of St. Mary's Priory join in the fun as Reg Young and Arthur de Meulles, two of the Vancouver Island Crumpets' rock-'n'-roll group, get in a little practice for the gala show which the priory's Women's Auxiliary will sponsor next Saturday at 8 p.m. in the McPherson Playhouse under the convenership of Mrs. V. Fenwick. Other artists on the program are Jerry Gosley, Peter Williams, the Adeline Duncan and Wynne Shaw dancers, pupils of Miss Lindley's dancing school, the Keith Potts family, Barry Grimshaw, Reg Stofer and Miss Elizabeth Stocklin. Reservations may be made through the theatre's box office or any auxiliary member.

Groom's Father Officiates at Service Today

ROBERTS-RUSTON VOWS EXCHANGED

A gown of peau de soie fashioned with a bodice of exquisite Venetian lace was worn by Barbara Mary Ruston when she became the bride of Richard Frederick Anthony Roberts this afternoon in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Esquimalt.

The gown was styled on empire lines with a scoop neckline and sleeves tipping the elbow. The full train, bordered with a scalloped edge, swept back from the waistline. A headpiece of Venetian lace with pearl and crystal accents held her silk illusion veil which softly misted to cathedral length. Her only jewelry accent was a pearl necklace. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white freesia.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ruston, 853 Byng Street, and the groom's parents are Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Roberts, 1393 Rockland Avenue.

White and yellow flowers were on the altar for the ceremony, and the church choir sang during the service. Rev. Roberts, the groom's father, officiated.

Attendants to the bride chose gowns of pastel-printed voile and mint green silk organza, styled on empire lines with bell-shaped sleeves. Miss Margaret Roberts, the groom's sister, was maid of honor, bridesmaids were the Misses Suzanne Darimont and Robin Hibberson, and Suzanne Roberts, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. All wore pearl necklaces, and their bouquets were of yellow marguerites and white daisies. Headpieces were fashioned from similar flowers.

At the reception following in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, yellow and white flowers decorated the head table. Peter Roberts, proposed the toast to his niece.

For travelling on honeymoon to the provincial interior, the new Mrs. Roberts chose a two-piece lime green suit styled with a mandarin collar. She complemented the outfit with white accessories.

SEW SIMPLE

I've always told you the most frustrating part about making spaghetti strap detail is the original turning of your fabric over the cording. One of my pupils who actually made a mistake when making her cording came up with the slickest trick I've ever seen, and I couldn't wait to pass it on to you.

I'll review the steps briefly. However, if you desire a complete set of instructions, you may obtain your detailed copy of "Spaghetti Straps and Rope Belts" by sending 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper.

Cut bias strap of fabric about two inches wide, and piece fabric if necessary to achieve the desired length. You will need twice the length of cording or string as the bias strip. Fold cording in half and stitch the centre to one end of the bias strip on the wrong side of the fabric. This machine stitching should be about ¼-inch from end of bias.

Now bring cord to right side of bias strip, fold strip over cord (right side inside) and machine stitch with a zipper foot, fairly close to cord. Begin with a wide angle and gradually straighten out your stitching (this makes turning easier).

Be sure to slightly stretch the fabric at the stitching line as you machine stitch. This will give elasticity to the seam and avoid breaking stitches when turning. Cut excess fabric from bias strip; leave exactly the same amount of fabric that appears between stitching line and fold of fabric.

You will be thrilled to see how easy it will be to turn this cording since it was already begun for you when you stitched the cord to the wrong side of fabric in the first step.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Of course I remember you're here with me . . . this is just practice for when you're not."

Bette Malone certainly enjoyed British Columbia on her visit here. "I love to see all that green grass and trees. What a novel change after all that white in the east last winter."

She's a Walking Expert on Canadiana

By DINA SUDLOW

Bette Malone probably knows more about Canada than most Canadians — and she only arrived here last year.

When she landed in Canada, she was looking for a job at the same time a large national moving firm was looking for a home economist. Bette had the requirements — and the job.

She's crossed the country three times in the last year — visiting big cities, little towns, and loving every minute of it.

She's seen Canada with the eyes of its people: "Every place I visit, someone always takes me around and shows me the sights they think are worth seeing. Often they're what most tourists never think to see."

Bette's practically a walking gold mine about her new country. Not only has she seen more of it than most natives, but her position as a moving consultant requires her to send information about different cities to families moving there.

"As cities and towns are constantly growing and changing, our information sheets must change with them," she says. "I learn quite a bit through revising."

These sheets list information on schools, recreational and medical facilities, shopping centres, churches—just about everything you can think of.

Her service to moving families doesn't stop there, however. She also writes pamphlets geared to moving problems of the homemaker. "It's the wife and mother who has the greatest responsibility when moving.

"The housewife supervises the packing or does it herself, keeps the family out of the way of movers and generally superintends all the process of leaving one home and making the other habitable.

"She wants to know what to pack and how to pack it — antique furniture, delicate ornaments. So Bette supplies the answers.

As a gal who practically lives out a a suitcase the year 'round, Bette has become quite an expert in the art of packing light — but having enough to keep her looking as though she just stepped out of the proverbial bandbox. She's even written pamphlets about this, too! How much to take and how to take it—she's even added a check-list for convenience.

Because Bette's job keeps her on the go constantly, she doesn't have too much time for social life.

"But I don't mind," she smiles. "This way, I have a chance to meet more people, see more places, and do more than I would if I just settled down in one city.

"I love meeting people 'cause everyone is friendly and helpful — and I'm getting quite spoiled!"

Players Raise Funds For Tournament Trip

Four local women have been chosen as members of the national team which will represent Canada at the International Field Hockey Tournament in Germany this summer.

Leaving on August 31 for the tournament will be Nancy Hill, vice-captain; Susan and Marguerite Bradford and Vivian Wilkinson.

To raise funds for the trip, members of the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association will be holding a bazaar on Saturday, June 17, at "Christmas Hill," the home of Mrs. Montague Bridgman, 4076 Quadra Street.

Featured at the event, from 2 to 5 p.m., will be a Chinese auction, bingo games and tea. For the youngsters there will be games and hot dogs.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

By NONA DAMASKE

Etiquette With the Men in Mind

Most families have a book of etiquette stashed away on the bookshelf.

Damaske

There may be some help for the confused young male in one of these books, but for the most part, the advice offered is slanted to the women of the household.

I was searching for a book of advice for men written by a man, but it seems men are not so prone to tell their own sex how to behave. Much of the advice in Miss Munson's book is run of the mill and is followed, as a matter of course, by most men. However, it is a handy book of reference and regardless how many "how to" books you read there are always new things to learn.

Men are responsible for the carrying out of good manners in most social situations. In everything, from the amenities of lighting cigarettes and holding doors, to the business world and its private rules of protocol, men must take the initiative.

There is nothing effeminate about observing the niceties of life. Being well mannered is as important as being clean . . . you may offend your fellow man by ignoring one as much as by forgetting the other. Nothing adds or subtracts from a good impression faster than the clothes a man wears. Before he speaks, you have a chance to look him over and you automatically make certain mental notes about him.

Your clothes are a reflection of yourself just as the code of behavior which governs them is a reflection of the society in which we live.

It is especially important that you wear the appropriate outfit when dating a young lady. Girls are terribly conscious of being dressed correctly, and if you show up in slacks and sweater when she's attired in her best she'll be mortified. No matter where you take your date, there is a standard type of outfit for the occasion, and you should know what is expected of you. If it isn't a formal affair where clothing rules are rigid, there will be the unwritten rules set up by your own group as to what to wear for the occasion. Clothes for calling on friends at summer cottages should be casual, well-pressed sports clothes rather than good clothes which you no longer care about because they have seen better days.

Dining out with a young lady should be an enjoyable occasion for you both but HER enjoyment is your main concern. The gentleman is always in full charge when dining out. Before the arrival of the waiter you should have received her complete order with the exception of dessert. You give the waiter her order first, followed by your own.

The more mature man may wish to order wine with dinner. Under no circumstances must he ask his lady companion to make the decision as to the type of wine. A man is always expected to choose the wine. For this reason it is good practice to always have a few standard wines in mind. If you are timid about making a choice, by all means, ask the waiter to suggest an appropriate one.

Traditional ceremonies require special knowledge of hard and fast rules. Weddings, funerals and christenings include a vast amount of ritual. If you are asked to be a godparent you must realize this is a very high honor and you must never refuse unless there is some religious block. You should expect to have a long association with the child and to be responsible for him in the event of his parent's death.

When you are invited to a wedding your gift should arrive beforehand and it is sent in the name of the bride. Never take your gift to the wedding or the reception.

When the death notice of a friend asks that flowers be omitted you may still express your sympathy in the accepted manner. You may either send flowers to a hospital or church in memory of the deceased or else send a contribution to a charity in which he or she was interested.

Mary Lou Munson is a citizen of the United States and one or two of her suggestions do not quite agree with our customs, but good manners are much the same around the world.

SHOPPING GUIDE

By Penny Saver

Each year vacationers flock to Victoria to relax and enjoy the magnificent city to which most of us have grown accustomed. Now that summer's here, there isn't a more pleasant way to spend the early evening than to go for a long drive or walk along by the sea. The Saver household did this the other evening, taking along our young neighbor. Our little friend was thrilled to be able to chase "shegulls," see ships and run around on the beach. She's used to swimming in a pool or at the nearby lakes, and could only remember seeing "the whole ocean" once before. This struck us Savers, who are beach-goers from way back, as a great shame. We've started a campaign to promote not just visitors, but residents, getting out to enjoy the local scenery.

Another thing that visitors love to look at as well as buy while they're in the city, are pieces of Canadian Indian and Eskimo handicrafts. This handicraft work is centuries old and today the arts of carving and weaving are dying in many areas. Those pieces which are made are valuable not only for their extraordinary beauty, but also in some instances, for the fact that they may no longer be available in years to come.

In one local shop, each year scores of visitors are intrigued by the local crafts and take back numerous items to their homes as souvenirs. One of the most interesting of the native arts sold in this store are the Eskimo carvings. More than a thousand pieces of these uniquely designed pieces are available here. Seals, Arctic loons, walrus, bears are patiently hand-carved from grey-green serpentine, and no two pieces are alike. Each figure is hand-polished with oil to bring out the stone's gloss and color, to highlight the light and shadows of its outlines. These unique animal figurines are true collector's items, and each piece is marked with the name of the artist, his community, and the name of the animal portrayed. The fine representatives of Eskimo carving are priced from $5.

Other items popular with visitors are the elk and seal skin slippers. The ancient art of hand-fashioned bead-work is used to decorate these soft and cuddly slip-ons. Some of these slippers are made only of elk skins, some are made with seal detailing over the toe or on the ankle, and some are loafer-style with bead-work designs. The plain seal boots in gold and grey tones are muk-luk style, coming a few inches above the ankle. The full range of designs and materials is priced from $7.50.

If you're interested in buying native handicrafts, a fine selection is available now. If you'd like to know where I shopped please give me a call at 382-3131.

Bride-Elect Widely Feted Prior to Coming Marriage

A number of parties and showers herald the forthcoming marriage of Miss Gillian Terry. She will marry Sub-Lt. C. M. Gale next Saturday.

Co-workers at the Bank of Nova Scotia gathered for a shower to honor Miss Terry, recently. It was held in the Esquimalt Road home of Mrs. Albert Keusch.

Friday evening, Mrs. A. H. Higgs and Mrs. D. Higgs were co-hostesses at a shower in the Westdowne Road home of the former.

There were 10 guests in the Island Road home of Mrs. William Leach when she entertained Miss Terry at an informal supper party.

This morning, the bride-elect was honored at a coffee party, given by Miss Marianne Fraser in her Crescent Road home.

On Wednesday, the Midland Road home of Mrs. H. R. Turner will be the setting for a small luncheon honoring the bride-elect.

VICTORIA MAN WED UP-ISLAND

Elliott-Barton Vows Exchanged Today

A wedding of interest to many Victorians took place in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Qualicum Beach, this afternoon, when Barbara Noreen Maye Barton became the bride of Gary Neil Elliott, Victoria.

Parents of the principals are Capt. and Mrs. Arthur William Barton of the up-Island community and Dr. and Mrs. G. Reid Elliott, 2608 Cavendish Avenue, Victoria.

Baskets of roses and carnations decorated the church and white gladioli and stocks were at the altar for the service conducted by Rev. William Hills.

Capt. Barton gave his daughter in marriage and George Knight, Qualicum, was organist.

Delicate lace outlined the three-quarter-length sleeves and was echoed in appliques on the empire-line bodice of the bride's peau d'elegance gown. The floor-length skirt was gently A-line. Appliques also starred the bow detail which held a short train.

Her only jewelry accent was an heirloom gold cross set with pearls, "something old" which had belonged to her grandmother in Scotland. Her bouffant chapel veil was scalloped and misted to chapel-length from a floral headpiece, "something borrowed" from Mrs. M. Burley, Victoria. She carried white gladioli and roses in her bouquet.

Best man was Lorne Cox, Vancouver, and ushering the guests were Frank Tovey, Victoria and the bride's cousin Jon Leney, Cowichan Station.

Eric Leney proposed the toast to his niece at the reception following in the Qualicum Beach Inn.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Money Hungry Kid Has Lot to Learn

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem in our family that is growing worse. Our son is 11 years old and he is the most money-hungry kid I have ever seen. All this boy thinks about is money. When I ask him to do a simple chore, such as emptying the trash, he says, "How much is it worth to you?"

If he lends a friend a dollar, he charges him outrageous "interest." He carries his lunch to school, sells it to the highest bidder, buys himself a bottle of milk for lunch, and pockets the difference. His father and I are pleased that our son respects money, but we think he is overdoing it. What should we do?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: An excessive preoccupation with ANYTHING, be it money, food, sex or what-have-you, is a symptom of an unhealthy personality. Children usually mirror their parents' attitudes, so perhaps without knowing it you have had more to do with shaping the boy's values than you think.

If you and your husband can't cure his "money-hunger" with reason and patient example, perhaps a psychiatrist can help him. (You'll probably have to pay the kid to go, but it could be worth it.)

DEAR ABBY: My sister eloped last January and my parents and I are going to visit her and her husband next weekend.

I have never met my brother-in-law. Would it be proper for me to kiss him? Or should I just shake hands?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: If you're a fellow, just shake hands. If you're a girl, a sisterly kiss would be in order.

DEAR ABBY: I am only 15, but I learned a lesson I will never forget.

When my parents used to tell me they "worried" when I didn't come home when I said I would, I thought they were silly. Well, now that I got a taste of my own medicine, I don't think they're so silly anymore.

Last Saturday night my folks went out and said they'd be home around midnight. Well, it got to be one o'clock in the morning, then two, then three and they still weren't home, Abby, I nearly went out of my mind imagining they were both dead in a ditch somewhere with the car on top of them.

Finally, at 4 a.m., they came home. It seems they ran into some old friends and were just sitting around their apartment talking over old times. They didn't bother to call me because they didn't think I'd worry. Believe me, I will NEVER give them the kind of night they gave me.

Of Two Local Girls on Trip to Expo 67

NEW NATIONAL PRIDE WAS REWARD

Sherry Parrott, 18, and Helen Ingham, 17 (at right), have only one big complaint about their recent trip to Expo 67 . . . it wasn't long enough. They're going back in September for another visit. (Bill Halkett.)

By PAT DUFOUR

Have you ever been so full of national pride that you felt as if you were bursting?

If you haven't, two local teen-agers are convinced that a trip to Expo 67 is just the medicine you've been looking for.

Sherry Parrott and Helen Ingham, both first-year students at the University of Victoria, have just returned from an eight-day visit to the show-of-all-shows. They're still bubbling with excitement.

Says Helen, who's the daughter of Mrs. Hislop Ingham, 542 Oliver Street, and the late newspaperman Don Ingham, "When you see the tremendous achievements there, you can't help feeling proud to be a Canadian."

Her friend, the vivacious daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Parrott, 9620 Ardmore Drive, chimes in with "The themes pavilions, all done by Canada, are the finest there. They make you feel like sticking out your chest and bragging about your country."

BRITISH FAVORITE

Both agree that the British pavilion was their favorite among the national exhibits. "It's fun and lively, all about people, rather than dams and things like that." The Israeli pavilion and the Canadian Indian are two more of their favorites.

Of the latter, Sherry says, "It makes you feel ashamed of what we've done to the Indian. You leave with a strong impression that they don't want to really integrate, they want to hold on to their own traditions."

They were confused and less than impressed with the religious pavilion. "The theme is supposed to be the brotherhood of man. It seems to us that the only message that really came across was that of anti-Nazism."

PEOPLE, PLEASE

Both girls admitted that they felt homesick when they saw the British Columbia exhibit in the Western Provinces pavilion. "The trees smelled so fabulous. But, even there, we wished there'd be more on people and tourism and less of industry."

For university students, at least, it appears that a trip to Expo doesn't have to cost a fortune. Sherry and Helen visited Expo under the Canadian Union of Students plan which allows a student to be there for four days, board and breakfast included, for $28. In addition, the plan includes a sightseeing tour of the city and a dinner in one of Montreal's famous restaurants.

Helen and Sherry shared one of 50 cubicles set up for women students in an old building that once was a Jewish synagogue. Male students slept, dorm fashion, in the gym of a Catholic school across the street.

On the grounds of Expo, the two friends continued to find bargains, especially in the matter of meals. Although they admit that gourmets, as everywhere, must expect to pay Ritz prices for their selective brand of eating, Sherry and Helen report that they found meals were inexpensive. They quote a typical meal as being one they had in the Italian pavilion which included everything from chicken and vegetables to dessert. It cost $2.50 a head and the bill was hiked to $3 when the government tax and service tax was added. Each menu includes these taxes in its price list and the service tax is an above-board and logical solving of the "how much do I tip?" problem.

The service tax is not included in the many buffet places that are scattered over the grounds. The self-service restaurants, the girls say, are an excellent way of having an inexpensive second meal.

It's advisable to keep in healthy shape for your Expo sorties. The girls made many a quick dash in order to get in as much pavilion-hopping as possible. "We'd look for the shortest line . . . and run!"

Nobody doubts that Expo will do wonders for Canada's image across the world. It also looks as if it will work miracles for Canadians' figures, especially their legs.

Heirloom Locket Is Token For Bride Heather Grant

A gold locket which belonged to her maternal grandmother was the "something old" talisman for Heather Dawn Taylor when she became the bride of Donald Norman Grant recently.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of taffeta encaged in white lace. Her pillbox hat was of similar lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow talisman roses and for "good luck", a small silver horseshoe.

Spring flowers decorated the chapel of St. Luke's Church for the service conducted by Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Taylor of North Vancouver, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Grant, 4865 Wesley Road.

Matron of honor, Mrs. E. R. Gibbons, chose a two-piece suit in an apricot shade, with white accessories. She carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

At the reception following in the Wesley Road home of the groom's parents, W. A. McCoubrey proposed the toast to his goddaughter.

For travelling on honeymoon in the Cariboo, the new Mrs. Grant chose a dress suit in yellow and white, topped with a camel coat. Her accessories were en tone with the dress.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Local Teacher Chosen

Mrs. Margaret Stapleton, who teaches at Royal Oak Junior Secondary School, has been chosen to attend a three-week course at Edinburgh University this summer. She will be one of more than 100 graduates of universities in Europe, Commonwealth countries and the United States, who will gather there to study British literature, history and philosophy of the 19th century. Mrs. Stapleton graduated from Edinburgh University in 1952. Accompanying her on the trip will be her two children. They will spend a six-week visit with their Scottish grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Forrest.

Announcement

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Sandra Lillian Robertson, daughter of Mr. William T. Robertson, 545 Tait Street, and Mr. George Llewellyn Grover, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Grover, 3206 Bellevue Street. The wedding will take place on Friday, June 30, at 7 p.m. in St. Mark's Anglican Church. Rev. R. Willis will officiate.

Hospital Party

Aberdeen Private Hospital patients, their relatives and friends enjoyed an afternoon of entertainment, Sunday, in the hospital. Presenting the concert was vocalist, Mr. John Dunbar, accompanied by Mrs. Merlise Hill. Following the program, refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Matson, Mrs. S. Johns, Mrs. R. Clarke, Mrs. D. Youlden and Mrs E. Botting.

Grandmother's Birthday Today Is Choice for Rokus-Hawes Vows

An heirloom crescent brooch belonging to her grandmother Mrs. Marcella Hemeon was the "something old" talisman for Berna Marcelene Hawes when she became the bride of Imre Peter Rokus this afternoon in St. Matthias Church. The wedding date was chosen because today is Mrs. Hemeon's birthday.

The brooch, studded with seed pearls, and small pearl earrings were the only jewelry accents to the bride's dainty gown of white peau de soie. Delicate Chantilly lace formed the yoke of the empire-line bodice, which was fashioned with lily-point sleeves. Self-fabric rosettes at the waist held twin panels which extended to the hemline. A single satin rose held her veil of French illusion net which misted softly to her shoulders. White gardenias and stephanotis were in her bouquet which she later presented to her grandmother.

Canon J. Rogers heard marriage vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy A. Hawes, 2698 Topp Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Imre Rokus of Nagybaracska, Hungary. Mr. Hawes gave his daughter in marriage.

As the couple signed the register, organist Eric Edwards played "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus".

Matching street-length dresses of soft sea blue and green chiffon over taffeta, fashioned on empire lines, were worn by maid of honor, Miss Barbara Blakely, and bridesmaid Miss Carol Blume. Their headpieces were rings of peau de soie en tone and they carried fan-shaped bouquets of white carnations.

Best man was Jeno Tihanyi and ushering guests was Janos Toth.

Lily of the valley in a selangor pewter vase, which was brought from Malaya by the bride's mother, topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in the Tally-Ho Travelodge. Carl Hemeon proposed the toast to the bride and telegrams were read from the bride's sister Glenda in South America and Miss Andrea Rose, Europe.

Following a honeymoon trip to Harrison Hotsprings, the newlyweds will be making their home in Vancouver, where the groom will be completing his studies in dentistry at the University of British Columbia.

A dress and coat ensemble in tangerine and rose printed linen was the choice of the new Mrs. Rokus for travelling. Her accessories were in white tones and her corsage was of white stephanotis.

ROBERTSON-LOVE

To Make Home in Alberta

Following a honeymoon trip touring Washington and Oregon, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. David Lawrence Robertson will continue on to Milk River, Alta., where they will be making their new home.

The bride, the former Ruth Joann Love, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Love, 1989 Newton Street, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Robertson of Calgary. Metropolitan United Church was decorated with white gladioli and carnations for the double-ring service, this afternoon, conducted by Rev. John A. Watson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of peau d' elegance, made by Mrs. George Jones. Appliques of Guipure lace outlined the rounded neckline of the bodice, and sleeves ended in lily points. The same accents were on the belled skirt and train, which swept back from a bow at the waist. Seed pearls and rhinestones shimmered on the coronet, "something borrowed" from Mrs. Graeme Davis of Auckland, N.Z., which held her fingertip veil. Jewelry accents were a pearl necklace and earrings, gift of the groom. Pink roses and fern topped the white Bible she carried.

Matching empire-line gowns of blue brocade were worn by matron of honor Mrs. William Rose and bridesmaid Miss Gay Oldfield. Self-fabric roses, edged with net, formed their headpieces and they carried cascade bouquets of white gladioli and carnations. Jewelry was the bride's gifts of pearls.

Ron O' Brien was best man and ushering the guests were Keith MacMillan and Ron Chapman. Gold butterflies and white wedding bells topped the four-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in the Ingraham Hotel. The centrepiece was made and decorated by Mrs. George Peeke-Vout. Robert W. Stewart proposed the toast to the bride and Mrs. J. Adkins was organist.

For travelling, the new Mrs. Robertson donned a three-piece knit walking suit in pale yellow shade. She chose a white hat and accessories and white roses en corsage to complement the outfit.

Hold Open House And Realize $400

The sum of $400 was realized when the Women's Auxiliary of the Victoria Branch, British Columbia Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, assisted at a recent open house at the animal shelter. D. B. Hudson was in charge of a display of dog obedience trials, given by members of the Greater Victoria Dog Obedience Training Club.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hynds, 2428 Dalhousie Street, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Beverley Joan, to Mr. Dionisio Durante, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Durante of Montebelluna, Italy. The wedding will take place on Saturday, July 8, at 7:30 p.m., in First United Church with Rev. R. J. D. Morris officiating. The bride-elect is a 1967 graduate of the University of British Columbia's School of Rehabilitation Medicine (physiotherapy.

The Hon. John Gilbey—International Quality Controller

Embarking on one of his frequent voyages overseas, the Hon. John Gilbey talks about his unique job as Gilbey's International Quality Controller—and why it takes him to every corner of the earth:

"My gin has been the best gin in the world for no less than 110 years," says the Hon. John Gilbey. "It is my job to make sure that Gilbey's London Dry matches the original English standard no matter where it is made." So he travels to the 39 countries where Gilbey's London Dry is famous, and he samples the gin that carries his name.

"Wherever I taste Gilbey's London Dry," he explains, "I expect to find the subtle flavour that people call . . . the perfect balance for mixed drinks."

Next time you see Gilbey's famous frosty bottle, remember the Hon. John Gilbey and his job as Gilbey's International Quality Controller. And as you taste the gin with the perfect balance for mixed drinks, bear in mind his proud words: "This is my gin! For no less than 110 years it has carried my family's name. Gilbey's London Dry is the gin with the perfect balance for mixed drinks. And I shall make sure it stays that way."

Be Smart

Into every girl's life (we hope only occasionally) comes a sleepless night, and the following morning brings under-eye, Eight O'Clock Shadow. A little tube of cover-up in your skin tone wipes it out, makes you look bright, anyway!

Reginald Stone says:

People are really discovering that with a THOMAS ORGAN, all music takes on a new dimension. If your ear has become jaded by the tone of ordinary organs, just listen to a THOMAS ORGAN.

Lawrence Welk uses THOMAS exclusively in his orchestra. He of all people should know the score! Reginald Stone offers generous trade in, ten weeks' lesson course, and complete after-sales service.

The THOMAS line of organs can be heard only at the establishment "where customers become friends."

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the many friends and relatives for their kind expressions of sympathy and floral offerings, also Dr. Stirling and staff of St. Joseph's Hospital for their kindness in the passing of our Mother.—The Randall Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

LOCK—In loving memory of a dear mother and nanny who passed away June 11, 1965.

What would we give to clasp her hand,
Her happy face to see,
To hear her voice and see her smile,
That meant so much to us.

—Always remembered by daughters Dorothy, Betty, Phyllis, Pat and grandchildren.

LOGAN—In loving memory of Duncan Logan who passed away June 11, 1964.

Wishing today as we wished before,
That God could have spared you
many years more.
But in our hearts your memory
is kept,
To love and cherish and never forget.

—Remembered always by his wife and family.

TATE—In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Ellen Tate, who passed away June 10, 1965.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just, to the end of her days;
Sincere and true, in her heart and mind,
behind.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The late Philip Hal Sims was probably the greatest auction bridge player. He also was mighty good at contract except that he liked to bid his slams by the quickest possible method. Of course there wasn't much science to the game in Hal's day and even today we see nothing much wrong with his jump to six diamonds over his partner's two no-trump.

Opening lead—♥ 10

Hal made little ceremony about dummy play. He won the heart lead with his ace and put his ace of diamonds on the table. East showed out and West remarked, "If I'd known that you held both the ace and king of trumps I would have doubled you."

Hal looked over the hand for a second and replied, "Maybe you will be glad that you didn't."

Then Hal proceeded to make his contract.

He was lucky to do so after the bad trump break but without that break he would have had no problems at all. It wasn't done with mirrors but just by praying that West would have to follow to three leads of each side suit.

Hal led a club to dummy's ace and ruffed a club. Then he led a heart to dummy's king and ruffed a heart. Then he played out three rounds of spades, stopping in dummy.

At this point Hal was down to four trumps and West held three trumps and either a club or a heart. It was up to Hal to decide which suit the other card was in but East had helped Hal out. east had played the four of hearts at trick one and dropped the three of hearts under dummy's king. Then when the third heart was led East had falsecarded with the queen. This was a silly falsecard because Hal's ten spot opening had denied the jack.

Therefore Hal knew that East held the jack of hearts and West another club. He ruffed a club and led his ten of trumps. West took one trump trick but had to lead back to Hal's king-eight

MANSION

Many have been converted into multiple family dwellings or rest homes, etc.
This property is eminently suited for single family or institutional occupancy.
Of massive construction the building conveys an air of solidity from basement to attic.
Accommodation includes:—
Spacious Entrance Hall; three handsome Reception Rooms; five principal Bedrooms; three full bathrooms, three washrooms; Staff accommodation; large rumpus room with fireplace.
Three garages.
Excellent hot water heating system.
Magnificent views of sea and mountains from most rooms.
The building is structurally sound and is in impeccable condition throughout, having been the subject of extensive renovations during the last twelve months. The garden extends to approx. two-thirds of an acre and affords considerable privacy on the south side of the residence.

UNOBSTRUCTED SEA VIEW
UNIQUE HOME
This lovely home is just on the market for the very first time. No expense has been spared in the quality of construction. The design is unusual and most interesting. The large living room has magnificent water view and a lovely open fireplace with a beautiful copper hood. The dining room is in-line and also has the same gorgeous view. The kitchen has an abundance of cupboards, and is planned for ease. There is a built-in oven and the table top range also has a beautiful copper hood. Up a few steps are two extra large bedrooms and a vanity bathroom. On a slightly lower level than the main floor there is another lovely bedroom, family room or breakfast room area and another bathroom. The basement has a large utility room and playroom area. There is also an extra finished sleeping room with private wash basin which is ideal for guests. There are so very many interesting and unusual features that you really must see them for yourself. The property is .59 of an acre and beautifully treed to provide perfect seclusion yet unobstructed views of the water. The garden is fascinating with brick courtyard, a little trickling stream, a fountain with a golden boy pouring water from his jug which spills from his basin into a beautiful fish pond. Truly a most fascinating home and setting. Asking only $32,500.

National Park at Long Beach Hinted

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — A new national park near Vancouver Island's Long Beach is being considered by the federal government.

Northern Development Minister Art Laing told Parliament Friday that the matter is under study in conjunction with provincial authorities.

But Laing told the House that Ottawa has received no satisfaction in trying to negotiate with the B.C. government to take over Garibaldi Provincial Park for conversion to a national Park.

However, he held out hope that one day it will be.

Laing said there are five national parks on the Atlantic coast and it is felt it is time there was at least one on the Pacific.

"Latterly we have given an undertaking to the province of B.C. and at the present time we are studying with B.C. authorities an area that is very close to the Long Beach part of Vancouver Island," Laing said.

The minister said Ottawa has been thinking of amending its legislation to make it possible for the acquisition of an additional amount of seashore.

LAING
. . . hopeful

". . . we are concerned that an increasing amount of the seashores of Canada are being purchased by citizens who are not citizens of Canada," Laing stated.

"We think it is about time we took steps to see that an adequate amount of these open areas along the seashores of Canada are available for national purposes," he added.

Laing was asked by NDP leader Tommy Douglas about efforts to obtain national park area in the lower mainland.

"I must say we have had no satisfaction in negotiating for Garibaldi" the minister said.

Laing said the area is a provincial park and the Victoria government pointed out it contained resources that it wanted to develop.

He stated the federal government had been prepared to move the boundaries to exclude these areas, but had not had a good response to this proposal.

The proposition was to place the limits at the seashore and the Squamish River.

"However, I am still hopeful that some day this will be a national park, because it is reported to me by people who are authorities on alpine meadows that here we have an area unsurpassed by any in the world," Laing added.

Last year attendance in national parks increased by 15 per cent to a total of 11.3 million.

Laing said the parks draw many tourists from outside Canada and the department is instituting a study to look into long-range park needs.

India Gets SAMs

NEW DELHI (AP)—India acknowledged for the first time Friday that its defences have been bolstered by Soviet SAMs—the surface-to-air missiles the Russians also supply to North Vietnam. The annual report of the defence ministry said: "Work on installation and operation of surface-to-air guided weapons and training of personnel in this field has progressed satisfactorily."

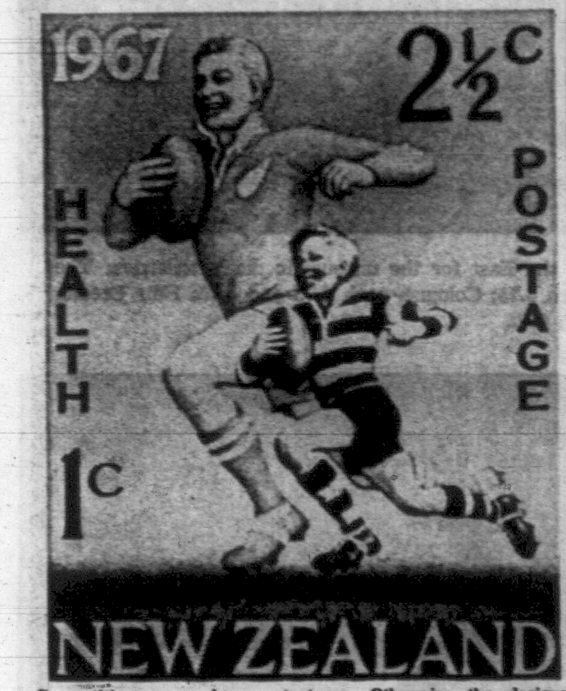
STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE



Competition was keen at VANPEX, the international philatelic exhibition held in Vancouver recently.

Local exhibitors who scored were: Miss Jessie Gordon, who was awarded a gold medal, as well as the Graham Memorial Trophy, for her beatiful display of stamps featuring the famous Chalon portrait of Queen Victoria; a highly specialized collection of Sudan won for Harry Whittaker a silver Medal. (As his exhibit was entered in the championship class, this was a high award); Jack Isacson who got a silver medal for his early postmarks of Great Britain; and Lester Small who received a bronze for his entry "The Islanders."

In the Court of Honor section (non competitive) a rare and wonderful showing of early Canada was displayed by Gerry Wellburn — an outstanding feature of the exhibition.

Bahamas released its decimal value definitives on May 25, replacing the provisional surcharges that have been in use for some time. Two values have been re-designed for the new set — the 5c now features the "Oceanic" in place of the "Queen Elizabeth," and the $2 illustrates a conch shell of a different form from the specimen shown on the sterling stamp. Otherwise the designs are unchaged.

New Zealand's 1967 Health stamps will switch over from birds to sports for a change. The two values (2½ plus 1c, and 3c plus 1c) will both feature Rugby football.

Each stamp shows a young lad playing the game, with a shadow figure of an All Black footballer in the background.

On one stamp the boy is putting the ball in position for a place-kick — in the other he is running with the ball. In each case the shadow is performing the same action as the boy.

I remember many years ago seeing the N.Z. All Blacks, then on their first world tour, playing a game against the Victoria team at Oak Bay.

I don't seem to recall that any of the visiting players ever exhibited the amiable expression which is depicted on the runner shown on the stamp. They really were a grim lot!

Exporter, Actress Win Place on Honors List

LONDON (CP) — A leading figure in Britain's exports drive to Canada and a golden girl of the British stage are among hundreds receiving honors in the Queen's birthday list today.

Peter Allen, British industrialist with special interest in Canada, gets a knighthood. So does New Zealand-born Dawson Donaldson, chairman of the Commonwealth Telecommunications Board.

Actress Vanessa Redgrave becomes a commander of the Order of the British Empire. Veteran actress Gladys Cooper becomes a dame of the same order and Sir William Penney, chief of the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority, is made life baron in a list of 702 leaning heavily toward achievements in exports and the arts.

KNIGHTS NAMED

Sir Evelyn Shuckburgh, Britain's ambassador to Rome who served at Ottawa in 1940, is elevated to Knight Grand Cross in the Order of St. Michael and St. George, and Sir Robert Bellinger, lord mayor of London, is raised to Knight Grand Cross in the Order of the British Empire.

Allen, deputy chairman of the giant Imperial Chemical Industries combine and head of its Canadian operations — Canadian Industries Ltd.—has been chairman since 1964 of the committee for exports to Canada, the British National Export Council.

He was the driving spirit behind Britain's series of trade fairs being held across Canada this year. It is understood he plans to retire early next year.

RETIRING CMA PRESIDENT

Medicare 'Controls' Hit

QUEBEC (CP) — Dr. R. K. C. Thomson of Edmonton, outgoing president of the Canadian Medical Association, said Friday the federal medical care insurance program "might control medical practice."

In a bitterly-worded valedictory, Dr. Thomson reviewed the course of CMA discussions with the federal government and accused Ottaaa of failure to heed the profession's recommendations on the medical care insurance issue.

He said availability and qualis of medical care "was and is as high as anywhere in the world." Maintenance of this quality was "being threatened to a serious degree by political manoeuvres in the field of medical care in this country."

"With the passage of the federal Medical Care Services Insurance Act, the condition has worsened and early recovery does not appear to be a reasonable expectation."

COMPULSORY PROGRAM

The CMA wanted insurance on a voluntary basis with government helping those in need. Multiple programs by non-profit and commercial carriers offered the best chance of freedom of choice, experimentation and improvement through competition.

Instead the federal government "brought in a program which is in fact compulsory for all and to be operated by a department of government."

"It eliminates personal responsibility, prevents free enterprise, is a heavy and unnecessary financial burden on the country, and might eventually control medical practice.

"I think it is fair to say that from the time the prime minister announced his 'four principles' in July, 1965, our discussion and advice have not been heeded in the least so far as influencing philosophy or policy were concerned."

POWER PLANT HIT

U.S. Bombers Back at Hanoi

SAIGON (Reuters) — American carrier-based planes today struck within the city boundaries of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, blasting a thermal power plant 1.1 miles from the city centre, a U.S. military spokesman said here today.

It was the third raid American planes have made on the power plant and the first raid on the Hanoi area since U.S. aircraft struck a military barracks six miles from the city May 22.

The raid on the thermal power plant was one of three co-ordinated American attacks in the immediate area of the North Vietnamese capital today.

The spokesman said one American plan, an F-8 Crusader, was shot down during the attack and the pilot missing.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported from Hanoi that three U.S. planes were downed.

The spokesman said that shortly before the power plant was hit, A-6 Intruders and F-4C Phantoms from the carrier Enterprise blasted a ground-to-air missile storage area seven miles south of the centre of Hanoi.

Simultaneous with the attack on the power plant, which was carried out by navy jets from the carrier Bon Homme Richard, A-6 Intruders and F-4C Phantoms from the carrier Constitution pounded the Van Dien vehicle depot five miles south of the capital.

It was the second time the missile storage area and the spokesman said.

The first attack within the city limits of Hanoi, on the same thermal power plant, was May 19 and was followed by a second attack two days later.

The raids against the heartland of North Vietnam followed hard on the heels of a bloody Communist mortar attack earlier today against five U.S. and South Vietnamese installations around Pleiku. The attacks left 26 dead—including two Americans—and 121 wounded.

CENTENNIAL SOUVENIR

Extra Copies Limited For Canada 100 Issue

Because some sections must be printed ahead of publication day, only a limited number of extra copies will be available of the edition "Canada 100," appearing in the Times June 29.

Those who wish to send copies to friends and relatives outside Victoria should place their orders early with the circulation department to ensure delivery. Forms to reserve mailing copies appear in an advertisement on Page 18.

The special supplement, containing four sections totalling 96 pages, is a bonus for regular subscribers of the paper and will be included with the regular home delivery and newsstand sale.

Some of Canada's top writers and historians have contributed articles to the edition, dealing with the nation's origins and progress through the century. Special attention is paid to the roles Victoria and British Columbia have played. As a whole, the supplement is a worthwhile souvenir of Centennial year.

Combined with the regular paper, the June 29 edition will be the largest ever published in one issue in Victoria. In addition to the articles of lasting interest is a wide display of photographs, both old and new.

Israeli Ties Cut By Russia

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today broke off diplomatic relations with Israel and threatened sanctions — "with all the consequences flowing therefrom"—if it does not stop military operations immediately.

The Soviet action came after a summit meeting here hurriedly called between Russia and leaders of the East European states to discuss the Middle East war.

While Israeli tanks blazed their way up on to the Syrian plateau today, the Israeli ambassador in Moscow, Katriel Katz, was summoned to the Soviet foreign ministry.

He was handed a note which said:

'The news has just reached here that Israeli troops, ignoring the Security Council's decision on the termination of military operations, are proceeding with these operations, seizing Syrian territory, and are advancing in the direction of Damascus.

"The Soviet government has warned the government of Israel that it bears all the burden of responsibility for its perfidy and its glaring violation of the Security Council decisions.

"Unless Israel halts immediately its military actions, the Soviet Union, jointly with other peace - loving states, will take sanctions against Israel with all consequences flowing therefrom."

"The Soviet government states that in view of the continued Israeli aggression against Arab states and the gross violation of the Security Council decisions by it, the Soviet government has taken a decision on the severance of the Soviet Union's diplomatic relations with Israel."

Israel embassy personnel were told to leave Russia as soon as possible, an Israeli spokesman said.

The move came three days after Russia warned Tel Aviv it might break relations if Israel did not immediately observe a ceasefire in the Middle East war.

ISRAEL WARNED

It also came only a few hours after the Soviet Union and six other Communist states warned they would give aid to Arab countries if Israel did not stop fighting and withdraw to the lines it held before the war began.

The declaration was issued in the name of the Communist parties of Russia, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Yugoslavia.

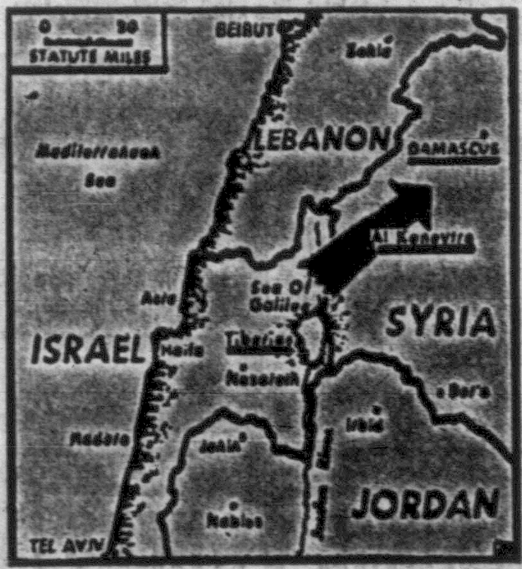
Romania attended the meeting but was believed to have refused to sign the document. Romanian sources could not confirm this, but said: "That seems to be the position."

The declaration warned Israel that if it did not immediately observe a ceasefire and withdraw the signatory states would "do everything necessary to help the Arab countries to administer a resolute rebuff to the aggressor."

Partition 'Absurd' Vatican Paper Says

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano says Jerusalem should be placed under international control.

It says in a commentary that for 20 years the Holy City had been absurdly divided into Jewish and Arab sectors—a situation that often provoked bloody incidents.



DAMASCUS THRUST by Israeli troops is claimed by Syria. They say Jewish forces have occupied Al Koneytra, nine miles inside Syria's borders. Israeli charged that Syrian forces were shelling Israeli border villages near Tiberias in the Jordan Valley. Both sides continue to accuse each other of violations of UN ceasefire resolutions. 'WILL OF PEOPLE'

Nasser Stays As Egypt Chief

CAIRO (CP)—President Nasser announced today he has decided to stay on as Egypt's head of state but only until "all traces of aggression are eliminated."

In a statement read to the Egyptian National Assembly by Speaker Anwar Sadat, Nasser said he has decided to "comply with the will of the people," and rescind his resignation but added:

"After this phase, the whole matter should be referred to the people for a general plebiscite."

Deputies jumped from their seats and roared approval as Sadat announced the news of the Arab leader's decision to a special assembly session.

Sadat said Nasser was unable to make the announcement himself because huge crowds shouting for his return to power were blocking his way to the assembly building.

"We do not accept anybody but Nasser as our leader," the Speaker told the assembly, repeating a slogan that had echoed through the canyons of Metropolitan Cairo all night long.

SPEAKER READS LETTER

In a letter read by the Speaker to the 360-man assembly, Nasser said:

"The voice of the masses is an order that cannot be disobeyed. Therefore I decided to stay in my place.

"I will stay in the post where the people want me to be until the time when we will be able to erase all traces of aggression, but after that period the decision should be made in a general plebiscite."

By saying that he would stay on until all traces of aggression are erased, Nasser apparently meant that he would keep his post until the effects of the last week's Israeli - Arab war are cleared up.

Observers in Beirut, Lebanon, said that any referendum for the presidency seemed certain to bring Nasser sweeping support to stay in office.

Jews Plan To Keep War Gains

By UPI

Israel claimed victories today over the armed forces of Syria, Egypt, Jordan and Iraq and said it would never return to its old borders.

Information Minister Yisrael Gaillilie said in Jerusalem that Israel's smashing triumph over the Arabs in the six-day Middle East war had made it impossible "to return to the status quo before this happened."

Damascus, the oldest continuously inhabited city in the world, was reported by the Arabs under daylong bombardment by Israeli planes. Damascus radio said four Israeli planes were shot down.

The Syrians admitted the loss of the city of El Quneitra, 10 miles from the Israeli border 40 miles south of the capital, after "fierce fighting."

BLACK SMOKE

Dispatches from the front told of huge columns of black smoke rising over villages along the highway to Damascus.

Israeli military officials said there were no air raids against Damascus proper but said Israeli planes were in the vicinity.

Syrian officials exhorted the army and the people to defend Damascus street by street, house by house. Israeli military sources said the fighting around the Syrian capital was heavy. They predicted the downfall of Syria's leftwing socialist regime within days or even hours.

ALGERIA FIGHTS

Algerian President Houari Boumedienna said his country refused to accept the UN ceasefire.

"The war must continue and we must not lay down our arms until final victory," he said in Algiers.

In Jerusalem, Gaillile said the Israeli government had been holding consultations designed to "assure the victories achieved on the battlefields" and that previous boundaries with the Arabs cannot exist in the future.

The previous armistice pacts defining Israel's borders came after the successful 1948 war of independence and the 100-hour blitzkrieg which smashed Egypt in 1956.

Israel already has declared it will never give up captured Jordanian Jerusalem. The Holy City previously had been divided between Israel and Jordan.

There were indications the Israelis also plan to keep some Jordanian territory west of the Jordan River along with parts of the Sinai Desert and Gaza Strip.

Canal Blocked Says Egypt

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — Cairo radio said today Israeli air raids sank several ships in the Suez Canal Friday, obstructing all navigation through the canal.

Ahmed Mashour, head of the Egyptian Suez Canal authority, said in a broadcast statement that raising the sunken ships and clearing the canal to navigation "will take some time."

Egypt closed the canal immediately after the outbreak of the Middle East war Monday. Several ships were left immobilized in it.

Ships Hit Up Coast

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Four women from California were in good condition in hospital here today with injuries suffered Friday night in a collision between an Alaska cruise ship and a Japanese freighter.

The vessels collided in heavy fog about 16 miles off this north coast city. The Glacier Queen sustaining a 75-foot-long gash above the waterline and the Nichirei Maru a small hole in her bow and a snapped anchor.

The cruise ship was carrying 112 passengers and an undetermined number of crew. The injured were believed in an area where two cabins were smashed by the impact of the collision.

Damascus Drive Halted

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Secretary-General U Thant announced today that both Israel and Syria have said they accept United Nations demands for a ceasefire.

Thant said he had been informed by Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, chief of staff of the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization, that both sides accepted his proposed truce arrangements.

Under these arrangements, cessation of all firing and troops movement went into effect at 12:30 p.m. EDT. (9:30 a.m. PDT).

Bull reported to Thant after a conference in Tel Aviv with Maj.-Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israeli defence minister, and he asked chief UN truce observer in Damascus, Lt.-Col. R. H. W. Bunworth, to seek Syria agreement urgently.

Thant said Bull reported that Israel is prepared to co-operate in a ceasefire and halting of troop movements provided that UN observers are deployed on both sides of the battle line.

The word that Israel would accept the ceasefire came to the 15-nation council as it received reports also of deep penetration into Syria by Israeli troops and Israeli air attacks around the capital of Damascus.

Israeli Ambassador, Gideon Rafael gave the council a report on a meeting in Tel Aviv between Dayan and Bull.

Rafael said Gen. Bull would establish contact with the Syrians on the hour to be set, and that Israel would provide him with the necessary assistance in the way of communications and transport.

REPORTS PIECEMEAL

The reports from UN observers in Syria reached the council piecemeal during a meeting that began before dawn in an effort to bring an end to Middle East hostilities.

The Soviet Union, after breaking relations with Israel, warned the council it must halt what the Russians consider Israeli aggression or face "an extremely serious situation."

The Soviet Union sought condemnation of Israel by the council.

Earlier today Damascus radio said Syrians would "continue to fight until we have turned the entire front into a cemetery for the enemy."

Rafael again denied that Israeli forces are bombing Damascus, and advancing on the Syrian capital.

NO OBJECTIVE ANSWER YET

Who Shot First Still Poser

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Who fired the first shot in the Arab-Israeli war?

This is a question to which no official or objective answer is available, as yet. Many diplomats contend it is academic, because of the situation in the weeks just preceding the outbreak of fighting.

The Arab nations and the Soviet bloc declare it was Israel that launched "aggression" against the Arab nations. Israeli representatives vigorously deny it.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban told the UN Security Council Tuesday night that as Arab threats and provocations increased in intensity, "there was no doubt that our margin of general security was becoming smaller and smaller."

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko, speaking in the Security Council Thursday, quoted a National Broadcasting Co. report from London that Israel "was the first to launch military operations in the Near East."

The NBC report was attributed to the Israeli ambassador in London, Haron Remez.

"If the foreign minister of Israel wishes to deny it, to disavow it," Fedorenko said, "well, he has another chance to undo with the right hand what the left hand has done.

"The responsibility of the Israeli aggressors will not be wiped clean by any quibbles. Their responsibility is clear for the crimes committed."

Ambassador Muhammed H. el-Farra of Jordan also alluded to the NBC report of what he called the "confession" by the Israeli ambassador in London.

He added that he was "greatly astonished that until this minute the council has not attempted to establish the fact—although the fact is very clear—that Israel committed an act of aggression."

Replying to Fedorenko and el Farra, Israeli ambassador Gideon Rafael declared:

"I can say categorically that no such statement was made by Ambassador Ramez."

"The Israel embassy in London has denied these allegations and legal proceedings have been instituted against those who have published this false statement."

Wednesday, the Israeli embassy in London also issued a statement denying that Remez had told British members of Parliament that Israel had fired the first shot.

Sawmill Totally Destroyed by Fire

Although no estimate of losses has yet been announced, it is expected to be in the thousnands.

A company spokesman said loss of the mill will affect five men temporarily.

It will also cause indefinite delays in filling 200 orders which were to come from the mill.

Firemen were still sifting through the charred remains today in attempt to discover the cause.

The B.C. Forest Service firefighting team was on the scene shortly after the first flames were spotted but there was little they could do to save the tinder-dry wood building.

The mill is situated at the head of First Lake.

Man at Fault In Own Death

Alcohol, Reckless Driving Blamed by Coroner's Jury

COURTENAY—A coroner's jury Thursday blamed alcohol and "his own reckless driving" for the death Feb. 17 of Robert Arthur Neidrauer.

After hearing of a high speed drive on the twisty Courtenay-Cumberland road, the jury recommended the source of alcoholic supply to minors be investigated.

Evidence showed that Neidrauer died of chest and head injuris after his car sideswiped an oncoming vehicle, careered 197 feet, sideswiped a pole on the way and hitting a tree head-on.

Neidrauer, 20, had a blood-alcohol content of .15.

Two passengers in the car, Brian Harold Pederson and Brian Dennis Perrin were both taken to hospital with serious injuries.

In evidence, Pederson, still limping from the accident, said Neidrauer appeared to have been drinking.

'DON'T BE AFRAID'

During the death ride he said he asked Neidrauer to let him out. Neidrauer replied: "Don't be afraid."

He said the dead driver drove fast and was a bit careless, depending on what kind of mood he was in.

Both passengers said Neidrauer was showing off, changing his car from low range to drive at high speed, causing the car to jerk and swerve.

Quick Arrests After Break-In

Later in court, Edwin John Brown, 20, and Gary Manson, 19, both of Nanaimo, were charged with breaking, entering and theft.

Brown was remanded without plea, and Manson pleaded not guilty and elected trial by magistrate.

One of the accused was arrested in the street not far from the store, and the other in a parked car.

This happened at 3 a.m. after Constable Clark found Rollston Hardware on High Street had been robbed.

A plate glass window near the front door was smashed and four rifles, a transistor radio and three hunting knives stolen.

Two of the rifles have been recovered.

A third suspect, also of Nanaimo, was arrested in Nanaimo Friday afternoon. He was to appear in court today.

Love-In Up-Island

CAMPBELL RIVER — Evening shoppers at Tyee Plaza were all agog Friday. And it wasn't the store windows they were staring at.

They were witnessing the up-Island community's first "love-in."

But the love was a little too much for most of them and they eventually drifted off, leaving the hippies to hip, the folk singers to sing folk and the poets to themselves.

Charges Laid After Woman Killed in Car

NANAIMO — A 24-year-old Nanaimo man appeared in court here Friday on two charges in connection with the Thursday highway death of Mrs. Margaret Clayton.

He was remanded to Monday.

According to RCMP their car was struck from behind sending it out of control into the path of an oncoming vehicle.

Mrs. Clayton was dead on arrival at hospital.

Burns, and two people in the third car, were released after treatment.

City Band Wins Trophy

For the third conservative year the Victoria Boys' Band has won the junior out-of-state trophy in the Portland Rose Festival.

Conducted by George Kraeling, the 39-piece band earned 98.2 per cent in the Friday competition. This victory gives them trophy.

Two local twirlers, Cheryl Sparks and Bev Griffiths, won their age groups in twirling.

Mayor Stephen will head a welcoming party to greet the band on its return at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in front of the B.C. Hydro Building.

Autograph Party

PORT ALBERNI — Several hundred people attended an autograph signing party here Friday to celebrate the release today of Indian artist George Clutesi's book, Son of Raven, Son of Deer.

Many ordered copies of the 130-page book which relates 12 Indian fables in words and pictures.

To be honest with you, last week was NOT one of our best weeks . . .

We can do without another like it for the rest of our lives.

Some small but vital printing errors crept into a mighty big job, and that is why there is now a temporary pause in B.C.'s most popular money game of 1967—

CASH IN A FLASH

Sponsored by Standard Oil Company of British Columbia Limited for Chevron Dealers and Standard Stations

These misprints led to incorrect matching of "Cash in a Flash" cards in a number of cases and therefore invalidated them. As a result, some people who thought they had a winning combination were going to find themselves disappointed.

So, in fairness to all the people playing "Cash in a Flash," the first game has been officially terminated.

A new game of " Cash in a Flash" will be starting soon. We are doing a total reprinting of all "Cash in a Flash" cards — and this time it's going to be right.

Every single card in this new game of "Cash in a Flash" will give you a valid chance to win up to $1,000. What's more, the New "Cash in a Flash" will have a big extra BONUS feature:

In addition to the thousands of regular "Cash in a Flash" prizes ranging up to $1,000, all winners in the new game will be eligible to compete for a special new GRAND PRIZE OF $10,000!

We are more sorry than we can say for the inconvenience and disappointment caused to Standard Oil Company of B.C., Chevron Dealers, Standard Stations and their tens of thousands of customers who enjoy playing "Cash in a Flash".

All humans, they say, make errors once in a while.

But, believe us, there hasn't been much consolation in being human around OUR plant during this past week!

Victoria Daily Times ★★★

Arthur Mayse

There is a question that I run into at least once a week, and usually oftener.

It may be asked in tones that suggest the questioner wouldn't deign to wrap fish-heads in my printed outpourings, or be impelled by amiable curiosity. But in each instance, the wording is the same:

"Where do you get your ideas?"

How the other fellows in my trade handle that one, I can only guess. Probably they resort to the same durable if vague cliches that I trot out when thus confronted.

On a day when my typewriter is practically running itself, perhaps an airy, "Well, you know what they say about tricks to every trade . . ."

At other times, the ones when the keys seem welded together, perhaps a grim, "What ideas?"

The truth of the matter is that columns, or articles, or fiction pieces derive from the simple process of living and doing to which we are all exposed while tenants here below.

To this — on an afternoon which was made to order for luring fat Cowichan trout on a dry fly—I can add that most columnists have grown up in the newspaper business.

As a matter of fact, I can't name you one who didn't put in a hitch as a reporter at some time in his experience. This means that he is grooved into the habit of setting words to paper on a day-to-day basis.

This helps; but obviously, no one can go about constructing a column until he has something to write about—and here we come to the nub of the matter.

I recall a coy little rhyme from a more inhibited day that runs, "Where did you come from, baby dear?" to which silly question the infant replies (don't ask me how!) with an "Out of the nowhere into the here."

Ideas often overtake me at casual times. I may be throwing a beach stick for our dog, or testing a bath with cautious toe, when a notion drops in from the nowhere.

After weighing it, I may be forced reluctantly to send it back where it came from. But more often than not, those sendings are lucky ones, and should be dealt with promptly

Not to do so is to court loss. For several weeks now, I have been fishing out at intervals an empty match folder on which is scribbled "turntable." I stare at it, and try to remember the column idea behind this sketchy clue.

Some columns draw from items that bob up in the run of the news; others from sessions, preferably informal, with people whose jobs and lives interest me.

Then there are the odd items, the little sideshows that are always good for a glance in passing.

A column is also a personal letter in which my own ups and downs are bound to figure.

So are yours: a good deal that finds its way into this corner comes from its readers.

I have learned through our years together that a rainy weekend is your best time for writing, but that most with grist for our shared mill are too busy to bother with pen and paper.

You phone . . . and that's fine with me . . . and sometimes you drop in.

I go about the actual writing of a column in the only way anybody ever writes anything, which is by sitting down and setting to work.

Consider able time may elapse between the sitting and the setting, but eventually the gears mesh.

But the idea's what matters, and for a further answer to the question, "Where do you get your ideas?" let me refer you to my wife.

Win doesn't write illegible clues on match folders. She carries them in her head; and when my own idea-bank is temporarily overdrawn, I can count on her for a welcome assist.

To this casual breakdown, I can add that the second most frequent question asked is 'Why don't you . . .?'

This because never yet have any two critics agreed on what a grab-bag column should do or be. Here, another of those well-worn platitudes provides the most useful answer.

'Variety,' it runs, 'is the spice of life.'

The institute in Burnaby is not a vocational school. Grade 12 with university program is the entrance requirement. Training is different but not inferior from a university with emphasis on mathematics, English and the sciences. Fees are comparatively low at $150 a year and government scholarships and other financial assistance is available for those qualifying.

Coast Guard Show Outdraws Swiftsure Crowd

By TERRY IZZARD

In cars, on motor-cycles, even with baby buggies, they flocked to the waterfront for Coast Guard Day.

Traffic was backed up from beyond Clover Point to Ogden Point as parking spots along the routs quickly filled up.

The waters offshore seemed almost as crowded as almost the entire west coast fleet of coast guard ships went through their paces.

The skies overhead were little better as helicopters darted and hovered around to the "oohs" and "aahs" of a thousand little boys.

Clover Point was the centre of attraction as the ships — led by the world's most modern weatherships, Vancouver and Quadra — steamed by in line-astern formation.

They also provided the finale with a demonstration of their firefighting abilities in putting out a blaze aboard a mock boat.

Less spectacular, but equally interesting, was a demonstration of buoy laying and pick-up by the supply ship Estevan.

Bucking a rising swell, she hove to only a few yards from shore for the tricky operation.

The $12 million weather-ships impressed the [illegible] just by cruising around their huge ball-shaped radar domes towering over the fleet.

The two hour show — first of its kind laid on by the department of transport — proved an even greater attraction than the start of the annual Swiftsure classic.

A further crowd catcher was to be open house aboard the ships this afternoon between 2 and 5 p.m.

Scientists and technicians were to be on hand aboard both weatherships to explain the workings of the fully-equipped laboratories.

School Party Broken Up By Police

Colwood RCMP officers broke up a high school dance at Chez Marcel early today when they found evidence of teenage drinking.

Close to 200 young people celebrating graduation from Esquimalt High School were sent home about 2 a.m. after officers toured the Island Highway steakhouse.

"Liquor was found on many tables and there were empty bottles all over the place," said one policeman.

Boys Arrested In Flag Thefts

The boys, charged with theft of goods worth more than $50, are scheduled to appear in juvenile court.

Impaired Driver Fined, Restricted

Griffith Timothy, 467 Lampson, was fined $300 and barred from driving except on business when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving today.

Court was told Timothy's car skidded 42 feet before clipping another auto at Blanshard and Pembroke early today.

Suspensions Causing New Problems

Opinions Differ On IWA Position

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

Fresh problems appeared in sight today following the suspension Friday of four locals of the International Woodworkers of America from the B.C. Federation of Labour.

The locals apparently will not be allowed representation or recognition in local labor councils or the Canadian Labour Congress, under the CLC constitution.

This is the belief of some union officials but others say this is a wrong interpretation. Both groups admit that the phrasing of the constitution is loose.

No interpretation on this aspect has been made by either the federation or the CLC.

Federation officers will be meeting Monday to consider a number of topics, including Friday's suspensions.

COMPLICATIONS

The secretary of the Vancouver Labour Council, Paddy Neale, said today he won't show up for work Monday because this could lead to the council's charter being lifted by the CLC.

He is a member of the Vancouver IWA, which with the Victoria, Duncan and lumber inspector locals were suspended from federation membership Friday.

They had failed to meet the deadline set by the federation executive for a public apology for a public criticism by their presidents of CLC vice-president Joe Morris.

Mr. Neale based his action on a section of the CLC constitution which reads:

"Any local union, branch or lodge or person suspended by or expelled from any body affiliated to or chartered by this congress shall not be allowed representation in this congress or in any local labor council, joint council or federation of labor chartered by this congress."

OPINIONS DIFFER

Other union sources, however, said this section does not apply in this circumstance because the IWA is affiliated with the CLC as one body and not local by local.

The Vancouver and District Labour Council Friday asked the federation to reconsider the suspension, describing them as "too serious" and asking the federation to withhold any action until the annual convention this October.

The suspensions were ordered under a convention-approved policy that unions not air their internal problems in public.

Federation Secretary Ray Haynes said late Friday that a "couple of letters from the unions involved" have been received but none includes an apology.

He said the letters will be discussed Monday but "there really is not much change. We have asked for an apology and we have not got it."

Error Cancels Charge

An accused man guessed wrong in central court Friday and had his charge dismissed.

"Do you plead guilty or not guilty?" asked Magistrate Ostler after a charge of having a dog unlawfully at large was read to an Esquimalt man.

"I guess I'm guilty," he replied.

The magistrate started to read the charge again, then stopped.

"This says that in the City of Victoria he committed an offence against an Esquimalt bylaw. The case is dismissed. And I hope the Crown won't recharge this man. He's put in time here this morning for this case."

He was assured the matter was dropped.

Bar Patrons Feel Result Of Increase

Diners and drinkers can expect to pay more for wines and liquors in restaurants and cocktail bars before too long if they are not already doing so.

That's the indication from comments made by a number of hotel and restaurant spokesmen today.

June 1, the B.C. Liquor Control Board increased liquor prices. Average increase was about a dime a bottle but many of the items on the LCB list of 1,500 were untouched.

ABSORB INCREASES

Len Ingraham of the Ingraham Hotel said he feels that all wine and liquor prices will go up but only to absorb the increases made by the LCB.

"I don't think prices will increase on wines and liquors that weren't increased by the bottle, June 1," he said.

But LCB increase or not, the winer and diner could have expected his drinks to cost more before too long, Mr. Ingraham said. Recent wage increases for bartenders have to be covered.

"Some of the bottle prices increases were so small that a lot of people may not bother to pass them on to the customers. In many cases it would not be worth the cost of reprinting the wine lists," he said.

NONE PLANNED

An Imperial Inn spokesman said that there were no changes contemplated as a result of the LCB price hike but some small increases were made in the price of drinks some time before the LCB announcement.

The Cherry Bank spokesman said increases are contemplated in the future but it wasn't likely that it would amount to more than five cents, depending on the drink.

The Strathcona has already increased some drink prices by five cents but others are unchanged.

The Coach and Four and McPherson Restaurant are still the same but no decision has been made on possible increases.

5-Year Old Boy Critically Hurt

Hit by Car Crossing City Street

A five-year-old boy is in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after he was hit by a car at Hillside and Quadra Friday evening.

Anthony Faulkner, 970 Market St., suffered cuts to his head, chest and legs, broken ribs and internal injuries when he was knocked down as he was crossing Quadra Street with his mother, Marlene.

City police said driver of the car involved was Emma Howard, 80, of 10227 West Saanich Rd. She was westbound on Hillside and making a right turn onto Quadra, officers reported.

The boy is being treated in the hospital's intensive care unit.

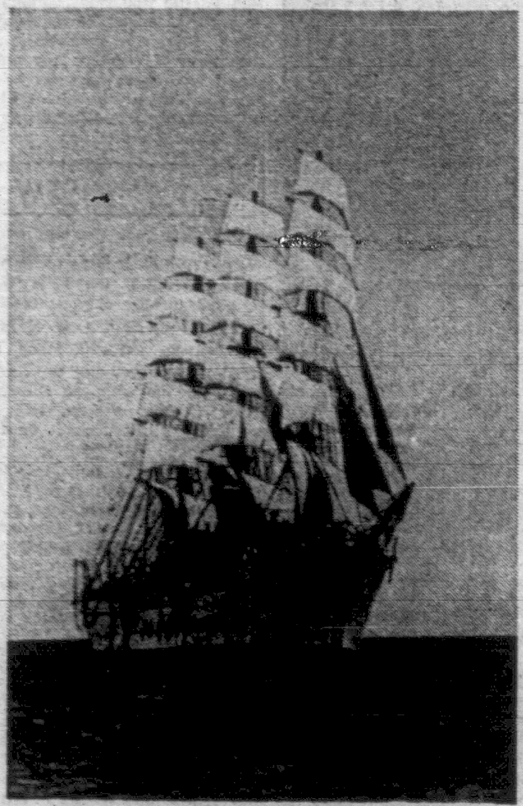
He suffered head injuries when a defective door on his truck flew open as it was rounding a curve and he fell out.



Nippon Maru, salute from the past Wednesday.

JAPANESE BARQUES COMING

Vision to Stir Seafarers

Look seaward off Race Rocks Wednesday evening to catch a vision stirring any seafarer's heart.

There under full sail about 6 p.m. will be, not one, but two four-masted barques — a salute from Japan to Canada's Centennial Year.

The Nippon Maru and Kaiwo Maru, almost identical twins built in 1930, are training ships operated by the Japanese Institute for Sea Training.

Manned by 65 officers and 160 cadets, they will arrive at Ogden Point at 8 p.m. next Wednesday. Visitors will be welcomed aboard the ships next Saturday and Sunday afternoons between 2 and 5 o'clock.

Next Sunday morning at 10:45 the ships will give a demonstration of sail drill which will be described by members of the Thermopylae Club.

Sightseeing tours and sports events are among entertainment plans for the Japanese sailors, including a band concert, Judo display and baseball at Royal Athletic Park starting at 1 p.m. next Sunday.

R. T. Bower, publisher of the Daily Colonist and chairman of the city's welcoming committee, said the committee is anxious to hear from citizens ready to provide private entertainment for officers, cadets and men.

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce will accept invitations on behalf of the ships from up to next Friday. Persons interested should phone 383-7191.

The ships are two of the very few four-masters left in the world. They will leave Victoria June 20. The Nippon Maru will visit New Westminster June 21 to 26 and the Ksiwo Maru will be at Prince Rupert June 25 to 29.

Bishop's Widow Died Today At Age of 91

She was 91.

Bishop Doull died at Vernon, B.C., in 1936. From 1909 he was for many years Dean of Christ Church Anglican Cathedral, Victoria.

Born in Montreal, Mrs. Doull came to Victoria from Vernon 11 years ago.

Sse is survived by four daughters: Mrs. E. B. Q. Buchanan, Montreal; Mrs. W. Flewin, Vesuvius Bay; Mrs. D. G. Esselmont, Victoria; and Miss Alix Doull, Victoria; two sons, Keith of Vancouver, and Cmdr. Ronald Doull, London, England.

Canon Hywell Jones will conduct the funeral service at St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, Monday at 11 a.m. with McCall Brothers in charge. Cremation will follow.

Harbor Service In Remembrance Of Veterans

More than 70 Victoria veterans will attend a wreath-laying memorial service at the mouth of Esquimalt Harbor Sunday morning.

This is the first of a number of Victoria ceremonies marking the Canada-wide observance of Veterans' Week from Sunday to Saturday.

At 10 a.m. the veterans will depart from HMC Dockyard aboard three Royal Canadian auxiliary vessels and sail to the mouth of the harbor for the ceremonies.

Among them will be veterans from the Naval Officers', the Chiefs and Petty Officers, the Royal Canadian Legion, the Hong Kong Veterans and other associations.

Etiquette With the Men in Mind

Most families have a book of etiquette stashed away on the bookshelf.

There may be some help for the confused young male in one of these books, but for the most part, the advice offered is slanted to the women of the household.

Damaske

I was searching for a book of advice for men written by a man, but it seems men are not so prone to tell their own sex how to behave. Much of the advice in Miss Munson's book is run of the mill and is followed, as a matter of course, by most men. However, it is a handy book of reference and regardless how many "how to" books you read there are always new things to learn.

Men are responsible for the carrying out of good manners in most social situations. In everything, from the amenities of lighting cigarettes and holding doors, to the business world and its private rules of protocol, men must take the initiative.

There is nothing effeminate about observing the niceties of life. Being well mannered is as important as being clean . . . you may offend your fellow man by ignoring one as much as by forgetting the other. Nothing adds or subtracts from a good impression faster than the clothes a man wears. Before he speaks, you have a chance to look him over and you automatically make certain mental notes about him.

Your clothes are a reflection of yourself just as the code of behavior which governs them is a reflection of the society in which we live.

It is especially important that you wear the appropriate outfit when dating a young lady. Girls are terribly conscious of being dressed correctly, and if you show up in slacks and sweater when she's attired in her best she'll be mortified. No matter where you take your date, there is a standard type of outfit for the occasion, and you should know what is expected of you. If it isn't a formal affair where clothing rules are rigid, there will be the unwritten rules set up by your own group as to what to wear for the occasion. Clothes for calling on friends at summer cottages should be casual, well-pressed sports clothes rather than good clothes which you no longer care about because they have seen better days.

Dining out with a young lady should be an enjoyable occasion for you both but HER enjoyment is your main concern. The gentleman is always in full charge when dining out. Before the arrival of the waiter you should have received her complete order with the exception of dessert. You give the waiter her order first, followed by your own.

The more mature man may wish to order wine with dinner. Under no circumstances must he ask his lady companion to make the decision as to the type of wine. A man is always expected to choose the wine. For this reason it is good practice to always have a few standard wines in mind. If you are timid about making a choice, by all means, ask the waiter to suggest an appropriate one.

Traditional ceremonies require special knowledge of hard and fast rules. Weddings, funerals and christenings include a vast amount of ritual. If you are asked to be a godparent you must realize this is a very high honor and you must never refuse unless there is some religious block. You should expect to have a long association with the child and to be responsible for him in the event of his parent's death.

When you are invited to a wedding your gift should arrive beforehand and it is sent in the name of the bride. Never take your gift to the wedding or the reception.

When the death notice of a friend asks that flowers be omitted you may still express your sympathy in the accepted manner. You may either send flowers to a hospital or church in memory of the deceased or else send a contribution to a charity in which he or she was interested.

Mary Lou Munson is a citizen of the United States and one or two of her suggestions do not quite agree with our customs, but good manners are much the same around the world.

SHOPPING GUIDE

By Penny Saver

Each year vacationers flock to Victoria to relax and enjoy the magnificent city to which most of us have grown accustomed. Now that summer's here, there isn't a more pleasant way to spend the early evening than to go for a long drive or walk along by the sea. The Saver household did this the other evening, taking along our young neighbor. Our little friend was thrilled to be able to chase "shegulls," see ships and run around on the beach. She's used to swimming in a pool or at the nearby lakes, and could only remember seeing "the whole ocean" once before. This struck us Savers, who are beach-goers from way back, as a great shame. We've started a campaign to promote not just visitors, but residents, getting out to enjoy the local scenery.

Another thing that visitors love to look at as well as buy while they're in the city, are pieces of Canadian Indian and Eskimo handicrafts. This handicraft work is centuries old and today the arts of carving and weaving are dying in many areas. Those pieces which are made are valuable not only for their extraordinary beauty but also in some instances, for the fact that they may no longer be available in years to come.

In one local shop, each year scores of visitors are intrigued by the local crafts and take back numerous items to their homes as souvenirs. One of the most interesting of the native arts sold in this store are the Eskimo carvings. More than a thousand pieces of these uniquely designed pieces are available here. Seals, Arctic loons, walrus, bears are patiently hand-carved from grey-green serpentine, and no two pieces are alike. Each figure is hand-polished with oil to bring out the stone's gloss and color, to highlight the light and shadows of its outlines. These unique animal figurines are true collector's items, and each piece is marked with the name of the artist, his community, and the name of the animal portrayed. The fine representatives of Eskimo carving are priced from $5.

Other items popular with visitors are the elk and seal skin slippers. The ancient art of hand-fashioned bead-work is used to decorate these soft and cuddly slip-ons. Some of these slippers are made only of elk skins, some are made with seal detailing over the toe or on the ankle, and some are loafer-style with bead-work designs. The plain seal boots in gold and grey tones are muk-luk style, coming a few inches above the ankle. The full range of designs and materials is priced from $7.50.

If you're interested in buying native handicrafts, a fine selection is available now. If you'd like to know where I shopped please give me a call at 382-3131.

Bride-Elect Widely Feted Prior to Coming Marriage

A number of parties and showers herald the forthcoming marriage of Miss Gillian Terry. She will marry Sub-Lt. C. M. Gale next Saturday.

Co-workers at the Bank of Nova Scotia gathered for a shower to honor Miss Terry, recently. It was held in the Esquimalt Road home of Mrs. Albert Keusch.

Friday evening, Mrs. A. H. Higgs and Mrs. D. Higgs were co-hostesses at a shower in the Westdowne Road home of the former.

There were 10 guests in the Island Road home of Mrs. William Leach when she entertained Miss Terry at an informal supper party.

This morning, the bride-elect was honored at a coffee party, given by Miss Marianne Fraser in her Crescent Road home.

VICTORIA MAN WED UP-ISLAND

Elliott-Barton Vows Exchanged Today

A wedding of interest to many Victorians took place in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Qualicum Beach, this afternoon, when Barbara Noreen Maye Barton became the bride of Gary Neil Elliott, Victoria.

Parents of the principals are Capt. and Mrs. Arthur William Barton of the up-Island community and Dr. and Mrs. G. Reid Elliott, 2808 Cavendish Avenue, Victoria.

Baskets of roses and carnations decorated the church and white gladioli and stocks were at the altar for the service conducted by Rev. William Hills.

Capt. Barton gave his daughter in marriage and George Knight, Qualicum, was organist.

Delicate lace outlined the three-quarter-length sleeves and was echoed in appliques on the empire-line bodice of the bride's peau d'elegance gown. The floor-length skirt was gently A-line. Appliques also starred the bow detail which held a short train.

Her only jewelry accent was an heirloom gold cross set with pearls, "something old" which had belonged to her grandmother in Scotland. Her bouffant chapel veil was scalloped and misted to chapel-length from a floral headpiece, "something borrowed" from Mrs. M. Burley, Victoria. She carried white gladioli and roses in her bouquet.

Best man was Lorne Cox, Vancouver, and ushering the guests were Frank Tovey, Victoria and the bride's cousin Jon Leney, Cowichan Station.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Money Hungry Kid Has Lot to Learn

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem in our family that is growing worse. Our son is 11 years old and he is the most money-hungry kid I have ever seen. All this boy thinks about is money. When I ask him to do a simple chore, such as emptying the trash, he says, "How much is it worth to you?"

If he lends a friend a dollar, he charges him outrageous "interest." He carries his lunch to school, sells it to the highest bidder, buys himself a bottle of milk for lunch, and pockets the difference. His father and I are pleased that our son respects money, but we think he is overdoing it. What should we do?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: An excessive preoccupation with ANYTHING, be it money, food, sex or what-have-you, is a symptom of an unhealthy personality. Children usually mirror their parents' attitudes, so perhaps without knowing it you have had more to do with shaping the boy's values than you think.

If you and your husband can't cure his "money-hunger" with reason and patient example, perhaps a psychiatrist can help him. (You'll probably have to pay the kid to go, but it could be worth it.)

DEAR ABBY: My sister eloped last January and my parents and I are going to visit her and her husband next weekend.

I have never met my brother-in-law. Would it be proper for me to kiss him? Or should I just shake hands?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: If you're a fellow, just shake hands. If you're a girl, a sisterly kiss would be in order.

DEAR ABBY: I am only 15, but I learned a lesson I will never forget.

When my parents used to tell me they "worried" when I didn't come home when I said I would, I thought they were silly. Well, now that I got a taste of my own medicine, I don't think they're so silly anymore.

Last Saturday night my folks went out and said they'd be home around midnight. Well, it got to be one o'clock in the morning, then two, then three and they still weren't home, Abby, I nearly went out of my mind imagining they were both dead in a ditch somewhere with the car on top of them.

Finally, at 4 a.m., they came home. It seems they ran into some old friends and were just sitting around their apartment talking over old times. They didn't bother to call me because they didn't think I'd worry. Believe me, I will NEVER give them the kind of night they gave me.

Danish Princess Weds Count

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (Reuters) — Princess Margarethe, 27-year-old heiress to the Danish throne, married French diplomat Count Henri de Laborde de Monpezat today to the cheers of thousands of Danes.

The wedding and processions to and from the church passed without incident as demonstrations threatened by anti-royalists failed to materialize.

Arabs Flee Conquered Area

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—Tens of thousands of Palestinian Arab refugees have fled across the River Jordan from the Israeli-occupied west bank region, Jordanian officials reported today.

Unofficial reports put the number who have already reached Jordanian territory on the river's east bank at 80,000.

The flood continued despite urgent appeals from the Jordanian government for the west bank refugees to stay where they were. The Jordanians feared the exodus of the refugees would further weaken their chance of getting the captured west bank territory back from Israel.

More Quebec Strife Feared

OTTAWA (CP)—A University of Calgary sociologist predicts increased Canadian French-English conflict within the next 20 years unless English-Canadians realize the "quiet revolution" represents dynamic change within French-Canadian culture.

Richard Ossenburg told the Canadian Association of Sociologists and Anthropologists meeting at Carleton University today Canadian dualism resulting from traditional French-Canadian nationalism "no longer exists."

POWER PLANT HIT

U.S. Bombers Back at Hanoi

SAIGON (Reuters) — American carrier-based planes today struck within the city boundaries of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, blasting a thermal power plant 1.1 miles from the city centre, a U.S. military spokesman said here today.

It was the third raid American planes have made on the power plant and the first raid on the Hanoi area since U.S. aircraft struck a military barracks six miles from the city May 22.

The raid on the thermal power plant was one of three co-ordinated American attacks in the immediate area of the North Vietnamese capital today.

The spokesman said one American plane, an F-8 Crusader, was shot down during the attack and the pilot missing.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported from Hanoi that three U.S. planes were downed.

The spokesman said that shortly before the power plant was hit, A-6 Intruders and F-4C Phantoms from the carrier Enterprise blasted a ground-to-air missile storage area seven miles south of the centre of Hanoi.

Simultaneous with the attack on the power plant, which was carried out by navy jets from the carrier Bon Homme Richard, A-6 Intruders and F-4C Phantoms from the carrier Constitution pounded the Van Dien vehicle depot five miles south of the capital.

It was the second time the missile storage area and the spokesman said.

The first attack within the city limits of Hanoi, on the same thermal power plant, was May 19 and was followed by a second attack two days later.

The raids against the heartland of North Vietnam followed hard on the heels of a bloody Communist mortar attack earlier today against five U.S. and South Vietnamese installations around Pleiku. The attacks left 26 dead—including two Americans—and 121 wounded.

CENTENNIAL SOUVENIR

Extra Copies Limited For Canada 100 Issue

Because some sections must be printed ahead of publication day, only a limited number of extra copies will be available of the edition "Canada 100," appearing in the Times June 29.

Those who wish to send copies to friends and relatives outside Victoria should place their orders early with the circulation department to ensure delivery. Forms to reserve mailing copies appear in an advertisement on Page 18.

The special supplement, containing four sections totalling 96 pages, is a bonus for regular subscribers of the paper and will be included with the regular home delivery and newsstand sale.

Some of Canada's top writers and historians have contributed articles to the edition, dealing with the nation's origins and progress through the century. Special attention is paid to the roles Victoria and British Columbia have played. As a whole, the supplement is a worthwhile souvenir of Centennial year.

Combined with the regular paper, the June 29 edition will be the largest ever published in one issue in Victoria. In addition to the articles of lasting interest is a wide display of photographs, both old and new.

Israeli Ties Cut By Russia

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today broke off diplomatic relations with Israel and threatened sanctions — "with all the consequences flowing therefrom"—if it does not stop military operations immediately.

The Soviet action came after a summit meeting here hurriedly called between Russia and leaders of the East European states to discuss the Middle East war.

While Israeli tanks blazed their way up on to the Syrian plateau today, the Israeli ambassador in Moscow, Katriel Katz, was summoned to the Soviet foreign ministry.

He was handed a note which said:

'The news has just reached here that Israeli troops, ignoring the Security Council's decision on the termination of military operations, are proceeding with these operations, seizing Syrian territory, and are advancing in the direction of Damascus.

"The Soviet government has warned the government of Israel that it bears all the burden of responsibility for its perfidy and its glaring violation of the Security Council decisions.

"Unless Israel halts immediately its military actions, the Soviet Union, jointly with other peace-loving states, will take sanctions against Israel with all consequences flowing therefrom."

"The Soviet government states that in view of the continued Israeli aggression against Arab states and the gross violation of the Security Council decisions by it, the Soviet government has taken a decision on the severance of the Soviet Union's diplomatic relations with Israel."

Israel embassy personnel were told to leave Russia as soon as possible, an Israeli spokesman said.

The move came three days after Russia warned Tel Aviv it might break relations if Israel did not immediately observe a ceasefire in the Middle East war.

ISRAEL WARNED

It also came only a few hours after the Soviet Union and six other Communist states warned they would give aid to Arab countries if Israel did not stop fighting and withdraw to the lines it held before the war began.

The declaration was issued in the name of the Communist parties of Russia, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Yugoslavia.

Romania attended the meeting but was believed to have refused to sign the document. Romanian sources could not confirm this, but said: "That seems to be the position."

The declaration warned Israel that if it did not immediately observe a ceasefire and withdraw the signatory states would "do everything necessary to help the Arab countries to administer a resolute rebuff to the aggressor."

LOSS HEAVY IN BLAZE AT SMITHERS

SMITHERS (CP) — Fire destroyed a dry kiln and a capacity load of 120,000 board feet of lumber today at this northern B.C. community.

No one was injured in the blaze, which officials estimate caused $75,000 damage to the Northern Interior Forest Products Ltd. plant.

Workmen using three fork lift trucks, a lumber carrier and bulldozer moved 500,000 board feet of stacked lumber away from the scene of the fire.

Ships Hit Up Coast

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Four women from California were in good condition in hospital here today with injuries suffered Friday night in a collision between an Alaska cruise ship and a Japanese freighter.

The vessels collided in heavy fog about 16 miles off this north coast city. The Glacier Queen sustaining a 75-foot-long gash above the waterline and the Nichirei Maru a small hole in her bow and a snapped anchor.

The cruise ship was carrying 112 passengers and an undetermined number of crew. The injured were believed in an area where two cabins were smashed by the impact of the collision.

Jews Plan To Keep War Gains

By UPI

Israel claimed victories today over the armed forces of Syria, Egypt, Jordan and Iraq and said it would never return to its old borders.

Information Minister Yisrael Gaililie said in Jerusalem that Israel's smashing triumph over the Arabs in the six-day Middle East war had made it impossible "to return to the status quo before this happened."

Damascus, the oldest continuously inhabited city in the world, was reported by the Arabs under daylong bombardment by Israeli planes. Damascus radio said four Israeli planes were shot down.

The Syrians admitted the loss of the city of Al Koneytra, nine miles from the Israeli border 40 miles south of the capital, after "fierce fighting."

BLACK SMOKE

Dispatches from the front told of huge columns of black smoke rising over villages along the highway to Damascus.

Israeli military officials said there were no air raids against Damascus proper but said Israeli planes were in the vicinity.

Syrian officials exhorted the army and the people to defend Damascus street by street, house by house. Israeli military sources said the fighting around the Syrian capital was heavy. They predicted the downfall of Syria's leftwing socialist regime within days or even hours.

ALGERIA FIGHTS

Algerian President Houari Boumedienna said his country refused to accept the UN ceasefire.

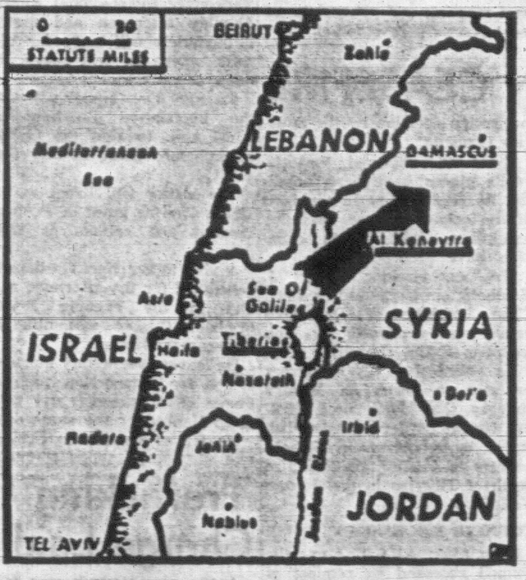
"The war must continue and we must not lay down our arms until final victory," he said in Algiers. "If the battle has been lost today, we have not lost the war."

In Jerusalem, Gaililie said the Israeli government had been holding consultations designed to "assure the victories achieved on the battlefields" and that previous boundaries with the Arabs cannot exist in the future.

The previous armistice pacts defining Israel's borders came after the successful 1948 war of independence and the 100-hour blitzkrieg which smashed Egypt in 1956.

Israel already has declared it will never give up captured Jordanian Jerusalem. The Holy City previously had been divided between Israel and Jordan.

There were indications the Israelis also plan to keep some Jordanian territory west of the Jordan River along with parts of the Sinai Desert and Gaza Strip.



DAMASCUS THRUST by Israeli troops is reported by Syria. They say Jewish forces have occupied Al Koneytra, nine miles inside Syria's borders. Israeli charged that Syrian forces were shelling Israeli border villages near Tiberias in the Jordan Valley. Both sides continue to accuse each other of violations of UN ceasefire resolutions. 'WILL OF PEOPLE'

Nasser Stays As Egypt Chief

CAIRO (CP)—President Nasser announced today he has decided to stay on as Egypt's head of state but only until "all traces of aggression are eliminated."

In a statement read to the Egyptian National Assembly by Speaker Anwar Sadat, Nasser said he has decided to "comply with the will of the people," and rescind his resignation but added:

"After this phase, the whole matter should be referred to the people for a general plebiscite."

Deputies jumped from their seats and roared approval as Sadat announced the news of the Arab leader's decision to a special assembly session.

Sadat said Nasser was unable to make the announcement himself because huge crowds shouting for his return to power were blocking his way to the assembly building.

"We do not accept anybody but Nasser as our leader," the Speaker told the assembly, repeating a slogan that had echoed through the canyons of Metropolitan Cairo all night long.

SPEAKER READS LETTER

In a letter read by the Speaker to the 360-man assembly, Nasser said:

"The voice of the masses is an order that cannot be disobeyed. Therefore I decided to stay in my place.

"I will stay in the post where the people want me to be until the time when we will be able to erase all traces of aggression, but after that period the decision should be made in a general plebiscite."

By saying that he would stay on until all traces of aggression are erased, Nasser apparently meant that he would keep his post until the effects of the last week's Israeli - Arab war are cleared up.

Observers in Beirut, Lebanon, said that any referendum for the presidency seemed certain to bring Nasser sweeping support to stay in office.

Parksville Drowning

PARKSVILLE (CP) — James Morse, 78, of Vancouver was presumed drowned Friday after a fishboat carrying the elderly man and his son capsized.

William Morse, 46, tied his father to the overturned boat as he tried to right the vessel, but the line broke and Morse disappeared into the darkness.

Another boat rescued the younger man, but a air-sea search turned up no trace of his father.

NO OBJECTIVE ANSWER YET

Who Shot First Still Poser

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Who fired the first shot in the Arab-Israeli war?

This is a question to which no official or objective answer is available, as yet. Many diplomats contend it is academic, because of the situation in the weeks just preceding the outbreak of fighting.

The Arab nations and the Soviet bloc declare it was Israel that launched "aggression" against the Arab nations. Israeli representatives vigorously deny it.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban told the UN Security Council Tuesday night that as Arab threats and provocations increased in intensity, "there was no doubt that our margin of general security was becoming smaller and smaller."

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko, speaking in the Security Council Thursday, quoted a National Broadcasting Co. report from London that Israel "was the first to launch military operations in the Near East."

The NBC report was attributed to the Israeli ambassador in London, Haron Remez.

"If the foreign minister of Israel wishes to deny it, to disavow it," Fedorenko said, "well, he has another chance to undo with the right hand what the left hand has done.

"The responsibility of the Israeli aggressors will not be wiped clean by any quibbles. Their responsibility is clear for the crimes committed."

Ambassador Muhammed H. el Farra of Jordan also alluded to the NBC report of what he called the "confession" by the Israeli ambassador in London.

He added that he was "greatly astonished that until this minute the council has not attempted to establish the fact—although the fact is very clear—that Israel committed an act of aggression."

Replying to Fedorenko and el Farra, Israeli ambassador Gideon Rafael declared:

"I can say categorically that no such statement was made by Ambassador Ramez."

"The Israel embassy in London has denied these allegations and legal proceedings have been instituted against those who have published this false statement."

Wednesday, the Israeli embassy in London also issued a statement denying that Remez had told British members of Parliament that Israel had fired the first shot.

Seems th' Middle East war is all over but th' fightin'.

Damascus Campaign Ended

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Secretary-General U Thant announced today that both Israel and Syria have said they accept United Nations demands for a ceasefire.

Thant said he had been informed by Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, chief of staff of the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization, that both sides accepted his proposed truce arrangements.

Under these arrangements, cessation of all firing and troops movement went into effect at 12:30 p.m. EDT. (9:30 a.m. PDT).

Bull reported to Thant after a conference in Tel Aviv with Maj.-Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israeli defence minister, and he asked chief UN truce observer in Damascus, Lt.-Col. R. H. W. Bunworth, to seek Syria agreement urgently.

Thant said Bull reported that Israel is prepared to co-operate in a ceasefire and halting of troop movements provided that UN observers are deployed on both sides of the battle line.

The word that Israel would accept the ceasefire came to the 15-nation council as it received reports also of deep penetration into Syria by Israeli troops and Israeli air attacks around the capital of Damascus.

Israeli Ambassador Gideon Rafael gave the council a report on a meeting in Tel Aviv between Dayan and Bull.

Rafael said Gen. Bull would establish contact with the Syrians on the hour to be set, and that Israel would provide him with the necessary assistance in the way of communications and transport.

REPORTS PIECEMEAL

The reports from UN observers in Syria reached the council piecemeal during a meeting that began before dawn in an effort to bring an end to Middle East hostilities.

The Soviet Union, after breaking relations with Israel, warned the council it must halt what the Russians consider Israeli aggression or face "an extremely serious situation."

The Soviet Union sought condemnation of Israel by the council.

Earlier today Damascus radio said Syrians would "continue to fight until we have turned the entire front into a cemetery for the enemy."

Canal Blocked Says Egypt

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — Cairo radio said today Israeli air raids sank several ships in the Suez Canal Friday, obstructing all navigation through the canal.

Ahmed Mashour, head of the Egyptian Suez Canal authority, said in a broadcast statement that raising the sunken ships and clearing the canal to navigation "will take some time."

Egypt closed the canal immediately after the outbreak of the Middle East war Monday. Several ships were left immobilized in it.

Israeli forces are reported to be camped along the eastern shore of the canal.
